Eisenhower Pledges More Spending Cuts

Congressional Leaders Meet With President

Key Administration Officials Given Look At GOP's Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—President Eisenhower pledged "further reduction" in government spending as he and Republican legislative leaders wound up tonight their first round of conferences on the GOP program for the new Congress session opening next month.

The chief executive said, too, that "leaders of the Republican party will continue to present a successful, sound and productive program that will serve the welfare of 160 million Americans."

Eisenhower put in a 10-hour day with members of his Cabinet, other key administration officials and Republican leaders of Congress. He gave them an advance look at the program he intends to present to Congress in January, with the emphasis today on:

Budget, Defense Discussed

The federal budget, the defense program, foreign operations, absentee voting for overseas servicemen, housing, labor law amendments and extended coverage for the unemployment insurance program.

When it was all over, the President issued a statement relating in general terms what topics were considered.

While he said nothing about prospects of budget balancing, the President put in this paragraph on the government's finances:

"The fiscal outlook was for a continuation of the substantial progress this administration has already made in its revision of the budget for fiscal 1954 that was prepared by the previous administration. In fiscal 1955 (beginning next July 1) we will continue this progress by further reduction of expenditures and further reduction of new spending authority."

Tabor Calls For Cuts

However, differences of opinion turned up among some of the legislators on the prime problem of economy.

The man who fires the starting gun to start all the money bills through Congress, Chairman Taber (R-NY) of the House Appropriations Committee, spoke up for cuts all "down the line." The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Rep. Short (R-Mo), said there can be some saving but not too much.

On the way out of the White House, Taber told reporters "it looks suspiciously like" the budget may be balanced for the fiscal year beginning next July 1. This contrasted with the view of Eisenhower, who has said he doesn't believe government income and spending can be balanced in the next fiscal year.

Naegelen Leads French Balloting

VERSAILLES, France, Dec. 17 (AP)—Marcel Naegelen, 61-year-old Socialist ex-governor of Algeria and foe of the U. S.-backed European army plan, led on the first two ballots today in the French Parliament's voting to name a new president of France.

The 932 senators and deputies, sitting jointly in the old Versailles Palace, then put off further balloting until tomorrow.

Majority Vote Necessary

The vote of a majority of the 932 members is necessary to choose the nation's chief of state for a seven-year term. The office is largely ceremonial with little real power.

On the first ballot the voting was scattered indecisively among 14 men. On the second, with the field whittled down to four men, Premier Joseph Laniel, wealthy industrialist, ran second; Yvon Delbos, a pre-war Foreign minister of the Radical Socialist (moderate) party, ran third; and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, of the Catholic Popular Republican party (PRM), fourth.

Reds Back Naegelen

These were the only four candidates on the second ballot, but the parliamentarians nevertheless gave a few scattered votes to others, including two to the present Socialist President, Vincent Auriol, and six to Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The Communists threw their votes to Naegelen on the second ballot because, they said, "he has stated his opposition to the European army."

President Vincent Auriol, 69, could have the job again simply by nodding his head, but insists he wants to step out at the end of his term Jan. 16.

Yule Tree Thief Didn't Stop Party

SPARROWBUSH, N. Y., Dec. 18 (AP)—Last night the ladies of the Deer-Park Grange arrived at the local firemen's hall to trim their eight-foot Christmas tree and throw a party for 50 children.

But a thief had been there before them, and made off with the tree and its decorations. He had to cut off two feet of the tree to get it out the door and this section he left behind.

The ladies swallowed their chagrin, dug up some decorations and when the children arrived they found a gayly-bedecked Christmas tree—all two feet of it.

Allies Seek Way To Rescue POWs From Pro-Reds

PANMUNJOM, Friday, Dec. 18 (AP)—United Nations officers studied ways today of getting in touch with 4 Americans and 20 South Koreans reported wanting to quit communism but fearful of knife-wielding pro-Reds in the neutral zone compound. The report came from a South Korean who has just quit the compound.

The Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission scheduled a meeting at 10 a.m. today (8 p.m. Friday, EST) to deal with the stalled explanations to such prisoners.

Something must happen quickly if any of the 22 Americans, 1 Briton and 77 South Koreans still awaiting explanations are to be interviewed. The deadline for explanations is only five days away.

A South Korean, Kim Mun Du, who said he slipped out of the compound while his companions were asleep, told a press conference yesterday he believed that only fear of being stabbed to death held back 4 Americans and 20 South Koreans from returning home.

A Peiping Red radio broadcast insisted, however, that Kim "just walked quietly through the gate" to freedom and that any other prisoner is free to do likewise.

Kim said he crawled through barbed wire in order to escape a camp where leaders brandished crudely made knives to keep all men in line.

U. N. officers viewed Kim's account with some degree of skepticism, saying if Kim could get out so could others.

One U. N. official said, however, that "as long as there is a possible chance that some of the men really want to come back and are held there by intimidation, we must do everything we can to try to reach them."

Kim identified the four Americans by name but only one, that of Cpl. William A. Cowart of Monticello, Ark., was released by Far East Command censors after it was published in the United States.

Mass Of Frigid Air Covers East

[By The Associated Press]

A mass of frigid Canadian air blanketed most of the eastern half of the nation Thursday with temperatures near or below freezing as far south as Florida.

The coldest weather of the season brought lows of -29 to Bemidji, Minn.; -24 to Grantsburg, Wis.; and -14 to Mt. Washington, N.H., Clymer and Brockville in New York state.

Frost was reported in southern Georgia and South Carolina, and temperatures in southern Florida dipped as low as 35 in the Miami suburbs. Jacksonville had 32, Pensacola 35 and Tallahasee 37.

6 Perish When Hotel Caves In Following Fire

Five Firemen, Guest Killed When Chicago Structure Collapses

CHICAGO, Dec. 17 (AP)—A three-story hotel collapsed today after a fire had been put out, and five firemen and a guest were killed.

About 30 firemen were in the dollar-a-day hotel—when a wall, the roof and the floors crashed. About 16 of them were trapped, some of them for as long as eight hours. The last of the living and the dead were brought out of the wreckage by nightfall.

A fire was discovered in the Reliance Hotel at 1702 W. Madison St. on the fringe of Skid Row shortly after 2 a.m.

The guests in the 45-room hotel fled. The fire had been put out by 3:45 a. m., and firemen were searching the smoke-hazed structure.

Roof Caves In

Minutes later the building shuddered as if shaken by an earthquake. With the groaning of wrenching timbers and the rumble of falling bricks, the front wall toppled and the roof caved in.

Firemen quickly began digging into the mounds and peaks of bricks, beams and splintered furniture to rescue the trapped men.

The temperature was near zero. Ice formed on their coats and helmets as the rescuers dug with hands and shovels and wielded saws and axes.

Some of the firemen in the hotel managed to get out by themselves. But about 16 were trapped, and one after another were brought out of the wreckage.

Plunged Three Floors

As they were freed, they told their stories—stories of being buried alive.

John Measner of Engine Co. 13 told how he plunged "non-stop" from the third floor to the basement. He said he landed in a sitting position in the midst of a pile of debris.

"I could move my head about an inch," he said, "and then my nose would touch a brick. I kept thinking of my wife and kid and Christmas. I didn't think I'd ever get out."

They got him out, but it took eight hours.

Charity Racket Hearings Ended

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—Charity racket probers called today for a crackdown on phony solicitors, but appealed to the public to support legitimate charity organizations.

A number of recommendations to curb fraudulent charity pitchmen were put forth as a state legislative committee wound up four days of hearings into campaigns that raised millions of dollars but doled out little to the needy.

"It is clear that the unscrupulous are in the minority," commented State Sen. Bernard Tompkins, Queens Republican and chairman of the committee. "We only ask that the public be more discriminating in giving."

A committee spokesman said the committee would conduct further hearings elsewhere in the state, but that the places and dates had not yet been decided.

Churchill Urges Pledge To Russia

Thinks He's Sold Ike And French

LONDON, Dec. 17 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill voiced confidence today he has sold President Eisenhower and the French on "the justice and advantage" of offering Russia guarantees against aggression.

"The Soviet Union is entitled to assurances against aggression after what she suffered at Hitler's hands," the 79-year old statesman told the House of Commons in a sweeping review of world affairs.

"I think I was successful in pressing upon my colleagues at Bermuda the justice and advantage of such a course even though Russian strength is so vast," he said.

Churchill expressed hope the proposed four-power foreign ministers' meeting in Berlin would produce "some means to provide Russia with a sense of security arising from other facts than mere force."

"The whole world is in need of that," he said amid loud cheers.

Russia has agreed to the Berlin meeting, but has not yet accepted the Jan. 4 date proposed by the Western Big Three at Bermuda.

Churchill brimmed with confidence and good humor in his speech, opening a one-day debate on foreign affairs.

He termed President Eisenhower's recent United Nations speech proposing a world pool of atomic powers for peaceful development of the atom as "one of the most important events in world history since the end of the war."

"I fervently hoped the Soviet Union will not ignore this beam of light amid so much darkness and confusion," Churchill said.

"I trust they (the Russians) will advance with the confidence to which their own strength entitles them along the path which certainly leads in the direction of expanding welfare and calming the fears of the masses of the people of all the world."

(In Washington, State Department Press Officer Henry Suydam declined to comment on Churchill's statement about security guarantees. But he pointed out that representatives of the United States, Britain and France are busy in Paris considering problems which may come up in Berlin. He said "it is our desire to have an affirmative approach to the amelioration of international difficulties at Berlin.")

BRT And Nation's Railroads Reach Wage Agreement

CHICAGO, Dec. 17 (AP) — Settlement of a wage dispute between the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the nation's railroads was announced tonight in a joint union-management statement.

Reached after seven days of negotiations, the agreement adds 5 cents an hour to present wage rates and ends the cost of living escalator clause provision which has been in effect since April 1, 1951.

The brotherhood estimated that about 200,000 of its members are affected by the new wage rates.

The agreements also provides for an additional week vacation for all brotherhood members with 15 or more years of service. That clause will extend their paid vacations to three weeks.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen includes in its membership about half of the total number of employes engaged in the operation of the nation's trains.

No Estimate Of Cost

Neither the brotherhood nor the railroads could make any immediate estimate on the cost of the wage boost which, under the terms of the agreement, became effective yesterday.

The agreement marks the first major railroad wage dispute that has been settled by direct negotiations since October, 1948. The negotiators said in a statement that the "quick settlement of the current dispute is the first breaking away from government intervention in railroad labor disputes in more than four years."

Demonstration Halted

The women are protesting the recent senate passage of a bill raising post-war house rents by 25 per cent.

Pair Executed In Missouri's Gas Chamber

Hall, Paramour Die For Murdering Boy; Impassive To End

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Friday, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Greenlease kidnap killers died side by side in the gas chamber early today, impassive to the end.

At the last, just before the gas chamber closed, U.S. Marshal William D. Tatman asked them if they had anything to tell him.

Carl Austin Hall and his paramour, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, shook their heads. Then the woman said aloud: "No."

It was another of many last-minute attempts to find out what happened to half the record $600,000 ransom paid the slayers of 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease. The money has been missing since capture of the pair.

Chat For 10 Minutes

For 10 minutes the onetime lovers chatted together, smiling and apparently at ease, in a little detention cell just outside the gas chamber.

Hall was smoking a cigarette and he leaned over to give Mrs. Heady a puff.

They were manacled, but held hands while they talked.

Mrs. Heady, who seemed animated, laughed aloud at something said by Marshal Tatman, who sat in front of them as they sat side by side on a cot.

While Mrs. Heady watched, a black blindfold was put over Hall's eyes, tied in back with a double strap.

Then she was blindfolded and they were led into the gas chamber, Hall going first.

Only one mystery of the whole shocking case remained — what happened to half of the $600,000 ransom paid by the boy's multi-millionaire father, Robert C. Greenlease.

Hall "Told Everything"

On his last day Hall repeated to his attorney that he was "absolutely reconciled." He said he had told everything he knew about the money and that his 41-year-old divorced mistress knew nothing about it.

"Nobody got the money away from me until after I was arrested," Hall was quoted as saying by Roy K. Dietrich of Kansas City, his court-appointed lawyer.

Hall made one last effort to absolve his paramour. As he did in his Federal Court trial at Kansas City last month, he asked Dietrich to say "Mrs. Heady is in no way to blame."

It was a fantastic case from the start. Its shocking nature grew in the public mind when it became known the kidnapers planned to kill little Bobby even before Mrs. Heady lured him away from his exclusive Catholic school in Kansas City.

Guam B29 Crash Toll Reaches 19

GUAM, Friday, Dec. 18 (AP)—Two families totaling nine persons were wiped out in the flaming crash of a B29 Superfort into military housing here yesterday. The crash so far has cost 19 lives.

Twelve victims still were in the hospital today.

The major was the last of his family to go. His wife and a daughter succumbed earlier at the hospital and a daughter was killed in their home.

George Jessel Gets "Slow Down" Order

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—George Jessel, 55, sometimes known as the "toastmaster general" of the United States, had a "slow down" order today from his doctors.

He said that, as a result, he will limit his activities to one television program a week starting in 1954.

Jessel has been busy with two TV shows, a radio show, and four or five after dinner speeches and benefits each week.

Mechanic Is Slain In Battery Dispute

FREDERICK, Dec. 17 (AP)—A 27-year-old Negro garage mechanic was shot and killed late today after an argument with a white patron over an automobile battery, Maryland State Police reported.

State Trooper Harold Basore said the shooting occurred in the garage of Charles W. Harris in Buckeystown, five miles south of here, about 5 p.m.

Killed by a .32 caliber bullet which pierced his chest was Luther Herbert Barrington of Route 4, Frederick. Henry Garland Sexton, 46, of the same section, was charged with the shooting.

Two-Headed Baby's Condition Satisfactory

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 17 (AP)—A two-headed boy, now almost six days old, was reported still in "critical but satisfactory" condition in Riley Hospital tonight.

A hospital spokesman said the "critical" tag is kept on the baby only because doctors have virtually no precedents for such a malformation.

Wife Of Leftist Millionaire Leaves U. S. Before Deadline

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Justice Department announced today that Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt Field, wife of the leftist New York millionaire, has left the United States with her two children. She had been given the choice of leaving or being deported.

Her husband, great-great grandson of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, has frequently been described as the financial "angel" of left-wing groups and has been a target of repeated congressional investigations of communism.

Atty. Gen. Brownell said the U.S. Immigration Service has verified that Mrs. Field, a native of Canada, crossed the border into Mexico at El Paso, Tex., on Dec. 7. She was accompanied by her two minor children, Michel and Elise, who, like their mother, are Canadian citizens.

Mrs. Field, 36, was formerly married to Dr. Raymond Boyer, who was convicted in Canada's Soviet spy ring case in 1947.

Mrs. Field was taken into custody earlier this year for deportation proceedings after federal authorities challenged the validity of her entry into this country from Canada.

Last August she fought the case before the Board of Immigration Appeals, but the board turned her down and on Sept. 8 she was notified that she could either leave the country voluntarily or face deportation.

FCC Okays Color TV System Proposed By Industry Group

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today formally approved a color television system which can be received in black-and-white by existing TV sets.

The action made final the proposal announced by the commission earlier this year to adopt the color telecasting standards proposed by the National Television System Committee.

The committee is an industry group in which virtually all major manufacturers co-operated in contributing the best of their color devices for combination use.

The NTSC color plan will become available for commercial use 30 days after publication of today's order in the Federal Register, the government's bulletin. This publication probably will be sometime next week.

The new color system standards will then be formally substituted for the Columbia Broadcasting System color plan which the commission approved for general use in 1950.

CBS color was eventually folded up. It failed to get general acceptance because it involved the use of a mechanical revolving color wheel inside of receivers.

The Columbia plan also encountered the difficulty of not being receivable on existing sets even in black and white without the addition of other special equipment.

The NTSC system, in addition to being receivable on all sets, is all-electronic—that is, without moving equipment.

The commission said the specifications of the approved system "produce a reasonably satisfactory picture with a good over-all picture quality, and are sufficiently flexible to accomodate later improvements and refinements."

The industry has estimated that color receivers with a 12½-inch picture will initially cost about $1,000, but that mass production will eventually bring the cost down.

Dr. W. R. G. Baker, General Electric vice president and chairman of the NTSC, said several months ago that "color for the millions" is probably two to three years away, estimating it will take that much time to get color tubes into real mass production.

In a statement on today's FCC announcement, Dr. Baker said:

"Only a trickle of color television receivers will be manufactured during 1954. It may be years before quantity production can be reached.

"Meanwhile, the entertainment and cultural advantages which television offers now will continue to be available on large screen, high-quality, black-and-white receivers at values never before offered."

Wastrel Son Admits Killing Parents In Toast Of Death

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP) — A slender, wastrel son was quoted tonight as admitting he murdered his parents in a deft toast of death with poisoned champagne cocktails.

For four months the deaths were considered suicide.

Bronx Dist. Atty. George B. Deluca said 20-year-old Harlow Fraden cooked up the amazing death plot because, for years, his mother had accused him of sex perversion.

However, a companion in the plot said the motive was money—a sizable inheritance coming to Fraden.

Young Fraden reportedly served a deadly potion of champagne and cyanide to his parents Aug. 19 in celebration of what was supposed to be his turning over a new leaf. He told his parents he finally was going to work—although he apparently had no intention of doing so.

Deluca said Fraden's mother had chided him as abnormal "as long as he could recall, and before he knew anything about sex."

"This he strongly resented," the district attorney said in a statement. "Fraden further stated he did not kill his parents for personal gain because his parents gave him all the money he wanted."

After the slaying, Fraden wept convincingly at the bier of his mother and father. Then he collected the estimated $150,000 inheritance as their only child and blew a third of it in a wild spending spree. He posed as a millionaire and wrote a lavish will disposing of far more money than he had.

Delicate, poetry-loving Fraden was to be questioned also about the death last Aug. 8 of an uncle and aunt, who suffocated in an apparent accident in a Catskill mountain cabin.

Naegelen Leads French Balloting

VERSAILLES, France, Dec. 17 (AP)—Marcel Naegelen, 61-year-old Socialist ex-governor of Algeria and foe of the U. S.-backed European army plan, led on the first two ballots today in the French Parliament's voting to name a new president of France.

The 932 senators and deputies, sitting jointly in the old Versailles Palace, then put off further balloting until tomorrow.

Majority Vote Necessary

The vote of a majority of the 932 members is necessary to choose the nation's chief of state for a seven-year term. The office is largely ceremonial with little real power.

On the second, with the field whittled down to four men, Premier Joseph Laniel, wealthy industrialist, ran second; Yvon Delbos, a pre-war Foreign minister of the Radical Socialist (moderate) party, ran third; and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, of the Catholic Popular Republican party (PRM), fourth.

Reds Back Naegelen

These were the only four candidates on the second ballot, but the parliamentarians nevertheless gave a few scattered votes to others, including two to the present Socialist President, Vincent Auriol, and six to Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The Communists threw their votes to Naegelen on the second ballot because, they said, "he has stated his opposition to the European army."

President Vincent Auriol, 69, could have the job again simply by nodding his head, but insists he wants to step out at the end of his term Jan. 16.

Two-Headed Baby's Condition Satisfactory

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 17 (AP)—A two-headed boy, now almost six days old, was reported still in "critical but satisfactory" condition in Riley Hospital tonight.

A hospital spokesman said the "critical" tag is kept on the baby only because doctors have virtually no precedents for such a malformation.

Mechanic Is Slain In Battery Dispute

FREDERICK, Dec. 17 (AP)—A 27-year-old Negro garage mechanic was shot and killed late today after an argument with a white patron over an automobile battery, Maryland State Police reported.

State Trooper Harold Basore said the shooting occurred in the garage of Charles W. Harris in Buckeystown, five miles south of here, about 5 p.m.

Killed by a .32 caliber bullet which pierced his chest was Luther Herbert Barrington of Route 4, Frederick. Henry Garland Sexton, 46, of the same section, was charged with the shooting.

Yule Tree Thief Didn't Stop Party

SPARROWBUSH, N. Y., Dec. 18 (AP)—Last night the ladies of the Deer-Park Grange arrived at the local firemen's hall to trim their eight-foot Christmas tree and throw a party for 50 children.

But a thief had been there before them, and made off with the tree and its decorations. He had to cut off two feet of the tree to get it out the door and this section he left behind.

The ladies swallowed their chagrin, dug up some decorations and when the children arrived they found a gayly-bedecked Christmas tree—all two feet of it.

Allies Seek Way To Rescue POWs From Pro-Reds

PANMUNJOM, Friday, Dec. 18 (AP)—United Nations officers studied ways today of getting in touch with 4 Americans and 20 South Koreans reported wanting to quit communism but fearful of knife-wielding pro-Reds in the neutral zone compound. The report came from a South Korean who has just quit the compound.

The Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission scheduled a meeting at 10 a.m. today (8 p.m. Friday, EST) to deal with the stalled explanations to such prisoners.

Something must happen quickly if any of the 22 Americans, 1 Briton and 77 South Koreans still awaiting explanations are to be interviewed. The deadline for explanations is only five days away.

A South Korean, Kim Mun Du, who said he slipped out of the compound while his companions were asleep, told a press conference yesterday he believed that only fear of being stabbed to death held back 4 Americans and 20 South Koreans from returning home.

A Peiping Red radio broadcast insisted, however, that Kim "just walked quietly through the gate" to freedom and that any other prisoner is free to do likewise.

Kim said he crawled through barbed wire in order to escape a camp where leaders brandished crudely made knives to keep all men in line.

U. N. officers viewed Kim's account with some degree of skepticism, saying if Kim could get out so could others.

One U. N. official said, however, that "as long as there is a possible chance that some of the men really want to come back and are held there by intimidation, we must do everything we can to try to reach them."

Kim identified the four Americans by name but only one, that of Cpl. William A. Cowart of Monticello, Ark., was released by Far East Command censors after it was published in the United States.

Charity Racket Hearings Ended

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—Charity racket probers called today for a crackdown on phony solicitors, but appealed to the public to support legitimate charity organizations.

A number of recommendations to curb fraudulent charity pitchmen were put forth as a state legislative committee wound up four days of hearings into campaigns that raised millions of dollars but doled out little to the needy.

"It is clear that the unscrupulous are in the minority," commented State Sen. Bernard Tompkins, Queens Republican and chairman of the committee. "We only ask that the public be more discriminating in giving."

A committee spokesman said the committee would conduct further hearings elsewhere in the state, but that the places and dates had not yet been decided.

BRT And Nation's Railroads Reach Wage Agreement

CHICAGO, Dec. 17 (AP) — Settlement of a wage dispute between the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the nation's railroads was announced tonight in a joint union-management statement.

Reached after seven days of negotiations, the agreement adds 5 cents an hour to present wage rates and ends the cost of living escalator clause provision which has been in effect since April 1, 1951.

The agreements also provides for an additional week vacation for all brotherhood members with 15 or more years of service. That clause will extend their paid vacations to three weeks.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen includes in its membership about half of the total number of employes engaged in the operation of the nation's trains.

No Estimate Of Cost

Neither the brotherhood nor the railroads could make any immediate estimate on the cost of the wage boost which, under the terms of the agreement, became effective yesterday.

The agreement marks the first major railroad wage dispute that has been settled by direct negotiations since October, 1948. The negotiators said in a statement that the "quick settlement of the current dispute is the first breaking away from government intervention in railroad labor disputes in more than four years."

Demonstration Halted

ROME, Dec. 17 (AP) — Several women were injured slightly tonight by police who broke up a demonstration of about 200 housewives in front of the Italian Senate.

The women are protesting the recent senate passage of a bill raising post-war house rents by 25 per cent.

Guam B29 Crash Toll Reaches 19

GUAM, Friday, Dec. 18 (AP)—Two families totaling nine persons were wiped out in the flaming crash of a B29 Superfort into military housing here yesterday. The crash so far has cost 19 lives.

Twelve victims still were in the hospital today.

The major was the last of his family to go. His wife and a daughter succumbed earlier at the hospital and a daughter was killed in their home.

George Jessel Gets "Slow Down" Order

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—George Jessel, 55, sometimes known as the "toastmaster general" of the United States, had a "slow down" order today from his doctors.

He said that, as a result, he will limit his activities to one television program a week starting in 1954.

Jessel has been busy with two TV shows, a radio show, and four or five after dinner speeches and benefits each week.

Wife Of Leftist Millionaire Leaves U. S. Before Deadline

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Justice Department announced today that Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt Field, wife of the leftist New York millionaire, has left the United States with her two children. She had been given the choice of leaving or being deported.

Her husband, great-great grandson of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, has frequently been described as the financial "angel" of left-wing groups and has been a target of repeated congressional investigations of communism.

Atty. Gen. Brownell said the U.S. Immigration Service has verified that Mrs. Field, a native of Canada, crossed the border into Mexico at El Paso, Tex., on Dec. 7. She was accompanied by her two minor children, Michel and Elise, who, like their mother, are Canadian citizens.

Mrs. Field, 36, was formerly married to Dr. Raymond Boyer, who was convicted in Canada's Soviet spy ring case in 1947.

Mrs. Field was taken into custody earlier this year for deportation proceedings after federal authorities challenged the validity of her entry into this country from Canada.

Last August she fought the case before the Board of Immigration Appeals, but the board turned her down and on Sept. 8 she was notified that she could either leave the country voluntarily or face deportation.

FCC Okays Color TV System Proposed By Industry Group

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today formally approved a color television system which can be received in black-and-white by existing TV sets.

The action made final the proposal announced by the commission earlier this year to adopt the color telecasting standards proposed by the National Television System Committee.

The committee is an industry group in which virtually all major manufacturers co-operated in contributing the best of their color devices for combination use.

The NTSC color plan will become available for commercial use 30 days after publication of today's order in the Federal Register, the government's bulletin. This publication probably will be sometime next week.

The new color system standards will then be formally substituted for the Columbia Broadcasting System color plan which the commission approved for general use in 1950.

CBS color was eventually folded up. It failed to get general acceptance because it involved the use of a mechanical revolving color wheel inside of receivers.

The Columbia plan also encountered the difficulty of not being receivable on existing sets even in black and white without the addition of other special equipment.

The NTSC system, in addition to being receivable on all sets, is all-electronic—that is, without moving equipment.

The commission said the specifications of the approved system "produce a reasonably satisfactory picture with a good over-all picture quality, and are sufficiently flexible to accomodate later improvements and refinements."

The industry has estimated that color receivers with a 12½-inch picture will initially cost about $1,000, but that mass production will eventually bring the cost down.

Dr. W. R. G. Baker, General Electric vice president and chairman of the NTSC, said several months ago that "color for the millions" is probably two to three years away, estimating it will take that much time to get color tubes into real mass production.

In a statement on today's FCC announcement, Dr. Baker said:

"Only a trickle of color television receivers will be manufactured during 1954. It may be years before quantity production can be reached.

"Meanwhile, the entertainment and cultural advantages which television offers now will continue to be available on large screen, high-quality, black-and-white receivers at values never before offered."

Wastrel Son Admits Killing Parents In Toast Of Death

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP) — A slender, wastrel son was quoted tonight as admitting he murdered his parents in a deft toast of death with poisoned champagne cocktails.

For four months the deaths were considered suicide.

Bronx Dist. Atty. George B. Deluca said 20-year-old Harlow Fraden cooked up the amazing death plot because, for years, his mother had accused him of sex perversion.

However, a companion in the plot said the motive was money—a sizable inheritance coming to Fraden.

Young Fraden reportedly served a deadly potion of champagne and cyanide to his parents Aug. 19 in celebration of what was supposed to be his turning over a new leaf. He told his parents he finally was going to work—although he apparently had no intention of doing so.

Deluca said Fraden's mother had chided him as abnormal "as long as he could recall, and before he knew anything about sex."

"This he strongly resented," the district attorney said in a statement. "Fraden further stated he did not kill his parents for personal gain because his parents gave him all the money he wanted."

After the slaying, Fraden wept convincingly at the bier of his mother and father. Then he collected the estimated $150,000 inheritance as their only child and blew a third of it in a wild spending spree. He posed as a millionaire and wrote a lavish will disposing of far more money than he had.

Delicate, poetry-loving Fraden was to be questioned also about the death last Aug. 8 of an uncle and aunt, who suffocated in an apparent accident in a Catskill mountain cabin.

Beria Trial May Be Held In Secret With Ex-Soviet Police Boss Absent

Red Press Tells Of "Confession"

MOSCOW, Dec. 17 (AP)—The treason trial of Lavrenty Beria and six alleged henchmen probably will be held in private with the accused themselves absent, legal experts said today.

Observers came to this conclusion after studying a special law of Dec. 1, 1934, which Soviet newspapers announced the former police boss and his co-defendants will be tried.

The law provides, among other things, that the "trial shall take place without the presence of the parties."

It also specifies the court must wind up its investigation of evidence within 10 days, conviction carries the death penalty, and there shall be no appeal.

All Soviet newspapers carried the government announcement that Beria has confessed to plotting against the state and will go on trial with six aides in the police organization he headed for 15 years.

The official announcement said the prosecution had completed its case against Beria, who served as Premier Georgi Malenkov's top deputy until his arrest last June, and that the seven would be tired at a special sitting of the Soviet Supreme Court. No trial date was announced.

Russians expressed surprise in the disclosure that V. N. Merkulov, minister of state control, was one of the defendants. Merkulov had long served as a Beria deputy.

Treason charges also were listed against:

V. G. Dekanozov and S. A. Goglidze, former internal affairs ministers in Georgia, homeland of both Beria and Joseph Stalin; P. Y. Meshik, a former internal affairs minister in the Ukraine; L. E. Vlodzimirsky, described as former head of the investigation division of the MVD (secret police); and B. Z. Kobulov, former deputy internal affairs minister in Georgia.

The announcement accused Beria of using his position to collect "a treacherous group of plotters hostile to the Soviet state." It said the traitorous activities, dated as far back as the Russian civil war of 1918-20, when he "had established links with foreign intelligence services," specifically that of the British.

LEAVES U. S.—Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt Field (above) has voluntarily left the U. S. to avoid being deported, according to an announcement in Washington yesterday by Attorney General Brownell. She crossed the border into Mexico. Validity of her entry from Canada had been challenged. Mrs. Field, whose wealthy husband has figured in numerous investigations of left-wing activities, was formerly married to Dr. Raymond Boyer, who was convicted in Canadian-Soviet spy ring of 1947.

Rudderless Crossing Of Atlantic Completed

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Norwegian America liner Stavangerfjord—the first big passenger ship known to have crossed the greater part of the Atlantic without a rudder—arrived in Oslo tonight. She came in only two days behind schedule.

Capt. Olaf Bjoernstad, a sailor since 1914, described the rudderless crossing as "the worst experience I've ever had at sea."

The Stavangerfjord lost her rudder in a hurricane in the evening hours of Dec. 8 about 1,000 miles—or three days—out of New Yrok where the "Christmas crossing" started.

Since then she traveled 2,050 miles in nine days without a rudder, steering with her twin screws.

Fiji Islanders Serenade Queen

SUVA, Fiji Islands, Friday, Dec. 18 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II was serenaded at 4:30 a.m. today by Fiji Islanders still celebrating yesterday's royal arrival. But she apparently slept through the sing song.

Chanting islanders in traditional grass skirts paraded to the wharf where the Queen and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, were staying aboard the liner Gothic. Squatting on the dockside, the islanders sang native ditties for an hour.

The royal couple starts another busy round of Fiji engagements at 9 a.m. on their second day here. At a royal reception last night Elizabeth—radiant in a blue and silver evening gown—stood with the duke on a flood-lit balcony as the cheers of thousands of islanders echoed from a palm glade below.

The mass tribute climaxed a day in which the Queen quaffed a drink of the local firewater called kava, accepted a gift of whales' teeth and watched grass-skirted warriors do a spear dance.

Hefty Error Made By Check Machine

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—Saul Allen, director of the traffic summons control bureau, shook from an envelope today a $4 overtime parking ticket and an accompanying check. The check was for $100,004.

Morris Zippert, secretary treasurer of a machine tool and hardware firm, had sent it in to cover a fine on an employe's car.

Allen said he's returning the check, and Zippert's firm will try again on its check-writing machine which made the hefty error.

Order Ends Officers' Liquor Experiment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—An order putting all military officers' clubs and messes on government property out of the bottled liquor business was issued by the Defense Department today.

Deputy Defense Secretary Roger Kyes signed a directive which will end a privilege exercised by the Navy for many years and by the Army and Air Force since Dec. 1.

No further purchases of liquor for sale in package or bottle form will be made by the military departments after Jan. 1, Kyes decreed. Officers clubs and messes will be permitted to sell liquor by the bottle until April 1 to dispose of stocks on hand.

Red Suspect May Be Prosecuted Under Smith Act

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—A Senate investigations subcommittee aide said today that evidence of a witness' membership in the Communist party would be presented to the Justice Department as a suggested basis for prosecution.

The aide, Roy M. Cohn, subcommittee chief counsel, said membership in the party with a knowledge of its objectives, and recruiting members, for the party are "clearly" a violation of the Smith Act.

Allegations along these lines were made today against Harry Hyman of New York, himself a witness at today's hearing of the subcommittee, headed by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis).

Hyman formerly worked for Federal Telecommunications Laboratories, Nutley, N. J., which does secret work for the government.

Four other witnesses testified they heard Hyman say he was a member of the Communist party. Two of them said he tried to get them to join it.

Hyman himself swore he never committed a crime.

Cohn was referring to this when he said membership in the party and helping to organize for it violated the Smith Act.

An indictment along these lines still hangs over the 11 Communist leaders convicted in 1949 of conspiracy to teach and advocate overthrow of the U. S. government in violation of the Smith Act.

The indictment, returned at the same time as the one under which they were convicted, accuses the 11 of being members of the Communist party "well knowing" what it taught.

Firemen Won't Forget This Fire

PRINCETON, W. Va., Dec. 17 (AP)—It was only a little fire, but none concerned will forget it for a while.

Princeton Fire Chief W. K. Umberger tells what happened when he led a small crew to the home of Claude Moses to put out a flue fire.

Rushing into the house they met a small dog—name undetermined and ancestry even more so—who took an instant dislike to Umberger. The puppy sank his teeth into the fire chief's trousers. Umberger dislodged him with a few agile steps.

The pooch then turned his attention to Assistant Fire Chief Bill Moxley but Moxley, either less agile or less tolerant than his chief, resorted to stronger tactics. He turned the fire hose on the surprised pup and washed him away under 150 pounds of pressure.

Then Mrs. Moxley, busy carrying water to fling on the fire, fell and dislodged her shoulder. She had to go to the hospital.

As the firemen left, or retreated, the little dog emerged again to yelp his defiance.

Salary Inadequate

Judge Says He Quit Clubs, Fired Maid And Taught Law

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws of the U. S. District Court here testified today that when he went on the federal bench in 1938 he was compelled to resign from two private clubs, discharge his maid and take up early morning and Saturday law teaching.

Judge Laws told a special federal commission studying the adequacy of judicial and congressional salaries that despite these economies he had to spend in the next 15 years $40,000 more than he earned.

Now 62 years old, Judge Laws said his take-home pay today, based on a salary of $15,000 is $1,000 less than it was when he was 29 years old and practicing law.

"The situation of judges, and of course the congress, is most serious," Judge Laws said.

The 18-member commission, set up by Congress, is headed by Bernard G. Segal, a Philadelphia lawyer. It is due to make salary recommendations to Congress by Jan. 15. There is every indication it will advise Congress to vote substantial increases for itself and for federal judges.

Judge Laws apologized to the commission for reciting so much personal history. He said he was much more fortunate than many of the 318 federal judges.

He said he accumulated a modest nest egg during 25 years of private law practice, but has been forced to spend it at the rate of $2,700 a year since 1938. He has managed to send his four children to school and college, he said. His son had to help pay his way through Dartmouth with the aid of a sandwich concession.

After listening to the judge, Loyd Wright of Los Angeles, a commission member, said: "This is shocking and shameful. I want to say it's too bad all the people in this country can't hear your testimony."

Judge Laws said he didn't think "a cent less than a $10,000 raise would give any relief."

State Border Patrol Makes First Arrests

SILVER SPRING, Md., Dec. 17 (AP)—Maryland's Border Patrol, organized to halt illegal importation of liquor from the District of Columbia—where it is cheaper than in Maryland—has made its first arrests.

Robert N. Lucke, agent in charge of the State Alcohol Tax Enforcement Unit, picked up two Silver Spring men last night as they crossed the D.C.-Maryland line.

He said he made the arrest after following an auto along Georgia Ave. in the District and across the state line.

Lucke said the men, both charged with importation of liquor on which no Maryland tax had been paid, were Gomer T. McNeil, 36, and Herbert B. Miracle. They will be given a hearing in police court Jan. 5.

Parolee Admits Slaying Grocer; Claims Accident

BALTIMORE, Dec. 17 (AP)—James Edward Robinson, 22-year-old reformatory parolee, admitted in Criminal Court today that he shot and killed East Baltimore grocer Harry Ezersky but claimed it was an accident.

Robinson testified that he had intended to rob the 44-year-old neighborhood grocer and shot him after Ezersky discovered him hiding in his car.

Ezersky was slain in his automobile on Oct. 6 shortly after closing his store for the day. A total of $1,300 was found in the wallet still on his body.

Robinson, who according to testimony was born in Crownsville State Hospital for the criminal insane and has spent "half his life in state institutions," testified that the robbery attempt was plotted by John Edward Mitchell, a 22-year-old companion who faces trial next in the case.

Both are charged with first degree murder, and the state has asked the death penalty for Robinson. Testimony was completed before an all-male jury today. Final arguments are scheduled for tomorrow.

Now 62 years old, Judge Laws said his take-home pay today, based on a salary of $15,000 is $1,000 less than it was when he was 29 years old and practicing law.

"The situation of judges, and of course the congress, is most serious," Judge Laws said.

The 18-member commission, set up by Congress, is headed by Bernard G. Segal, a Philadelphia lawyer. It is due to make salary recommendations to Congress by Jan. 15. There is every indication it will advise Congress to vote substantial increases for itself and for federal judges.

Judge Laws apologized to the commission for reciting so much personal history. He said he was much more fortunate than many of the 318 federal judges.

He said he accumulated a modest nest egg during 25 years of private law practice, but has been forced to spend it at the rate of $2,700 a year since 1938. He has managed to send his four children to school and college, he said. His son had to help pay his way through Dartmouth with the aid of a sandwich concession.

After listening to the judge, Loyd Wright of Los Angeles, a commission member, said: "This is shocking and shameful. I want to say it's too bad all the people in this country can't hear your testimony."

Judge Laws said he didn't think "a cent less than a $10,000 raise would give any relief."

State Border Patrol Makes First Arrests

SILVER SPRING, Md., Dec. 17 (AP)—Maryland's Border Patrol, organized to halt illegal importation of liquor from the District of Columbia—where it is cheaper than in Maryland—has made its first arrests.

Robert N. Lucke, agent in charge of the State Alcohol Tax Enforcement Unit, picked up two Silver Spring men last night as they crossed the D.C.-Maryland line.

He said he made the arrest after following an auto along Georgia Ave. in the District and across the state line.

Lucke said the men, both charged with importation of liquor on which no Maryland tax had been paid, were Gomer T. McNeil, 36, and Herbert B. Miracle. They will be given a hearing in police court Jan. 5.

Parolee Admits Slaying Grocer; Claims Accident

BALTIMORE, Dec. 17 (AP)—James Edward Robinson, 22-year-old reformatory parolee, admitted in Criminal Court today that he shot and killed East Baltimore grocer Harry Ezersky but claimed it was an accident.

Robinson testified that he had intended to rob the 44-year-old neighborhood grocer and shot him after Ezersky discovered him hiding in his car.

Ezersky was slain in his automobile on Oct. 6 shortly after closing his store for the day. A total of $1,300 was found in the wallet still on his body.

Robinson, who according to testimony was born in Crownsville State Hospital for the criminal insane and has spent "half his life in state institutions," testified that the robbery attempt was plotted by John Edward Mitchell, a 22-year-old companion who faces trial next in the case.

Both are charged with first degree murder, and the state has asked the death penalty for Robinson. Testimony was completed before an all-male jury today. Final arguments are scheduled for tomorrow.

Arrest Of Gen. Merkulov Is Biggest Revelation In Indictment Of Beria

By TOM WHITNEY

Editor's Note— An AP correspondent in Moscow for six years, Whitney left the Soviet capital at the end of last July after covering the news of the Beria arrest.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP) — The biggest revelation so far in the Beria indictment just published in Moscow is the arrest, indictment and confession along with Beria of army Gen. Vsevolod Merkulov.

It had not previously been known that Merkulov was under arrest and had been removed from his high post of minister of state control in the Malenkov government.

The Soviet press had said nothing about Merkulov's tie-up with ex-police boss Beria or his dismissal.

Merkulov for years was Beria's chief deputy in police and intelligence affairs of the U.S.S.R., including the entire period of World War II.

He became Beria's first deputy commissar of internal affairs (police and intelligence—the NKVD) shortly after Beria was made commissar by Stalin in 1938.

In this position he assisted Beria in the great 1937-38 purge and the people who were in charge of it including Yezhov, Beria's predecessor as commissar of internal affairs.

In 1941 Merkulov was named commissar of state security. During the war years and till 1946 Merkulov under Beria ran secret police and intelligence operations.

He was made an army general in 1945 at the same time as Beria was made a marshal of the Soviet Union.

In the summer of 1946 it became known in diplomatic circles in Moscow that Merkulov had been fired as minister (in early 1946 commissars were renamed ministers in the U.S.S.R. and their commissariats christened ministries) of state security.

For a time Merkulov fell out of view but reappeared in a year or so as "administrator of Soviet property abroad" — a post in which he exercised control over factories and enterprises in Eastern Europe and Eastern Germany confiscated by the Soviet government after the war. It was clear this was a position at Beria's disposal.

Little more was heard about him until October, 1952 when he replaced the deceased Lev Mekhlis as minister of state control.

Merkulov remained minister of state control in the Malenkov Cabinet announced after Stalin's death last march.

In this post he had great powers. He could investigate any government enterprise or organization to see whether its books were in order and whether it was carrying out government instructions and rules. And he could take action after investigation against any persons found guilty of misuses, embezzlement, speculation or nonfulfillment of instructions and rules.

There is no explanation why the Soviet government previously had avoided so carefully announcing Merkulov's arrest. It appears to have been a carefully kept secret until today.

50 Years From Kitty Hawk

The wing width was four feet and the total wingspread was 40 feet. The four-cylinder engine, a homemade affair weighing 180 pounds, developed 12 or 13 horsepower. Two propellers were mounted at the back. There was a horizontal rudder in front, a vertical rudder well to the rear. With the engine and either Orv or Will aboard, the whole contraption weighed only about 750 pounds.

They had named it the Kitty Hawk, after the unpretentious seacoast settlement to which they had been coming off and on for several years, during slack times in the bicycle business, to fly their kites and gliders. It rested on a 60-foot, four-sectioned monorail track which had been taken off the nearby dune and laid along the level sand. The Kitty Hawk was to be sent along the rail by a catapult with weights.

The two brothers were in their thirties. Neither had been to college, and all their scientific knowledge they had dug up for themselves, by reading, by correspondence, by consultation with scientists. They were modest to the point of self-effacement, self-sufficient (neither ever married), and very thorough.

Also their minds were stubbornly empirical. They checked all existing concepts about flying and rejected the many that were not verified by their own experiments. They built a little air tunnel in their bicycle shop in Dayton and studied what happened in it to several hundred different types of wing surfaces. They tabulated their data, pored over the tabulations, convinced themselves that if an engine-propelled machine were only built the right way, it would rise in the air and stay in the air by the pressure of air currents against its wing or wings.

Studying the winds all the time, they made and flew gliders, finding out what was wrong with each and then with its successor. They discovered that you balanced your lift, regardless of the wind, if you could raise the angle of the wing at one side and lower it at the other.

It was the morning of December 17, 1903. The brothers had come to Kitty Hawk, where the air currents were strong and steady, almost three months before, but one thing after another had gone wrong.

Their engine failed to transmit enough power to the propellers, and had to be rebuilt. The propeller shafts broke under strain, and new and stronger ones had to be constructed—back in Dayton. They broke the little rollers on which the machine would go down the glider, then the tail-frame, then the rudder.

But everything was finally ready on the 17th. Anybody and everybody interested had been invited to come and see, but only five persons showed up, three from the local life-saving station. And the next day only half a dozen papers were to give enough credence to the account of the flight to publish it.

With Orville lying flat on the frame to decrease wind resistance, the Kitty Hawk slid 40 feet along the glider, so slowly that Wilbur could run alongside to steady it, then rose into a 27-mile wind, stayed in the air for 12 seconds, came down 120 feet from the point of ascent and at a level as high as that point. The flight was roller-coasterish, partly because of inexperience in piloting.

Three more flights were made that day before a gust of wind turned the Kitty Hawk over while it was on the ground and wrecked it. But the last of those four flights had been for almost one-sixth of a mile and almost a full minute. In the words of the resolution of Congress commemorating the occasion, the Wright brothers had made "the world's first successful controlled powered flight in a heavier-than-air craft."

Manpower—The Key

As Defense Secretary Wilson sees it, the military's share of the national budget during the 1954-55 fiscal year hinges on the number of personnel in the armed forces at that time. Apparently persistent combings and recombings of the defense budget estimates by the fiscal divisions of the individual services are meeting diminishing returns.

So, Mr. Wilson has ordered the Army, Navy and Marine Corps to take another 10 per cent personnel cut. The new reduction does not apply to the Air Corps.

Reaction from the services affected has been as fast as a retaliatory air strike. The Army was already on record as opposing the personnel cut ordered for next June. Now it is ordered to drop an additional 140,000 men. Similarly the Navy is objecting to cuts which would bring its overall complement down to 670,000 by June 1955, compared to the 794,000 which were "on board" as of last June.

Marine manpower will be cut to 207,000 from just under 250,000. They have been ordered to keep their three ground divisions and three air wings at top effectiveness despite the cuts.

Mr. Wilson has stated publicly that the services can get along well enough and operate their tanks, ships and planes effectively with fewer people all around. Mr. Wilson and his aides have been particularly critical of the large support and housekeeping forces which the services maintain to backstop their actual combat forces.

Mr. Wilson takes full responsibility for the manpower cuts and says, in effect, that with a little more efficiency a smaller defense personnel can be as effective as a larger force.

Citations Of Merit

In keeping with the geniality that suffuses the atmosphere at this time of year, it has become customary to speak gratefully of those who bore the brunt of the holiday pressures.

Their ranks are large: Policemen who must direct holiday traffic; the salesclerks who must stand hour after weary hour, smiling all the while at customers in varied humor; postal employes who must cope with Christmas mail that is not always legibly or accurately addressed.

But in the seasonal citations for merit some others may be overlooked. Mothers and fathers, whose unselfish efforts make Christmas joyful for the millions of children, deserve more than casual commendation, especially if they must do much with little.

And gallantry is the word for many parents who are turning cheerful faces to the world while their hearts are in Korea or Japan or Germany or a remote Arctic outpost. For them and for all the lonely and bereaved, facing Christmas takes courage.

How To Keep Well

For Hypertensives Only

There are many reasons why blood pressure goes up. The most common is narrowing of the arteries because of spasm or arteriosclerosis. The flow of blood thru the channels is hindered, which means that pressure must be increased to overcome the resistance offered by the small opening in the blood vessels. What causes this constriction? Hardening of the arteries is a degenerative process that comes with age, and despite all that has been said and written about cholesterol, to our knowledge, the condition is not reversible.

But in the absence of arteriosclerosis, what makes the vessels contract? Their size is governed by the nervous system and constriction occurs with excitement or fear. The rise in tension varies but we now know that individuals who develop the highest readings during excitement and anxiety are more likely to develop high blood pressure in the future. These hyperreactors are helped by drugs that relax the mind and dilate the vessels.

There are innumerable products of this type including sedatives, the xanthine and nitrite preparations, priscoline, and hexamenthonium. During the past decade we have witnessed the resurrection of a series of ancient remedies. The veratrum alkaloids stem from Egypt and have been employed for centuries in the treatment of heart disease and hypertension. The original compound has been broken up into its active constituents of which veriloid is the most powerful of the group. Rauwolfia was used in India before the Christian era and was prized by ancient healers because of its sedative effect. The drug, subjected to modern research, was found to have a moderate effect upon hypertension. A more definite response occurred when veratrum was used in combination. These products have the advantage of being relatively safe.

High blood pressure also has been treated surgically via sympathectomy, in which the nerves leading to many of the blood vessels in the body are severed. After the operation the blood pressure falls and the arteries remain dilated. But the procedure is not infallable and after many years of study, physicians have found it of no value in 50 per cent; there is a fair response in 25 per cent; and a good response is obtained in the remainder.

All these remedies are aimed at counteracting the most common origin of hypertension. Little progress has been made with the other sources because they are difficult to relieve. This is particularly true when the blood pressure rises as a result of a heart lesion. Bright's disease, polycystic kidneys, and certain glandular disorders. There are exceptions, such as overactivity of the thyroid or tumor of the adrenal glands. High blood pressure sufferers get along best by making an attempt to find the cause before starting an aimless course of treatment.

UTERINE TUMOR

R. G. writes: Should a tumor on the uterus be removed because of its size even though there is no pain?

REPLY

Size is no criterion unless it is greatly enlarged. On the other hand, pain seldom occurs and in this respect cannot be considered the sole reason why surgery is advised. In most instances there is bleeding, pressure, or the physician is not certain whether the tumor is benign or malignant.

LESIONS STRAIN

M. O. writes: Why does a person with a heart murmur have to decrease his activities?

REPLY

Curtailment is not always necessary because some heart murmurs are incidental noises that have nothing to do with leakage or other abnormalities. Restrictions are advised when the heart is affected because the old pump is working against a handicap and, unless this is done, the ticker enlarges.

WIFE OR SIMIAN?

Mrs. J. D. writes: My husband purchased a monkey which he insists on keeping as a house pet. After having it a couple of weeks we both developed sores on the arms and legs. I also have noticed an irritation in my ears. Furthermore, it makes me nauseated. Can you help me to make my husband understand that the animal is responsible for these symptoms?

REPLY

Since the monkey is affecting your health, it is about time that you make your husband decide whether you are going to stay and the monkey is to leave or vice versa.

SNORING HUSBAND

Mrs. K. W. writes: My husband's snoring drives me to distraction. Is there any sure cure for snoring?

REPLY

No, unless sleeping in separate rooms solves your problem. The latest remedy is the head halter which draws the head back to keep the air lanes open.

Gilt-Edged Clerical Staff Helped Ike With His Atom Speech; Alben Barkley Stole Show From Adlai Stevenson At Philadelphia

WASHINGTON — John Foster Dulles has performed a lot of diplomatic chores, but never before has she been given the job of operating a stapling machine. That, however, was what he did over the Atlantic Ocean en route from Bermuda. With him as a co-clerical worker was Admiral Lewis Strauss plus one of the most distinguished secretarial staffs ever to do paper work.

What happened was that Ike was late in polishing up his famed atomic energy speech. Even while flying to New York, he applied the last finishing touches. As he did so, his secretary, Mrs. Ann Whitman, copied it out on a large-type typewriter, so the President could read it easily. Simultaneously, Mary Caffrey, Jim Hagerty's secretary, cut the mimeograph stencil.

In the rear of the plane, Hagerty himself ran the mimeograph machine. C. D. Jackson, who largely wrote the speech, put the pages together. Admiral Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, helped him, while Dulles stapled the pages.

Dulles was a little slow, however, and only 200 copies of the speech were finished when the Columbine landed. So the Secret Service grabbed copies of the stencil, rushed them to the U.N. mimeograph room, where more copies were ground out of the speech which had been billed—and was—one of the most momentous of the Eisenhower administration.

Barkley Stole Show

Not much of what he said got into the papers because it was off the cuff with no mimeographed text, but Alben Barkley's spicy humor was the smash hit of the Democratic dinner in Philadelphia.

Slyly referring to the way the Democrats backed away from him at the Chicago convention last year, Barkley said:

"When they asked me to come here, they told me I was to be toastmaster. But at 6:30, Steve Mitchell called and said Senator Francis Myers was to take that job. It wasn't the first time the Democratic party has switched from me."

The crowd roared.

"I'm now 76 years old," said the ex-veep. "In Cairo about a year ago I met an Arab fortune teller out at the Pyramids who predicted I would live to be 105. That's one Arab I'm cooperating with very closely.

"Last year when Eisenhower won by such a big margin, I figured the Democrats would not come back for a long time," continued the venerable Kentuckian, "but in recent months I've begun to change my mind.

"The situation reminds me of a husband in Paris whose wife died and afterward he discovered she had been receiving the attentions of another gentleman who appeared at the funeral, weeping. The husband was restrained in his grief, but the other man was not. He could hardly control himself. After the coffin was finally lowered into the grave, the husband patted the other man on the back and said: 'Don't feel too bad, old pal. I'll marry again soon'."

That, implied Barkley, was how the Democrats are cheering up the Republicans today—with the promise of being elected again soon.

Washington Whirl

Attorney General Brownell's 17-year-old daughter, Joan, is practicing what her father preaches. Accidentally bursting into a Negro church, she discovered she was the only white person present, sat down and stayed for the entire service. . . . After War Claims Chairman Dan Cleary passed away, President Eisenhower was so anxious to replace the other two Democratic commissioners that he wrote a curt letter dismissing them while they were out attending Cleary's funeral. . . . The President occasionally drops into the Army-Navy Club for unannounced visits with his old cronies. As a result, the Secret Service has run a security check on all the club's employes . . . . Mamie Eisenhower has promised to swing the champagne bottle at the launching of the Navy's first atomic sub. . . . Senator McCarthy made a big point of the fact that Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor's service record was marked with a red "flag." This column can report that McCarthy's own record at the Pentagon is similarly "flagged". . . Georgia's scrupulous Senator Dick Russell, leader of the Southern bloc, is so burned up at Republicans that there's no chance of forming another GOP - Southern Democratic coalition next session. Russell is sore over the Eisenhower administration's handling of the farm problem, its use of FBI files to attack the Democrats, and the GOP drive to eliminate segregation.

Cattle Smuggling

Though a little slow in moving, the Eisenhower administration played no favorites in prosecuting the smugglers of $1,000,000 worth of Charolais cattle into Louisiana from a hoof-and-mouth disease infected part of Mexico. Alphe Broussard, the man who brought the prize cattle, has now been indicted; also Antonio Enrique Gilly, the man who sold the cattle to him; and William L. Babb, the man who actually did the smuggling.

John Minor Wisdom, Eisenhower's No. 1 political adviser in Louisiana, was retained as attorney for Broussard, but defended the case over-the-table, pulled no wires under the table.

Inside The Pentagon

The Chemical Corps has built an imitation A-bomb, made of smoke-producing chemicals, white phosphorous grenades, nitro starch, napalm, sand and gravel. When exploded, it shoots a column of smoke into the air with a mushroom-shaped cloud at the top. The idea is to simulate an atomic explosion and add realism to battle maneuvers. . . . There's increasing pressure inside the Navy to convert most of the nation's battleships into guided missile launchers. . . . Gen. Curtis LeMay is planning a "world series" in bombing. His best bombing crews will compete to determine which crew is the world's bombing champ. . . . The Army has successfully tested airborne TV to spot artillery targets. The artillery crews were able to adjust their fire and hit the targets, simply by watching the TV screen. . . . India has threatened a military alliance with Communist China, if the United States goes ahead and signs a military pact with Pakistan in return for bases along the Soviet border. . . . The Communists have definitely been building up the North Korean air force in violation of the truce. U.S. Intelligence has learned that little North Korea now has a powerful, modern air force, totaling 300 jet planes. Fifty of these are light jet bombers.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

On A Plane

Most plane riders like to sit quietly and read or ponder, but now that some of the larger planes have a section in the tail where it is permissible to smoke a cigar or a pipe, something of the atmosphere of the club car develops and it is good. The cigar or pipe smoker usually is also a talker.

The club car atmosphere is one of argument, drunk or sober, and sooner or later everybody gets into it with varying degrees of knowledge and wisdom. In a country in which everybody is entitled to express his opinion, whether he has ever done an hour's work to justify having an opinion, it is possible to hop, skip and jump from this to that and the time passes pleasantly.

Curiously, there is less talk about Eisenhower than about McCarthy, less about taxes this year than about spies—and all this is pro and con. I was traveling to and from New York and Chicago immediately after the Bermuda Conference and the President's speech, "Operation Candor," but few raised the subject either in the plane or anywhere else. What seemed to be uppermost in most people's minds, at that moment, was what would come of the fight between Eisenhower and McCarthy, what was the Canadian game about Gouzenko, what is the truth about Fort Monmouth, why did not the FBI catch all the spies and put them in jail, is McCarthy running for President, will there be a third party, etc., etc., along these lines.

To say, as Adlai Stevenson remarked in a speech, that our people have fears is an understatement. Our people are, on the whole, not only afraid; they are disgusted. Stevenson ought to know because in his State of Illinois the disgust is so thick, it can be cut like a cheese-cake. And the disgust has nothing to do with Eisenhower or Truman, much less with Stevenson, but with both political parties, which, in the minds of too many, are guilty not only of mismanagement but of failing to disclose mismanagement. There is a growing feeling in the land among the citizens that the politicians of both parties are in a conspiracy to cover up the mistakes made by any politician.

This lack of confidence in the leadership of both parties is what makes Joe McCarthy so interesting to so many. He is being discussed even by those who dislike his personality and the way he does things.

But these discussions go a little further. Many businessmen cannot understand the combination of Republican and Democratic leaders who, in order to pursue a foreign policy that does not produce the results hoped for, are now promoting an international trade policy which is already being felt by a large number of American industries. Already the coal, oil, chemical, electrical equipment, lace, costume jewelry and other industries fear that they will be put out of business, that there is already a clinical indication of unemployment, and that sooner or later, Congress will be faced by the good, old American struggle over the tariff, with, however, this anomaly that a Republican administration may be supporting the concept of free trade while the Democrats will be demanding legislation protecting particular commodities.

It is this switch in position that often arouses citizens to wonder whether either of the two major political parties stands for anything as a party. If both parties are identical in practices, those who need to or desire to express a contrary point of view will have no avenue for expression except in left-wing groups coordinated by the Communists or as extremists on the right. The two-party system often breaks down because the parties cease to have meaning and become nothing more than collections of ambitious personalities.

The greatest value of Robert A. Taft to the Republican party was that in the years when Roosevelt and Truman tried to destroy that party by pleas for what they called unity, he adhered to a set of traditional principles which men and women could support because they believed in them. No such sharp demarcation of principle is apparent in these days and in conversations among the businessmen I meet over the country, the disappointment is being expressed in no uncertain terms: no one knows how to sit on both sides of a table at the same time.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—This is an age of cruel indifference toward some of those human beings who go forth to make the maximum sacrifice for their country.

The story of the forgotten 944 Americans whom the Chines Communists have refused to return is a tragic example of how officialdom shrugs its shoulders and, fearful of offenditng allies, does nothing about the American boys who were supposed to have been returned when the Korean truce was signed.

There are 944 of them—separate and distinct from the 22 who have been "brain washed" at the repatriation camp. These 944 Americans were spirited away to hiding places behind the iron curtain because they are technicians valuable to the Communists. This happened just before the truce came.

"Political Conference" Unlikely

The Korean truce agreement pledged that all prisoners should be returned. The American government knew about the 944 and still kept on talking at Panmunjom. Now the talks are lagging and the "political conference," which was hailed as the great sequel to the armistice, is apparently not to be held—no time or place for it has been fixed, and there is no sign that such a conference will ever be called.

Meanwhile, the United States government—which once upon a time would take drastic measures to secure respect for its troops—now says nothing about the 944 Americans still held by the Communists in flagrant violation of the armistice terms.

Dispatches from Panmunjom show that out of the 944 Americans, there are about 312 from the U. S. Air Force, 19 Marines and three Navy men and about 610 ground troops. The government here knows a lot about them, and so do the officials of the U. N. command in the Far East. But the whole thing has been soft-pedaled. It is as if the American government were afraid to let the people in this country know the facts because some might demand that action be taken. The facts concerning the prisoners have been gathered from fellow prisoners who have been returned in recent months and from other sources. Many of the missing Americans are technicians who, under compulsion, can be forced to help the Communists on the instruments of modern war such as are involved in airborne and ground operations.

The Americans who were returned at Panmunjom have been intensively questioned, and the data gathered in a comprehensive manner. Most of the missing now have been identified. It is known they wanted to come home. But the Communists, just before the fighting stopped, took them away from Korea.

Except for an Army communique last September, there has been no official protest or anything said publicly about the matter. Military men in the Far East refer to the missing men now as a "diplomatic problem." State Department officials say the missing men are not yet under their jurisdiction, and will not be until it is known whether there is to be a "political conference" to attempt to settle the Korean questions. It's a buck-passing fiasco.

The Communists doubtless expect to use the missing prisoners as pawns—as a means of forcing admission of Red China into the U. N., or the withdrawal of United Nations troops from Korea.

One-Way Diplomacy

This humiliating story is well known in official circles. But there is a callousness nowadays about such things. The Dulles statement not long ago, confessing that it is difficult to do the right thing for America nowadays bacause our allies might be offended, was made apropos of criticism that the European allies were continuing to trade with the Communists. One wonders how long it is going to be before boys who are drafted are going to ask if they are to be sent to battle in "local wars" and then abandoned. For the troops that went to Korea were not permitted to use maximum power to win the victory, as recommended by General MacArthur. This was because our allies did not approve.

With all the enthusiasm manifested by so many Americans for the U. N., that organization doesn't seem to care a bit, either, about the 944 Americans held captive and forced into slavery while fighting under the United Nations banner. The families of the missing Americans do care, however, and maybe some other Americans do, too. The problem of the 944 Americans cannot be suppressed. It is an example of the moral cowardice of present-day diplomacy in alliances that work only one way—the sending of money and supplies to allies without any reciprocal agreement to defend the rights of American citizens who went to war in Korea in their behalf.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS) — Some momentous events will hatch in 1954, if "The Old Farmer's Almanac" hasn't taken me for a big city rube.

Mars is going to snuggle up to within 40,000,000 miles June 24, 1954. Residents of Anarctica will see an eclipse of the sun January 4. Promoters of the various bowl football games will be relieved to learn that January 1 "will be cold but clear." Labor Day, 1954, will be "cool and nice all weekend."

The almanac for '54 came up with some dingers in its "Anecdotes & Pleasantries" department. Hold your sides:

Si and Hiram were talking shop. "I have without doubt the laziest rooster in the world," boosted Si.

"Just how lazy is he, Si?"

"Well, he ain't never crowed in his life. He just waits for another rooster to crow — and then he nods his head."

If you don't think that's funny, how about this sockdolger:

"Some years ago, a friend of mine had a red fox hitched in his yard. Among other things he fed him bread and milk and supposed he ate it. At the same time he kept losing hens, but as the fox was hitched he didn't suspect him. One day his wife happened to see the fox chew his bread and milk, and then spread the bread around. When a hen came up to get the bread, the fox caught her." — Arthur Brown in the American Agriculturist.

Yes sir, she's packed with interesting stuff like that — and has been since she was founded 162 years ago. The almanac isn't all bucolic sweetness and light, either. Take the farmer's calendar for August, 1954, for instance:

"Don't take your bull for granted. He's the most dangerous animal in the world, and a ring in his nose doesn't make him a safe bet. There is no such thing as a safe bull in pasture. . . ."

And there's a long range warning to the sweating August farmer:

"Watch how you swing that axe — particularly on frozen wood. It can bite you. Don't cut timber in a high wind."

Won't have to tell me that twice.

The opinion in Washington is that Congress will offer few if any obstacles to the Eisenhower plan to create a pool of atomic materials for the peaceful good of all. The debate, if any, will center around Russia — whether it comes in or stays out of the plan. The expectation is that the Reds will try to make a few changes in the Eisenhower plan which, if accepted by the President, will enable them to tell their captive peoples that it is a Russian idea.

Eisenhower seems determined to push ahead for the creation of this atom agency even if the Russians denounce it and take no part in it. He would prefer the Russians to take part. But if they don't, and the member nations enter into an era of atomic welfare springing from the plan, it will give the peoples behind the Iron Curtain a vivid view of how their masters handicap them.

The Eisenhower plan would speed up one of the great needs of this atomic era: The need for more officials and business and professional men to learn about the facts of atomic life. As AEC Commissioner Thomas Murray said recently, the men who wrote the U. N. Charter in 1945 saddled the world with an obsolete testament because none of them had been told that an atomic bomb had been created and was about to alter the course of war and peace.

MacArthur and Nimitz, fighting a titanic war in the Pacific, were not told of the existence of the A-bomb until a few days before the first one was dropped on Hiroshima—and then were told chiefly because orders had to be issued to keep conventional bombers and other planes out of that area. John Foster Dulles, who helped write the U. N. Charter and has held many important jobs of a policy-making nature, was not told all the facts about our A-bomb production, size of stockpile and new weapons until last February.

50 Years From Kitty Hawk

The wing width was four feet and the total wingspread was 40 feet. The four-cylinder engine, a homemade affair weighing 180 pounds, developed 12 or 13 horsepower. Two propellers were mounted at the back. There was a horizontal rudder in front, a vertical rudder well to the rear. With the engine and either Orv or Will aboard, the whole contraption weighed only about 750 pounds.

They had named it the Kitty Hawk, after the unpretentious seacoast settlement to which they had been coming off and on for several years, during slack times in the bicycle business, to fly their kites and gliders. It rested on a 60-foot, four-sectioned monorail track which had been taken off the nearby dune and laid along the level sand. The Kitty Hawk was to be sent along the rail by a catapult with weights.

The two brothers were in their thirties. Neither had been to college, and all their scientific knowledge they had dug up for themselves, by reading, by correspondence, by consultation with scientists. They were modest to the point of self-effacement, self-sufficient (neither ever married), and very thorough.

Also their minds were stubbornly empirical. They checked all existing concepts about flying and rejected the many that were not verified by their own experiments. They built a little air tunnel in their bicycle shop in Dayton and studied what happened in it to several hundred different types of wing surfaces. They tabulated their data, pored over the tabulations, convinced themselves that if an engine-propelled machine were only built the right way, it would rise in the air and stay in the air by the pressure of air currents against its wing or wings.

Studying the winds all the time, they made and flew gliders, finding out what was wrong with each and then with its successor. They discovered that you balanced your lift, regardless of the wind, if you could raise the angle of the wing at one side and lower it at the other.

It was the morning of December 17, 1903. The brothers had come to Kitty Hawk, where the air currents were strong and steady, almost three months before, but one thing after another had gone wrong.

Their engine failed to transmit enough power to the propellers, and had to be rebuilt. The propeller shafts broke under strain, and new and stronger ones had to be constructed—back in Dayton. They broke the little rollers on which the machine would go down the glider, then the tail-frame, then the rudder.

But everything was finally ready on the 17th. Anybody and everybody interested had been invited to come and see, but only five persons showed up, three from the local life-saving station. And the next day only half a dozen papers were to give enough credence to the account of the flight to publish it.

With Orville lying flat on the frame to decrease wind resistance, the Kitty Hawk slid 40 feet along the glider, so slowly that Wilbur could run alongside to steady it, then rose into a 27-mile wind, stayed in the air for 12 seconds, came down 120 feet from the point of ascent and at a level as high as that point. The flight was roller-coasterish, partly because of inexperience in piloting.

Three more flights were made that day before a gust of wind turned the Kitty Hawk over while it was on the ground and wrecked it. But the last of those four flights had been for almost one-sixth of a mile and almost a full minute. In the words of the resolution of Congress commemorating the occasion, the Wright brothers had made "the world's first successful controlled powered flight in a heavier-than-air craft."

Manpower—The Key

As Defense Secretary Wilson sees it, the military's share of the national budget during the 1954-55 fiscal year hinges on the number of personnel in the armed forces at that time. Apparently persistent combings and recombings of the defense budget estimates by the fiscal divisions of the individual services are meeting diminishing returns.

So, Mr. Wilson has ordered the Army, Navy and Marine Corps to take another 10 per cent personnel cut. The new reduction does not apply to the Air Corps.

Reaction from the services affected has been as fast as a retaliatory air strike. The Army was already on record as opposing the personnel cut ordered for next June. Now it is ordered to drop an additional 140,000 men. Similarly the Navy is objecting to cuts which would bring its overall complement down to 670,000 by June 1955, compared to the 794,000 which were "on board" as of last June.

Marine manpower will be cut to 207,000 from just under 250,000. They have been ordered to keep their three ground divisions and three air wings at top effectiveness despite the cuts.

Mr. Wilson has stated publicly that the services can get along well enough and operate their tanks, ships and planes effectively with fewer people all around. Mr. Wilson and his aides have been particularly critical of the large support and housekeeping forces which the services maintain to backstop their actual combat forces.

Mr. Wilson takes full responsibility for the manpower cuts and says, in effect, that with a little more efficiency a smaller defense personnel can be as effective as a larger force.

Citations Of Merit

In keeping with the geniality that suffuses the atmosphere at this time of year, it has become customary to speak gratefully of those who bore the brunt of the holiday pressures.

Their ranks are large: Policemen who must direct holiday traffic; the salesclerks who must stand hour after weary hour, smiling all the while at customers in varied humor; postal employes who must cope with Christmas mail that is not always legibly or accurately addressed.

But in the seasonal citations for merit some others may be overlooked. Mothers and fathers, whose unselfish efforts make Christmas joyful for the millions of children, deserve more than casual commendation, especially if they must do much with little.

And gallantry is the word for many parents who are turning cheerful faces to the world while their hearts are in Korea or Japan or Germany or a remote Arctic outpost. For them and for all the lonely and bereaved, facing Christmas takes courage.

For Hypertensives Only

There are many reasons why blood pressure goes up. The most common is narrowing of the arteries because of spasm or arteriosclerosis. The flow of blood thru the channels is hindered, which means that pressure must be increased to overcome the resistance offered by the small opening in the blood vessels. What causes this constriction? Hardening of the arteries is a degenerative process that comes with age, and despite all that has been said and written about cholesterol, to our knowledge, the condition is not reversible.

But in the absence of arteriosclerosis, what makes the vessels contract? Their size is governed by the nervous system and constriction occurs with excitement or fear. The rise in tension varies but we now know that individuals who develop the highest readings during excitement and anxiety are more likely to develop high blood pressure in the future. These hyperreactors are helped by drugs that relax the mind and dilate the vessels.

There are innumerable products of this type including sedatives, the xanthine and nitrite preparations, priscoline, and hexamenthonium. During the past decade we have witnessed the resurrection of a series of ancient remedies. The veratrum alkaloids stem from Egypt and have been employed for centuries in the treatment of heart disease and hypertension. The original compound has been broken up into its active constituents of which veriloid is the most powerful of the group. Rauwolfia was used in India before the Christian era and was prized by ancient healers because of its sedative effect. The drug, subjected to modern research, was found to have a moderate effect upon hypertension. A more definite response occurred when veratrum was used in combination. These products have the advantage of being relatively safe.

High blood pressure also has been treated surgically via sympathectomy, in which the nerves leading to many of the blood vessels in the body are severed. After the operation the blood pressure falls and the arteries remain dilated. But the procedure is not infallable and after many years of study, physicians have found it of no value in 50 per cent; there is a fair response in 25 per cent; and a good response is obtained in the remainder.

All these remedies are aimed at counteracting the most common origin of hypertension. Little progress has been made with the other sources because they are difficult to relieve. This is particularly true when the blood pressure rises as a result of a heart lesion. Bright's disease, polycystic kidneys, and certain glandular disorders. There are exceptions, such as overactivity of the thyroid or tumor of the adrenal glands. High blood pressure sufferers get along best by making an attempt to find the cause before starting an aimless course of treatment.

UTERINE TUMOR

R. G. writes: Should a tumor on the uterus be removed because of its size even though there is no pain?

REPLY

Size is no criterion unless it is greatly enlarged. On the other hand, pain seldom occurs and in this respect cannot be considered the sole reason why surgery is advised. In most instances there is bleeding, pressure, or the physician is not certain whether the tumor is benign or malignant.

LESIONS STRAIN

M. O. writes: Why does a person with a heart murmur have to decrease his activities?

REPLY

Curtailment is not always necessary because some heart murmurs are incidental noises that have nothing to do with leakage or other abnormalities. Restrictions are advised when the heart is affected because the old pump is working against a handicap and, unless this is done, the ticker enlarges.

WIFE OR SIMIAN?

Mrs. J. D. writes: My husband purchased a monkey which he insists on keeping as a house pet. After having it a couple of weeks we both developed sores on the arms and legs. I also have noticed an irritation in my ears. Furthermore, it makes me nauseated. Can you help me to make my husband understand that the animal is responsible for these symptoms?

REPLY

Since the monkey is affecting your health, it is about time that you make your husband decide whether you are going to stay and the monkey is to leave or vice versa.

SNORING HUSBAND

Mrs. K. W. writes: My husband's snoring drives me to distraction. Is there any sure cure for snoring?

REPLY

No, unless sleeping in separate rooms solves your problem. The latest remedy is the head halter which draws the head back to keep the air lanes open.

Gilt-Edged Clerical Staff Helped Ike With His Atom Speech; Alben Barkley Stole Show From Adlai Stevenson At Philadelphia

WASHINGTON — John Foster Dulles has performed a lot of diplomatic chores, but never before has she been given the job of operating a stapling machine. That, however, was what he did over the Atlantic Ocean en route from Bermuda. With him as a co-clerical worker was Admiral Lewis Strauss plus one of the most distinguished secretarial staffs ever to do paper work.

What happened was that Ike was late in polishing up his famed atomic energy speech. Even while flying to New York, he applied the last finishing touches. As he did so, his secretary, Mrs. Ann Whitman, copied it out on a large-type typewriter, so the President could read it easily. Simultaneously, Mary Caffrey, Jim Hagerty's secretary, cut the mimeograph stencil.

In the rear of the plane, Hagerty himself ran the mimeograph machine. C. D. Jackson, who largely wrote the speech, put the pages together. Admiral Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, helped him, while Dulles stapled the pages.

Dulles was a little slow, however, and only 200 copies of the speech were finished when the Columbine landed. So the Secret Service grabbed copies of the stencil, rushed them to the U.N. mimeograph room, where more copies were ground out of the speech which had been billed—and was—one of the most momentous of the Eisenhower administration.

Barkley Stole Show

Not much of what he said got into the papers because it was off the cuff with no mimeographed text, but Alben Barkley's spicy humor was the smash hit of the Democratic dinner in Philadelphia.

Slyly referring to the way the Democrats backed away from him at the Chicago convention last year, Barkley said:

"When they asked me to come here, they told me I was to be toastmaster. But at 6:30, Steve Mitchell called and said Senator Francis Myers was to take that job. It wasn't the first time the Democratic party has switched from me."

The crowd roared.

"I'm now 76 years old," said the ex-veep. "In Cairo about a year ago I met an Arab fortune teller out at the Pyramids who predicted I would live to be 105. That's one Arab I'm cooperating with very closely.

"Last year when Eisenhower won by such a big margin, I figured the Democrats would not come back for a long time," continued the venerable Kentuckian, "but in recent months I've begun to change my mind.

"The situation reminds me of a husband in Paris whose wife died and afterward he discovered she had been receiving the attentions of another gentleman who appeared at the funeral, weeping. The husband was restrained in his grief, but the other man was not. He could hardly control himself. After the coffin was finally lowered into the grave, the husband patted the other man on the back and said: 'Don't feel too bad, old pal. I'll marry again soon'."

That, implied Barkley, was how the Democrats are cheering up the Republicans today—with the promise of being elected again soon.

Washington Whirl

Attorney General Brownell's 17-year-old daughter, Joan, is practicing what her father preaches. Accidentally bursting into a Negro church, she discovered she was the only white person present, sat down and stayed for the entire service. . . . After War Claims Chairman Dan Cleary passed away, President Eisenhower was so anxious to replace the other two Democratic commissioners that he wrote a curt letter dismissing them while they were out attending Cleary's funeral. . . . The President occasionally drops into the Army-Navy Club for unannounced visits with his old cronies. As a result, the Secret Service has run a security check on all the club's employes . . . . Mamie Eisenhower has promised to swing the champagne bottle at the launching of the Navy's first atomic sub. . . . Senator McCarthy made a big point of the fact that Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor's service record was marked with a red "flag." This column can report that McCarthy's own record at the Pentagon is similarly "flagged". . . Georgia's scrupulous Senator Dick Russell, leader of the Southern bloc, is so burned up at Republicans that there's no chance of forming another GOP - Southern Democratic coalition next session. Russell is sore over the Eisenhower administration's handling of the farm problem, its use of FBI files to attack the Democrats, and the GOP drive to eliminate segregation.

Cattle Smuggling

Though a little slow in moving, the Eisenhower administration played no favorites in prosecuting the smugglers of $1,000,000 worth of Charolais cattle into Louisiana from a hoof-and-mouth disease infected part of Mexico. Alphe Broussard, the man who brought the prize cattle, has now been indicted; also Antonio Enrique Gilly, the man who sold the cattle to him; and William L. Babb, the man who actually did the smuggling.

John Minor Wisdom, Eisenhower's No. 1 political adviser in Louisiana, was retained as attorney for Broussard, but defended the case over-the-table, pulled no wires under the table.

Inside The Pentagon

The Chemical Corps has built an imitation A-bomb, made of smoke-producing chemicals, white phosphorous grenades, nitro starch, napalm, sand and gravel. When exploded, it shoots a column of smoke into the air with a mushroom-shaped cloud at the top. The idea is to simulate an atomic explosion and add realism to battle maneuvers. . . . There's increasing pressure inside the Navy to convert most of the nation's battleships into guided missile launchers. . . . Gen. Curtis LeMay is planning a "world series" in bombing. His best bombing crews will compete to determine which crew is the world's bombing champ. . . . The Army has successfully tested airborne TV to spot artillery targets. The artillery crews were able to adjust their fire and hit the targets, simply by watching the TV screen. . . . India has threatened a military alliance with Communist China, if the United States goes ahead and signs a military pact with Pakistan in return for bases along the Soviet border. . . . The Communists have definitely been building up the North Korean air force in violation of the truce. U.S. Intelligence has learned that little North Korea now has a powerful, modern air force, totaling 300 jet planes. Fifty of these are light jet bombers.

These Days

On A Plane

Most plane riders like to sit quietly and read or ponder, but now that some of the larger planes have a section in the tail where it is permissible to smoke a cigar or a pipe, something of the atmosphere of the club car develops and it is good. The cigar or pipe smoker usually is also a talker.

The club car atmosphere is one of argument, drunk or sober, and sooner or later everybody gets into it with varying degrees of knowledge and wisdom. In a country in which everybody is entitled to express his opinion, whether he has ever done an hour's work to justify having an opinion, it is possible to hop, skip and jump from this to that and the time passes pleasantly.

Curiously, there is less talk about Eisenhower than about McCarthy, less about taxes this year than about spies—and all this is pro and con. I was traveling to and from New York and Chicago immediately after the Bermuda Conference and the President's speech, "Operation Candor," but few raised the subject either in the plane or anywhere else. What seemed to be uppermost in most people's minds, at that moment, was what would come of the fight between Eisenhower and McCarthy, what was the Canadian game about Gouzenko, what is the truth about Fort Monmouth, why did not the FBI catch all the spies and put them in jail, is McCarthy running for President, will there be a third party, etc., etc., along these lines.

To say, as Adlai Stevenson remarked in a speech, that our people have fears is an understatement. Our people are, on the whole, not only afraid; they are disgusted. Stevenson ought to know because in his State of Illinois the disgust is so thick, it can be cut like a cheese-cake. And the disgust has nothing to do with Eisenhower or Truman, much less with Stevenson, but with both political parties, which, in the minds of too many, are guilty not only of mismanagement but of failing to disclose mismanagement. There is a growing feeling in the land among the citizens that the politicians of both parties are in a conspiracy to cover up the mistakes made by any politician.

This lack of confidence in the leadership of both parties is what makes Joe McCarthy so interesting to so many. He is being discussed even by those who dislike his personality and the way he does things.

But these discussions go a little further. Many businessmen cannot understand the combination of Republican and Democratic leaders who, in order to pursue a foreign policy that does not produce the results hoped for, are now promoting an international trade policy which is already being felt by a large number of American industries. Already the coal, oil, chemical, electrical equipment, lace, costume jewelry and other industries fear that they will be put out of business, that there is already a clinical indication of unemployment, and that sooner or later, Congress will be faced by the good, old American struggle over the tariff, with, however, this anomaly that a Republican administration may be supporting the concept of free trade while the Democrats will be demanding legislation protecting particular commodities.

It is this switch in position that often arouses citizens to wonder whether either of the two major political parties stands for anything as a party. If both parties are identical in practices, those who need to or desire to express a contrary point of view will have no avenue for expression except in left-wing groups coordinated by the Communists or as extremists on the right. The two-party system often breaks down because the parties cease to have meaning and become nothing more than collections of ambitious personalities.

The greatest value of Robert A. Taft to the Republican party was that in the years when Roosevelt and Truman tried to destroy that party by pleas for what they called unity, he adhered to a set of traditional principles which men and women could support because they believed in them. No such sharp demarcation of principle is apparent in these days and in conversations among the businessmen I meet over the country, the disappointment is being expressed in no uncertain terms: no one knows how to sit on both sides of a table at the same time.

The Americans who were returned at Panmunjom have been intensively questioned, and the data gathered in a comprehensive manner. Most of the missing now have been identified. It is known they wanted to come home. But the Communists, just before the fighting stopped, took them away from Korea.

Except for an Army communique last September, there has been no official protest or anything said publicly about the matter. Military men in the Far East refer to the missing men now as a "diplomatic problem." State Department officials say the missing men are not yet under their jurisdiction, and will not be until it is known whether there is to be a "political conference" to attempt to settle the Korean questions. It's a buck-passing fiasco.

The Communists doubtless expect to use the missing prisoners as pawns—as a means of forcing admission of Red China into the U. N., or the withdrawal of United Nations troops from Korea.

One-Way Diplomacy

This humiliating story is well known in official circles. But there is a callousness nowadays about such things. The Dulles statement not long ago, confessing that it is difficult to do the right thing for America nowadays bacause our allies might be offended, was made apropos of criticism that the European allies were continuing to trade with the Communists. One wonders how long it is going to be before boys who are drafted are going to ask if they are to be sent to battle in "local wars" and then abandoned. For the troops that went to Korea were not permitted to use maximum power to win the victory, as recommended by General MacArthur. This was because our allies did not approve.

With all the enthusiasm manifested by so many Americans for the U. N., that organization doesn't seem to care a bit, either, about the 944 Americans held captive and forced into slavery while fighting under the United Nations banner. The families of the missing Americans do care, however, and maybe some other Americans do, too. The problem of the 944 Americans cannot be suppressed. It is an example of the moral cowardice of present-day diplomacy in alliances that work only one way—the sending of money and supplies to allies without any reciprocal agreement to defend the rights of American citizens who went to war in Korea in their behalf.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS) — Some momentous events will hatch in 1954, if "The Old Farmer's Almanac" hasn't taken me for a big city rube.

Mars is going to snuggle up to within 40,000,000 miles June 24, 1954. Residents of Anarctica will see an eclipse of the sun January 4. Promoters of the various bowl football games will be relieved to learn that January 1 "will be cold but clear." Labor Day, 1954, will be "cool and nice all weekend."

The almanac for '54 came up with some dingers in its "Anecdotes & Pleasantries" department. Hold your sides:

Si and Hiram were talking shop. "I have without doubt the laziest rooster in the world," boosted Si.

"Just how lazy is he, Si?"

"Well, he ain't never crowed in his life. He just waits for another rooster to crow — and then he nods his head."

If you don't think that's funny, how about this sockdolger:

"Some years ago, a friend of mine had a red fox hitched in his yard. Among other things he fed him bread and milk and supposed he ate it. At the same time he kept losing hens, but as the fox was hitched he didn't suspect him. One day his wife happened to see the fox chew his bread and milk, and then spread the bread around. When a hen came up to get the bread, the fox caught her." — Arthur Brown in the American Agriculturist.

Yes sir, she's packed with interesting stuff like that — and has been since she was founded 162 years ago. The almanac isn't all bucolic sweetness and light, either. Take the farmer's calendar for August, 1954, for instance:

"Don't take your bull for granted. He's the most dangerous animal in the world, and a ring in his nose doesn't make him a safe bet. There is no such thing as a safe bull in pasture. . . ."

And there's a long range warning to the sweating August farmer:

"Watch how you swing that axe — particularly on frozen wood. It can bite you. Don't cut timber in a high wind."

Won't have to tell me that twice.

The opinion in Washington is that Congress will offer few if any obstacles to the Eisenhower plan to create a pool of atomic materials for the peaceful good of all. The debate, if any, will center around Russia — whether it comes in or stays out of the plan. The expectation is that the Reds will try to make a few changes in the Eisenhower plan which, if accepted by the President, will enable them to tell their captive peoples that it is a Russian idea.

Eisenhower seems determined to push ahead for the creation of this atom agency even if the Russians denounce it and take no part in it. He would prefer the Russians to take part. But if they don't, and the member nations enter into an era of atomic welfare springing from the plan, it will give the peoples behind the Iron Curtain a vivid view of how their masters handicap them.

The Eisenhower plan would speed up one of the great needs of this atomic era: The need for more officials and business and professional men to learn about the facts of atomic life. As AEC Commissioner Thomas Murray said recently, the men who wrote the U. N. Charter in 1945 saddled the world with an obsolete testament because none of them had been told that an atomic bomb had been created and was about to alter the course of war and peace.

MacArthur and Nimitz, fighting a titanic war in the Pacific, were not told of the existence of the A-bomb until a few days before the first one was dropped on Hiroshima—and then were told chiefly because orders had to be issued to keep conventional bombers and other planes out of that area. John Foster Dulles, who helped write the U. N. Charter and has held many important jobs of a policy-making nature, was not told all the facts about our A-bomb production, size of stockpile and new weapons until last February.

Nike System

First Guided Missile Battery Will Be Set Up At Fort Meade

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Army announced tonight the first Nike antiaircraft guided missile battery is being installed at Ft. Meade, Md.—obviously to provide protection for the nation's capital, Baltimore and industrial-military targets in the surrounding area.

It also discussed officially for the first time some details of the faster-than-sound weapon designed to track down and destroy, regardless of evasive action, invading enemy aircraft.

It said the Nike system, to be extended to other vital areas of the east and west coasts and the northern half of the nation, "will provide defended areas with a far greater degree of antiaircraft protection than was ever before possible with the more limited ranges and altitudes of conventional antiaircraft guns."

The Army also said:

"Nike is the nation's first combat-ready surface-to-air guided missile system to be put in use in the air defense system of the United States.

"It also is the Army's first supersonic guided missile to demonstrate its ability to knock enemy aircraft out of the sky.

"The missile can out-maneuver bombers, fighters or transport planes.

"Nike can operate regardless of weather conditions and visibility.

"The Nike system is mobile. All units of the system other than the launching racks are housed in specially designed all-weather, van-type trailers. If necessary the system can be transported by air."

The Army said that Nike installations will be placed on the government-owned land "to the maximum extent possible consistent with technical requirements." It defined government-owned land as including state, county and municipally owned land, as well as federal ground. This, said the Army, would reduce inconvenience to the civilian population and also minimize the removal of revenue-producing land from tax rolls of local governments.

The Nike, said the Army, was developed jointly by its Ordnance Corps, Western Electric Co., Bell Telephone laboratories and Douglas Aircraft Co. Current mass production of control equipment is largely by Western Electric, while the missile and parts for the system are being produced by Douglas, Western Electric and several hundred suppliers and subcontractors in more than 20 states.

About 20 feet long and one foot in diameter, with two sets of fins for guidance and steering.

The initial impetus, when the rocket is sent up from a launching rack standing in vertical position, comes from a booster rocket, much like that used for assisting planes into the air. Its own power in full flight comes from liquid fuel in its rocket engine.

Inside the slender body of the missile is an explosive warhead—which will explode only when in flight, thus avoiding danger if the missile misses the mark and falls on a city. The body also contains the rocket engine and guidance equipment.

The Army gave no details of the guidance system but it presumably includes a radar scanning device to locate the enemy bomber, then other electronic devices to take over control of the terminal phase of the flight and "home in" on the target.

The control system, including the ground installation used in finding the enemy bomber before the missile is launched, includes more than 1,500,000 parts.

The Army said this is the way the Nike antiaircraft battery of the continental defense system works:

"1. Nike battery receives early warning from the air warning net that hostile aircraft are approaching the area defended by it.

"2. Target is picked up and tracked (followed) electronically (radar).

"3. Nike missiles are readied in vertical position on their launching racks.

"4. A running account of the target's changing position is transmitted.

"5. The missile's control mechanisms, stabilization and navigational gear are checked and certain safety mechanisms are disengaged.

"6. Target crosses Nike's distant missile is fired.

"7. Missile roars off to meet its target.

"8. Within seconds after launching Nike has passed through the sonic barrier," the region of turbulence that occurs as an object attains the speed of sound which is 761 miles per hour at sea level, "and in supersonic flight rides smoothly on its own rocket engine.

"9. Nike and target converge. Nike intercepts its target and explodes." While the formal Army announcement gave no details, the Army inadvertently disclosed last spring the size of different types of Nike batteries—12 launchers when the insallaion is above ground, nine when underground installation is used.

The range of the missile has not been specified by the Army, but is great enough to provide coverage for a comparatively large area.

The installation at Ft. Meade, on Chesapeake Bay, will give protection to Washington, Baltimore's big industrial plants and harbor facilities, the Army's Aberdeen proving ground and other installations as well as Ft. Meade itself the headquarters of the 2nd Army.

Italian Cooking Experts Defend Veal Scallopini

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The society for protecting the good name of scallopini of veal held another indignation meeting today. That's the kind of meeting the members always hold—indignation meetings.

So far the society has but three members: Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr. (D-NJ), Mickey Grasso and Vincent Iorio, who runs an Italian-American restaurant.

All three are peeved because Eve Arden, a Hollywood actress, made a crack about scallopini of veal on a television show last week.

"She said it wasn't fit for a cat," Iorio said. "A famous dish has been slandered."

"She called it an inedible commodity," Grasso said, "and it's one of our most popular dishes."

Rodino wasn't at today's meeting, but he was at the one held last night. And he dictated a statement which was filled with such sentiments as "I was completely aghast." He called scallopini "a tasty, savory, healthy food."

Most people probably could take any remark about scallopini without emotion, but not Iorio or Grasso. Especially Grasso.

Grasso hires out in the summer months as a baseball catcher with the Washington Senators, and he's known to be a man with a horrendous temper.

"He got thrown out of so many games for arguing with the umpires in the Coast League a few years ago," Iorio said proudly, "that he set a record."

"Twenty-three games," Grasso said. "Cost me eleven hundred bucks in fines."

"I wish Congressman Rodino were here," Iorio said. "Last night, oh, he was in a rage."

"He said he wished Congress was in session so he could make a speech," Grasso said. "He said he might get some Irishman to make a speech, too. He said maybe if he made a speech about scallopini, being an Italian and all, people might think he was prejudiced."

"Rodino wondered if we should write to the FCC" — the Federal Communications Commission —"and tell them remarks like this ought not to be allowed over the air," Iorio said.

"What is this scallopini?" an outsider asked.

Iorio looked dreamy. "You take little pieces of veal," he said, "and you saute them in olive oil. Different types of herbs are added, and then a special wine and a special sauce. It comes out so tender you can cut it with your fork. Melts in your mouth."

"I sent telegrams to Miss Arden and the broadcasting system," Grasso said, producing same. They were filled with such thoughts as "I resent this" and "Prove your statement."

Two Sets Of Amendments To Atomic Law To Relax Secrecy Rules In Preparation

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration is completing two sets of amendments to the nation's basic atomic law which would bring about vast changes in its secrecy restrictions.

One series of amendments is designed to enable the nation's military leaders to provide North Atlantic treaty Allies with a wide variety of information about the weapons in America's atomic arsenal.

The other would permit the United States to make available to friendly nations, primarily those important to this country's atomic program, fissionable material, atomic equipment and information to enable such countries to develop their own peaceful uses of atomic energy.

The amendments are now going through White House processing. Informants said they might be sent to Congress next month.

Secretary of Defense Wilson told the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council in Paris recently that the administration would ask Congress to authorize the sharing of pertinent information on nuclear and other new weapons."

President Eisenhower said at his news conference yesterday that changes are needed in the atomic law to permit sharing of this information.

The present atomic law, which created the Atomic Energy Commission and laid down tight secrecy controls, was enacted in 1946. It was based on the principle of American monopoly control of atomic weapons and, in fact, of large scale production of fissionable material. Later events, in Russia and elsewhere, demonstrated the United States had no monopoly on atomic explosives.

Informants said today that the NATO atomic amendment was designed to redefine "restricted data" as used in the Atomic Energy Act in such a way that information about the "utilization" of atomic weapons would no longer be restricted by this law.

The result would be that many things now considered as atomic secrets would become military secrets subject to decision by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The other series of amendments, according to authoritative information, apparently arises out of a need to assist the countries which have cooperated with the United States in its program to develop nuclear power for peaceful purposes.

For example, Belgium has been the principal supplies to the United States of uranium, the chief source of atomic material. Negotiations for a new agreement covering supplies of uranium ore from the Belgian Congo have been dragging along for many months because of the inability of the American government to meet all of Belgium's requirements for help in building an atomic power reactor.

Jury Secrecy Violated, Accused Man Says

BALTIMORE, Dec. 17 (AP)—C. Edward Jones today charged that grand jury secrecy had been violated in the parking probe and asked that criminal charges of malfeasance in office and conspiracy to violate the city contracts code against him be dismissed.

Jones filed five specia. motions through his lawyers, Hilary W. Gans and Ellis Levin. Three of the motions sought preliminary rulings of Criminal Court to revoke the charges against him.

Legal limitations provided the grounds for a motion to dismiss both indictments. It was claimed by the defense lawyers that prosecution was not brought within a one-year limitation period applicable to the malfeasance charge against the former member of the Off-Street Parking Commission.

Malnutrition Is Suspected In Death Of Baltimore Child

BALTIMORE, Dec. 17 (AP)—An investigation was underway today to determine whether malnutrition took the life of a baby girl and hospitalized her brother.

An autopsy was ordered in the death of the girl.

Police rushed a supply of food to the home when the plight of the family became known.

Four-month-old Elizabeth Fowler died today at a hospital less than 24 hours after the emergency provisions were rushed to the home on North Eutaw street. Dr. Russell Fisher, chief medical examiner, ordered an autopsy.

Police said the Fowlers came to Baltimore from Suffolk, Va. about six months ago. Policewomen said Mrs. Fowler told them she ran out of money and could not contact her husband, a truck driver who was on the road.

Police said the husband has had only intermittent work since coming to Baltimore.

Elizabeth and Frank were rushed to Maryland General Hospital yesterday after neighbors told police the family was in desperate need of food and that some of the youngsters were sick.

The other children are Sandra, 3, and Julia, 1.

State Tax Rate Seen Doubled

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 17 (AP) — The state tax on real estate in 1955 may jump to 11.91 cents, more than double the rate for next year.

The Board of Revenue Estimates in its latest survey said that levy on each $100 of property values would provide funds needed to pay off debt charges falling due before June 30, 1956.

That's what the rate will be unless the Legislature repeats its budget-slashing job of last winter or a number of estimates are revised in the next few months.

The General Assembly carved almost two million dollars from appropriations Gov. McKeldin proposed for the current fiscal year. This coupled with revenues above original estimates enabled the state to transfer $3,055,250 to the bond account. The estimate of property values also was revised upward.

As a result, the 1954 real estate tax was reduced from 11.29 cents to 5.67, the lowest in Maryland history.

The state fixes its property tax to raise the amount needed to pay off principal and interest of bonds. Its outstanding debt now is about 140 million dollars.

To set the rate it tries to figure out in advance the value of all taxable property.

Debt service for the three years beginning last July 1 will cost $19,844,505. Available funds plus those anticipated from next year's tax total $12,342,044.

Christmas Present Returned To Cops

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP) — Metropolitan police, already forbidden to accept Christmas gifts, today found it also hard to give a present.

Robert C. Albrook, clerk of the Senate District Committee, returned five boxes of pickles, jams and jellies the police association had sent him and his staff.

Albrook said he didn't think $2.50 boxes of pickles would sway his staff in any decisions but added: "I don't think any public official should accept gifts from people who have an interest in his work."

Publicity Directive Approved By SRC

BALTIMORE, Dec. 17 (AP) — The State Roads Commission has directed its department heads and their subordinates not to give out public information except through the commission's director of public relations.

The directive was adopted by the three-member commission yesterday and was distributed to the departments today. It became effective at once.

Chairman Russell H. McCain explained there were several reasons for it and said the main one was to improve efficiency.

McCain said some department heads had lost considerable time answering questions of reporters and others seeking information. The interruptions, he said, have sometimes seriously interfered with the work and resulted in the loss of many man hours.

Jury Tampering Probe Requested

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Dec. 17 (AP) — The Somerset County Grand Jury today was asked to determine whether someone tried to influence the county's petit jury sworn in to hear an assault trial.

The jury was called in extraordinary session by Judge E. MacMaster Duer.

The jury sworn in to hear the trial of 36-year-old Carl L. Tyler of Crisfield, a waterman, was dismissed by Judge Duer and the trial was postponed. Tyler was accused of attacking a state seafood inspector.

In referring to the case, Judge Duer said "information received by the court . . . makes it impossible for the present petit jury to hear this case."

He told the jurors, "No matter how trivial these matters may seem to some of you, it is vastly important to the administrators of justice that our juries be left to themselves and that any decisions they might render be their own . . ."

Judge Duer also asked the jury to look into circumstances surrounding the death of Edwin C. Smith, Crisfield, waterman.

Smith was found dead near the waterfront Nov. 10. The Smith Island oyster boat captain had more than $1,000 on him the night before. There was only a few dollars in his pocket when he was found.

Judge Duer termed it a "revolting incident." Smith's battered body led to the belief he was hit by an automobile.

Notes Left For Milk Man Stolen; Thief Proves To Be Crow

HAGERSTOWN, Dec. 17 (AP) — Mrs. Karl E. Wiebel hestiated to complain to the police. After all, the thief was only pinching the notes she left in her milk bottles for the delivery man. There wasn't any money, not even any milk involved.

Mrs. Wiebel took it up with him. He said there wasn't any note in the bottle.

Mrs. Wiebel got up early the next time. She put out her bottle, with note. She sat down by the window to watch.

The milkman came. Mrs. Wiebel stepped out on the porch. "See," she was going to say, "there's the note."

But there wasn't any.

The next delivery day, Mrs. Wiebel tried again. This time she got a better vantage point. She never took her eye off the bottles.

She caught the thief. His name is Jim. He belongs to the Leonard Atheys next door. He is their pet crow.

Murder Accessory Given 10-Year Term

BALTIMORE, Dec. 17 (AP)—Convicted of being an accessory to the crime, Eric Preston Randall was handed a 10-year prison term here today in Criminal Court for his role in the slaying of John H. Metzger last June.

Randall, described as a "passive homosexual" at his trial, told police that his roommate, Sgt. Richard M. Elkins, shot Metzger to death with a pistol along the Baltimore-Washington Expressway, just outside the Baltimore city limits.

Malnutrition Is Suspected In Death Of Baltimore Child

BALTIMORE, Dec. 17 (AP)—An investigation was underway today to determine whether malnutrition took the life of a baby girl and hospitalized her brother.

An autopsy was ordered in the death of the girl.

Police rushed a supply of food to the home when the plight of the family became known.

Four-month-old Elizabeth Fowler died today at a hospital less than 24 hours after the emergency provisions were rushed to the home on North Eutaw street. Dr. Russell Fisher, chief medical examiner, ordered an autopsy.

Police said the Fowlers came to Baltimore from Suffolk, Va. about six months ago. Policewomen said Mrs. Fowler told them she ran out of money and could not contact her husband, a truck driver who was on the road.

Police said the husband has had only intermittent work since coming to Baltimore.

Elizabeth and Frank were rushed to Maryland General Hospital yesterday after neighbors told police the family was in desperate need of food and that some of the youngsters were sick.

The other children are Sandra, 3, and Julia, 1.

State Tax Rate Seen Doubled

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 17 (AP) — The state tax on real estate in 1955 may jump to 11.91 cents, more than double the rate for next year.

The Board of Revenue Estimates in its latest survey said that levy on each $100 of property values would provide funds needed to pay off debt charges falling due before June 30, 1956.

That's what the rate will be unless the Legislature repeats its budget-slashing job of last winter or a number of estimates are revised in the next few months.

The General Assembly carved almost two million dollars from appropriations Gov. McKeldin proposed for the current fiscal year. This coupled with revenues above original estimates enabled the state to transfer $3,055,250 to the bond account. The estimate of property values also was revised upward.

As a result, the 1954 real estate tax was reduced from 11.29 cents to 5.67, the lowest in Maryland history.

The state fixes its property tax to raise the amount needed to pay off principal and interest of bonds. Its outstanding debt now is about 140 million dollars.

To set the rate it tries to figure out in advance the value of all taxable property.

Debt service for the three years beginning last July 1 will cost $19,844,505. Available funds plus those anticipated from next year's tax total $12,342,044.

Christmas Present Returned To Cops

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP) — Metropolitan police, already forbidden to accept Christmas gifts, today found it also hard to give a present.

Robert C. Albrook, clerk of the Senate District Committee, returned five boxes of pickles, jams and jellies the police association had sent him and his staff.

Albrook said he didn't think $2.50 boxes of pickles would sway his staff in any decisions but added: "I don't think any public official should accept gifts from people who have an interest in his work."

Crop Output Near Record In Spite Of Severe Drought

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP) — In its final estimate on this year's crops, the Agriculture Department reported a near-record output "despite a severe drought in a large part of the country."

Acreage from which crops were harvested was smaller than average, the department said, "but yields per acre in the aggregate were record high."

Unusually favorable weather during the harvest season for grains and other late maturing crops helped offset drought conditions.

"With a few exceptions, quality was good to excellent," the report said.

Harvested acreage of crops this year amounted to just over 340 million acres, it added. This was less than last year or any of the seven years 1943-49.

Book Controversy Flares At Illinois State Library

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 16 (AP) — After protests that some books were salacious and obscene, the Illinois state library today disclosed that about 500 titles have been withdrawn in a move now disputed by the state official who issued the original order.

A statement from the office of Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier, who is state librarian by virtue of his office, said the extent of the withdrawal of books was "overzealous" and tends to make his intention "appear ridiculous."

Carpentier's office said the books withdrawn include a total of 6,000 to 8,000 volumes bearing the 500 titles.

The list included works by Sinclair Lewis, John Dos Passos, Erskine Caldwell and Mickey Spillane. It includes "certain books considered modern classics," the statement said.

Carpentier had issued an order to Miss Helene Rogers, assistant librarian, which the statement said was "designed to keep salacious and obscene books from being issued to children."

The statement said a study will be undertaken to set up standards for circulation of materials.

Carpentier gave the order Nov. 10 after receiving a complaint from Sheriff Jesse Shipley of Richland county about a book called The Boy Who Came Back, by Charles H. Knickerbocker.

Demand For Books With Religious Theme At Highest Point In History

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—Religion has become a "hot" item—on the bookshelves.

Publishers reported today the demand for books with a religious theme is at perhaps the highest point in book trade history.

"So far as I know," said John B. Chambers, Harper and Brothers editor, "there's never been any period any time when the interest in such books even approached what it is now."

The trend has marked a major transformation in American reading habits. It has swept a host of religion-motivated books, both fiction and nonfiction, to the best-seller lists.

"It began picking up momentum several years ago," said Henry Simon, of Simon and Schuster, Inc. "There seems to have been no comparable period of such interest in the 20th century."

Some publishers say the subject is attracting an even greater reading audience than sex—the book trade's old reliable.

"By and large," said John C. Willey of William Morrow and Co., "the market is made up of two staple commodities—religion and sex. I rather think that today religion has the edge."

Edward Hodge, Harcourt Brace and Co., said, "A good inspirational book will top the list now."

General opinion was that the development has come mainly since World War II, and mounted steadily since, along with a wave of movies and even popular songs based on religious subjects.

"It seems to be still increasing," said Edward Aswell of the McGraw-Hill Book Co. "The phenomenon is clear and marked beyond anything I've ever seen before."

There was a slight flurry of such interest after World War I.

"But the trend did not have the depth or the far-reaching scope of this one," said John Farrar of Farrar, Straus and Young, Inc. "I have never known interest in religious and inspirational books to be so widespread."

Public demand has pulled them into the mass-circulation paperbound market. About 15 books of religious nature, ranging from novels to scholarly studies, are on the stands in low-priced paper covers.

Freeman Lewis, Pocket Books, Inc., said virtually no paperbound books of this type were put out 10 years ago, except for the Bible. A 1952 survey, he said, indicated such books led in sales increase.

There's fairly close agreement on what caused the religious literary drift, namely:

Hitler, the A-bomb, disillusionment with accomplishments of sheer technology, Soviet despotism international fist-shaking—and altogether the fear, barbarity and danger of our times to which neither science nor system has provided an answer.

"The world is puzzled and torn," said Farrar. "This has turned people not only to a contemplation of themselves but of their relation with God."

Unlike past periods when books with a religious slant found the bulk of their readership among church groups, the audience now is limited to no special segment of the population.

"It's no longer confined to the radius of conventionally religious people," Chambers said. "People of all sorts are desperately searching for something to cling to. They're no longer ashamed of their interest in religion.

"It used to be a college student would turn the jacket of a religious book inside out to read it. But it's not that way any more."

Readers, he added, aren't looking for "saccharine piety," but for "something they can get their teeth into—that changes them."

Aswell noted that theological tracts and books of sermons once made up the big share of religious publications, but the big output today is of a more general nature.

"It indicates to me a tremenous revival of interest in religion—which is certainly nonsectarian," he said.

Simon said self-help books consistently have had a big following, but the yen for guidance now is more profound.

"They used to prefer books on 'how to make $5,000 a year' or something like that," he said. "Now, they want to know simply how to live better. They want something they can rely on, to imitate, a certainty of right and wrong."

Churchmen Urged To Preach Safety

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 17 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin today asked Maryland churchmen to preach highway safety.

He sent out hundreds of letters requesting reminders from the pulpit that the Christmas season could be saddened by loss of lives in holiday accidents.

"I am convinced that many who may take lightly the words of laymen will heed the suggestions and warnings of their clergymen," he said.

He requested them to mention at a service before Christmas "the importance of maintaining all of the well known rules of safety and of highway courtesy at all times, but particularly during this Blessed Season."

Explosives Plant Puts TV To Work

ABERDEEN, Md., Dec. 17 (AP)—The army is using television at a high explosives plant so workers may do certain jobs from behind the safety of a concrete and steel wall.

TV serves as the worker's eyes as he operates machines by remote control from his position of safety.

Use of television is a recent innovation at the Aberdeen Proving Ground's Magazine No. 700. It's now used as a safety device in four of the plants seven work rooms. The plant loads, assembles and disassembles high explosives.

An example of work in which TV might play a part is in drilling or cutting. A camera is put into position. Then from behind a 36-inch safety wall the operator controls his machine by watching the TV monitor.

Cameras are enclosed in an explosive-proof case designed to contain any dust explosion that might occur in the camera.

On some jobs it's impossible or impractical to use video. When it is necessary that drilling be done manually, drills are used which are encased in steel boxes with shatter-proof windows.

Irregular Decline Erases Most Of Early Stock Gains

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—An irregular decline today wiped out a considerable portion of early stock market gains and left the list jumbled at the close.

At times there were some spectacular surges ahead in individual stocks. The list as a whole, however, ranged from around 2 points higher to fractions lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended unchanged at $109.20, a level comfortably near the best position of the recovery drive that started from the mid-September low of the year.

The industrial component of the average advanced 10 cents, and the railroads were up 20 cents while utilities remained unchanged.

Gains and losses were fairly close with 451 individual issues advancing and 402 declining out of the 1,183 issues traded. There were 31 new highs and 21 new lows for the year touched during the day.

Willys-Overland was the day's most active issue off 1/8 at 16 1/2 with 21,600 shares traded. It was followed by Budd Co. up 5/8 at 11 7/8, U. S. Steel unchanged at 40 1/2 (yesterday's most active issue with a gain of 5/8), American Woolen up 3/8 at 17 5/8, and Reynolds Tobacco "B" up 7/8 at 38 3/8.

Irregular Decline Erases Most Of Early Stock Gains

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—An irregular decline today wiped out a considerable portion of early stock market gains and left the list jumbled at the close.

At times there were some spectacular surges ahead in individual stocks. The list as a whole, however, ranged from around 2 points higher to fractions lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended unchanged at $109.20, a level comfortably near the best position of the recovery drive that started from the mid-September low of the year.

The industrial component of the average advanced 10 cents, and the railroads were up 20 cents while utilities remained unchanged.

Gains and losses were fairly close with 451 individual issues advancing and 402 declining out of the 1,183 issues traded. There were 31 new highs and 21 new lows for the year touched during the day.

Willys-Overland was the day's most active issue off 1/8 at 16 1/2 with 21,600 shares traded. It was followed by Budd Co. up 5/8 at 11 7/8, U. S. Steel unchanged at 40 1/2 (yesterday's most active issue with a gain of 5/8), American Woolen up 3/8 at 17 5/8, and Reynolds Tobacco "B" up 7/8 at 38 3/8.

by Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON—In every one of the six counties in our congressional district, I have found the people generally satisfied with the administration's handling of national problems, while at the same time they are greatly concerned with local issues.

This was the outstanding impression I gained on my tour of the district just completed. I spent day and night talking with citizens in many towns and farm areas to find out what they think of current political problems.

In Allegany County, unemployment continues to be critical. The cut in operations by the Celanese Corporation of America and the increasingly "mined out" coal deposits are the big factors. There and elsewhere new property tax assessments, based on the high property values which exist after a seven-year inflationary spiral, are big bones of contention. In Brunswick there is distress because rail conversion from steam to diesel has cost some jobs.

On national matters attitudes ranged from general satisfaction to "let's wait and see," with everybody having a keen eye on what President Eisenhower will come up with next year in the way of a sound program, and what intelligence Congress will exercise in acting on it.

Some people said the administration is too slow about replacing jobholders with persons more sympathetic to administration policies. Scheduled federal tax cuts seem satisfactory to most voters, though many small businessmen are fearful of declining profits unless relief is given on certain luxury taxes and movie admission taxes.

A Garrett County cattle farmer found a silver lining in the cloud of declining prices. He said he still gets a fair price if he puts good cattle on the market, accenting the words "fair" and "good" as he said them. He declared that many farmers realize that the three-year decline of prices can have the good effect of driving what he called speculators and fly-by-nighters out of the business.

I found myself at a loss, however, to explain one important part of the criticism being made of the national administration. Many voters want to know why administration leaders complain of their inability to balance the federal budget and stop going into debt and at the same time keep up a large and expensive foreign economic aid program.

They want to know why we just don't say, in as neighborly a way as possible, that we can't afford any more foreign aid for the time being. People point out to me that if their annual income is $5,000, and their minimum expenses for family support is $4,000, they can't very well lend a close relative $2,000, no matter how dire his need might be. This is one issue in which voters are complaining that the administration ignores the mandate of the 1952 election.

On my calendar: Next Monday I will be in Baltimore to attend the luncheon of the Baltimore Association of Commerce in the Emerson Hotel.

All Things To All Men

That Bermudian money-moon will find Washington still financing Paris, Berlin and London. Our complicated star-fish axis would be better if there was a rim on the spokes.

The conferences indicate we have a lot of good neighbors living amicably on both sides of the spite fence.

Toughest assignment we have is to convince France that Germany should be re-armed. The French insist an empty cookie jar requires no lid.

Which whips up the old recipe for Bonn, "Can we stand two fronts in peacetime?"

Twelve tanked-up gander-prancing divisions on the off-side of the over-watched Rhine will have the French singing, "Armor, Toujours, Armor."

Paris is not afraid of Berlin, London or Hollywood in terms of atomic warfare. All it wants is to keep 'em neutral in the next fashion show.

So we have to carry water on both shoulders to people who don't drink it.

Cannot censure France much for worrying about that lion-and-the-lamb hammocking. All you require then is mint sauce.

The French patrol an occupation zone in Germany in order to prevent the status quo from overflowing its banks. The Rhine was a natural boundary for everybody but Patton.

This is a problem we must consider in terms of man's inhumanity to man. If both West and East Germany re-arm we will have to create a buffer state of one traffic cop with a bird call.

John Foster Dulles is a terrific diplomat. But sometimes those spies on the Vienna-Bagdad Express must switch brief cases with him.

Radio And Television

put into any dramatic terms and David Davidson, who wrote it especially for television, did a fine taut job of playwriting.

The most recent U. S. Steel play, "Man in Possession," was as frivolous as "POW" was grim. This one was a terribly British romp entirely suited to the very special comedy talents of Rex Harrison and Lilli Palmer who, as a matter of fact, had played it before on the U. S. Steel radio show. Mr. Harrison and Miss Palmer are the most engaging and expert husband-and-wife team now acting (a statement I make with some trepidation since there are quite a few husband and wife teams in operation) and they bring enormous urbanity and charm, to say nothing of great technical skill, to the most egregious nonsense.

This was a story about a gay scamp (Mr. Harrison), just recently sprung from prison, who chivvies his stuffily respectable brother out of his fiancee, a lovely but bankrupt widow played by Miss Palmer. Mr. Harrison got an awful lot of fun out of such lines as "Well, father, how are things in men's underwear?" Miss Palmer was bewitching, tempting and comic—a difficult combination—and she was also awfully well-dressed which may sound unimportant but which, in a play of this nature, isn't. It wasn't art but it was lovely theater.

The only other U. S. Steel presentation was "Hope for a Harvest," which harbored Faye Emerson. This adaptation of a 1941 Broadway play was a well-meaning enterprise but frankly it bored the hell out of me. Still, the boys were in there, trying.

The U. S. Steel Hour is produced by the Theater Guild. The producer-director is Alex Segal who formerly directed the destinies of Pulitzer Prize Playhouse and Celanese Theater. In short, it's in good hands. Incidentally on January 5—you might mark this down—the play will be Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" with Tallulah Bankhead playing her first dramatic role on television.

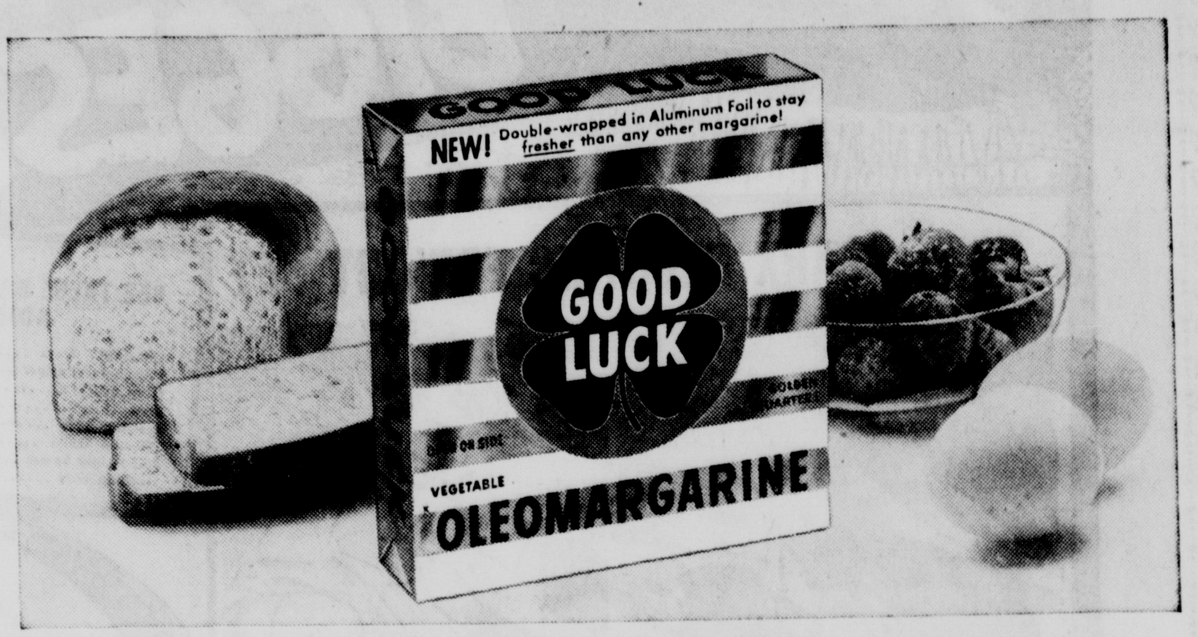
Exclusive double-wrapped Aluminum Package keeps

GOOD LUCK fresher and better tasting than any other margarine!



Read the proof! In flavor tests, new Reynolds Wrap kept GOOD LUCK fresh as the day it was made—even after 8 weeks! Only GOOD LUCK has it!

Now YOU can serve perfect table spread every time—fresh, sweet and delicious as the day it was packed! Just look for GOOD LUCK margarine in this revolutionary new package made of shiny Reynolds aluminum foil.

To test this package we put GOOD LUCK in a refrigerator along with other table spreads wrapped in ordinary waxed cartons. Next to them we placed sliced onions—and the strongest cheese we could find.

Fresh and Sweet After Eight Weeks

After eight weeks, GOOD LUCK in its new aluminum package was still as fresh, sweet and delicious as the day it was made! But the other quality margarines in the usual waxed cartons had lost flavor and picked up odors very quickly, some after only six days.

Here's the reason for the difference: We wrap each quarter-pound print in pure Reynolds Wrap, then we put the quarter pounds in a waxed carton for extra protection, and finally, we seal the whole carton in shiny aluminum foil.

As a result, GOOD LUCK not only tastes delicious when we wrap it, but stays fresher and better tasting than any other margarine.

Remember: GOOD LUCK in its new package is unconditionally guaranteed by Lever Brothers Company, 390 Park Avenue, New York 22, New York.

Keep GOOD LUCK in Your Refrigerator—it Spreads Easily!

The delicate flavor of this fine quality margarine is perishable. That's why we carefully refrigerate GOOD LUCK during processing – also while awaiting shipment, and in transit.

If you want to enjoy GOOD LUCK at its delicious best, always keep it in your refrigerator. You'll find GOOD LUCK spreads smoothly even when cold.

1 LB. FAMILY STYLE ROLL SAVES TIME—AND MONEY!

GOOD LUCK'S Family-Style Roll is now wrapped in Reynolds Aluminum Foil. It's easy to unwrap, handy for cooking or serving at the table. It's the same quality margarine—yet saves you 2¢ more than the individually wrapped quarters!

First gift he will open

(Last he will forget !)

Now, the best-looking, best-tasting gift of them all is at your liquor store!

But, more important, Calvert has the mellow flavor and the deliciously smooth taste that's appreciated by everyone who knows fine whiskey.

After all, it's what's in the bottle that counts!

put into any dramatic terms and David Davidson, who wrote it especially for television, did a fine taut job of playwriting.

The most recent U. S. Steel play, "Man in Possession," was as frivolous as "POW" was grim. This one was a terribly British romp entirely suited to the very special comedy talents of Rex Harrison and Lilli Palmer who, as a matter of fact, had played it before on the U. S. Steel radio show. Mr. Harrison and Miss Palmer are the most engaging and expert husband-and-wife team now acting (a statement I make with some trepidation since there are quite a few husband and wife teams in operation) and they bring enormous urbanity and charm, to say nothing of great technical skill, to the most egregious nonsense.

This was a story about a gay scamp (Mr. Harrison), just recently sprung from prison, who chivvies his stuffily respectable brother out of his fiancee, a lovely but bankrupt widow played by Miss Palmer. Mr. Harrison got an awful lot of fun out of such lines as "Well, father, how are things in men's underwear?" Miss Palmer was bewitching, tempting and comic—a difficult combination—and she was also awfully well-dressed which may sound unimportant but which, in a play of this nature, isn't. It wasn't art but it was lovely theater.

The only other U. S. Steel presentation was "Hope for a Harvest," which harbored Faye Emerson. This adaptation of a 1941 Broadway play was a well-meaning enterprise but frankly it bored the hell out of me. Still, the boys were in there, trying.

The U. S. Steel Hour is produced by the Theater Guild. The producer-director is Alex Segal who formerly directed the destinies of Pulitzer Prize Playhouse and Celanese Theater. In short, it's in good hands. Incidentally on January 5—you might mark this down—the play will be Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" with Tallulah Bankhead playing her first dramatic role on television.

Exclusive double-wrapped Aluminum Package keeps
GOOD LUCK fresher and better tasting than any other margarine!

Read the proof! In flavor tests, new Reynolds Wrap kept GOOD LUCK fresh as the day it was made—even after 8 weeks! Only GOOD LUCK has it!

Now you can serve perfect table spread every time—fresh, sweet and delicious as the day it was packed! Just look for GOOD LUCK margarine in this revolutionary new package made of shiny Reynolds aluminum foil.

To test this package we put GOOD LUCK in a refrigerator along with other table spreads wrapped in ordinary waxed cartons. Next to them we placed sliced onions—and the strongest cheese we could find.

Fresh and Sweet After Eight Weeks

After eight weeks, GOOD LUCK in its new aluminum package was still as fresh, sweet and delicious as the day it was made! But the other quality margarines in the usual waxed cartons had lost flavor and picked up odors very quickly, some after only six days.

Here's the reason for the difference: We wrap each quarter-pound print in pure Reynolds Wrap, then we put the quarter pounds in a waxed carton for extra protection, and finally, we seal the whole carton in shiny aluminum foil.

As a result, GOOD LUCK not only tastes delicious when we wrap it, but stays fresher and better tasting than any other margarine.

Remember: GOOD LUCK in its new package is unconditionally guaranteed by Lever Brothers Company, 390 Park Avenue, New York 22, New York.

Keep GOOD LUCK in Your Refrigerator—it Spreads Easily!

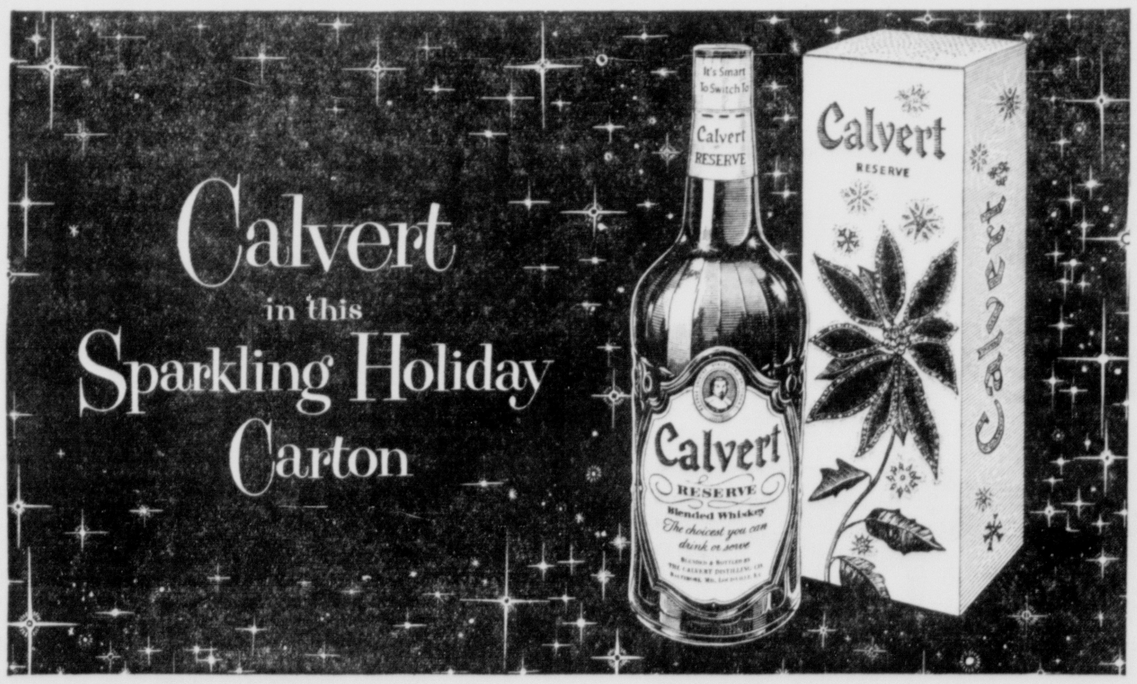
The delicate flavor of this fine quality margarine is perishable. That's why we carefully refrigerate GOOD LUCK during processing – also while awaiting shipment, and in transit.

If you want to enjoy GOOD LUCK at its delicious best, always keep it in your refrigerator. You'll find GOOD LUCK spreads smoothly even when cold.

1 LB. FAMILY STYLE ROLL SAVES TIME—AND MONEY!

GOOD LUCK'S Family-Style Roll is now wrapped in Reynolds Aluminum Foil. It's easy to unwrap, handy for cooking or serving at the table. It's the same quality margarine—yet saves you 2¢ more than the individually wrapped quarters!

First gift he will open
(Last he will forget!)



Now, the best-looking, best-tasting gift of them all is at your liquor store!

After all, it's what's in the bottle that counts!

City Files Demurrer In Water Damage

The City of Cumberland has filed a demurrer in the $5,000 damage suit filed against the municipality as a result of water damage when the main at Decatur Street and Baltimore Avenue burst August 5.

Lewis E. Tyree, trading as Tyree's Refrigeration Service, 39 Henderson Avenue, through his attorneys, William J. Gunter and William A. Geppert, docketed the action in Allegany County Circuit Court December 3.

He contended the water that poured down Glenn Street and Henderson Avenue damaged equipment he had stored in the basement of his place of business.

Thomas B. Finan, city solicitor, filed the demurrer yesterday in court. He stated the Tyree declaration was insufficient in law.

The plaintiff, the demurrer states, fails to allege that the defendant or its proper officers had notice filed as required by Section 142 of the Charter and Ordinances of the City of Cumberland of the break in the municipal water line which occasioned the damage alleged by Tyree in his declaration.

At the time of the alleged damages, the demurrer says, the defendant was engaged in the performance of a governmental function in supplying the residents of the city with adequate and sufficient water, and it was from this performance that the damages arose.

Finan also declared he will present other reasons at the hearing on the demurrer.

Yule Program Planned

A Christmas program will be held Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the Apostolic Church in Jesus, corner of Third and Arch streets.

Carpenti Will Head Italian Society

Other officers named were Armand Fanelli, vice president; Mrs. Armand Fanelli, secretary; Felix Caporale, Marco Cornacchio, and John Santeusiano, trustees; Joseph Ferdinando, Mrs. Maria J. Calvetti, and Frank Guido, counselors; Frank Madero, sergeant-at-arms.

The officers will be installed next month. A Christmas party was held following the election and refreshments were served. Andrew Rapillo, Mrs. Domenic DeArcangelis and Mrs. Fanelli were in charge.

The most dangerous seat in an automobile is on the right of the driver. More than 80 per cent of auto accident injuries are sustained there.

MY INSPIRATION CAKE

$25,000 1st Prize Winner in PILLSBURY'S 5th Grand National Recipe and Baking Contest won by Mrs. A. B. Kanago, Webster, South Dakota. Bake at 350° F. for 35 to 40 minutes. Makes two 9-inch round layers.

Place 1 cup finely chopped nuts evenly over bottoms of two well greased and lightly floured 9-inch round layer pans.

Sift together 2½ cups sifted PILLSBURY'S BEST ENRICHED FLOUR, 4½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and 1½ cups sugar into mixing bowl.

Beat for 1½ minutes, 150 strokes per minute, until batter is well blended. (With electric mixer blend at low speed, then beat at medium speed for 1½ minutes.)

Beat for 1½ minutes.

Spoon ¼ cup of batter carefully into each nut-lined pan, using about half of the batter. Sprinkle with the grated chocolate (half in each pan). Spoon remaining batter into pans, spreading carefully so chocolate is not disturbed.

Bake in moderate oven, 350°F, 35 to 40 minutes. Let cool in pans 10 to 15 minutes before turning out. Cool thoroughly and frost layers, nut-side up, with chocolate frosting. Spread frosting between and on sides of layers, but frost only ½ inch around top edge of cake and about one inch in center. Decorate chocolate frosting with reserved ⅓ cup white frosting thinned with 1 to 2 teaspoons water for easier spreading.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

Combine 2 squares (2 oz.) chocolate, ½ cup granulated sugar and ¼ cup water in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate melts and mixture is smooth and thick. Remove from heat. Add 4 egg yolks, beat thoroughly. Cool.

Cream ½ cup butter or margarine and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Blend in gradually 2 cups sifted confectioners sugar, creaming well. Reserve ⅓ cup of this mixture to decorate cake. Add cool Chocolate mixture to remaining butter-sugar mixture. Beat until smooth.

MY INSPIRATION CAKE

$25,000 1st Prize Winner in PILLSBURY'S 5th Grand National Recipe and Baking Contest won by Mrs. A. B. Kanago, Webster, South Dakota. Bake at 350° F. for 35 to 40 minutes. Makes two 9-inch round layers.

Place 1 cup finely chopped nuts evenly over bottoms of two well greased and lightly floured 9-inch round layer pans.

Sift together 2½ cups sifted PILLSBURY'S BEST ENRICHED FLOUR, 4½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and 1½ cups sugar into mixing bowl.

Add 2/3 cup shortening, 1¼ cups milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat for 1½ minutes, 150 strokes per minute, until batter is well blended. (With electric mixer blend at low speed, then beat at medium speed for 1½ minutes.)

Beat for 1½ minutes.

Spoon ¼ cup of batter carefully into each nut-lined pan, using about half of the batter. Sprinkle with the grated chocolate (half in each pan). Spoon remaining batter into pans, spreading carefully so chocolate is not disturbed.

Bake in moderate oven, 350°F, 35 to 40 minutes. Let cool in pans 10 to 15 minutes before turning out. Cool thoroughly and frost layers, nut-side up, with chocolate frosting. Spread frosting between and on sides of layers, but frost only ½ inch around top edge of cake and about one inch in center. Decorate chocolate frosting with reserved ⅓ cup white frosting thinned with 1 to 2 teaspoons water for easier spreading.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

Combine 2 square (2 oz.) chocolate, ½ cup granulated sugar and ¼ cup water in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate melts and mixture is smooth and thick. Remove from heat. Add 4 egg yolks, beat thoroughly. Cool.

Cream ½ cup butter or margarine and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Blend in gradually 2 cups sifted confectioners sugar, creaming well. Reserve ⅓ cup of this mixture to decorate cake. Add cool Chocolate mixture to remaining butter-sugar mixture. Beat until smooth.

Planes To Carry First Class Mail

Allegheny Airlines will transport first class mail and other preferential mails by air during the Christmas season.

This was announced in Washington by the Postoffice department and the Allegheny office there.

First class mail will be put on Allegheny flights between intermediate points and big-city terminals on the firm's seven-state system.

To differentiate between the movement of air mail and first class, the latter will have a lower priority and will be handled on a "space available" basis, officials here pointed out. Allegheny has 22 flights out of Pittsburgh.

Peak mails at this season tax surface facilities, hence the new plan, which already has been in operation between Chicago and New York. Co-ordination between the local station manager and the superintendent of mails will insure that first class mail is sent to the airport only when flying space is available.

The largest snowfall in 24 hours recorded in the United States was one of 60 inches at Giant forest, in California, in 1906.

City-Acquired Flood Land Advertised For Back Taxes

The City of Cumberland, which will eventually spend more than $700,000 in Ridgeley on flood control work, had land acquired there for the project advertised to be sold for back taxes.

This move by Mineral County authorities on six lots has been taken three times.

City officials, aware of the taxes and negotiating to have them lowered to $1 a year, paid Sheriff Paul Kemp the $96.02 owed on the six lots for this year.

Negotiating Tax Problem

Thomas B. Finan, city solicitor, said the city has been negotiating with Mineral County authorities to have the assessment reduced, as it is felt the land is dedicated to a public service and should not be taxed.

The City of Cumberland has several alternatives—deed the property to the Town of Ridgeley and let that municipality pay the taxes; have the West Virginia Legislature remove the assessment through a bill or have the taxes reduced to the token $1.

According to official estimates, the City of Cumberland will eventually pay out $528,000 for land acquisition in Ridgeley.

This is compared to $756,480 for property purchases in Cumberland.

The federal government will also spend an additional $176,000 for land in Ridgeley.

Ridgeley Contributes Nothing

As the project is set up, neither Ridgeley, Mineral County or the State of West Virginia will contribute any money towards the cost of the work.

The project is designed to give Ridgeley, as well as Cumberland, protection from high waters.

In addition to federal construction contributions of $808,760, there will be a total of $1,704,881 spent in Ridgeley for flood control.

Injured Survivor Of Fatal Crash Still Critical

Hampshire Countians Killed On Route 50

A Hampshire County, W. Va. man remained in critical condition in Winchester, Va., Memorial Hospital with injuries sustained in a two-truck collision which killed his two companions instantly Wednesday night on U. S. Route 50.

The victims: Hollie Tucker Shanholtz, 39, Pleasant Dale, W. Va., brother of Jacob B. and Harvey Shanholtz, this city.

Slightly Improved

The injured man, Russell Iser, also of Pleasant Dale, was reported as slightly improved last night but still in critical condition, according to attendants at the Winchester hospital. Iser's injuries included a fractured skull, a severe brain concussion, and cuts and bruises over much of his body.

Slightly hurt were Joseph R. Hollingsworth, 19, of Keyser, and his brother, William.

West Virginia State Police Sgt. R. E. Schnell said the accident occurred on the west slope of Cooper Mountain about one-quarter mile from the crest of the mountain. He said that the empty one and one-half ton lumber truck in which Shanholtz, Bowen and Iser were riding was headed west and was on the wrong side of the road. The identity of the driver has not been made because Sgt. Schnell has been unable to talk with Iser, the lone survivor, in view of his condition.

The three men had delivered a load of lumber to Winchester earlier Wednesday.

The truck driven by Joseph Hollingsworth, was headed east on Route 50.

Robert Hollingsworth, driving another truck, said he was about 50 yards ahead of his brothers. He glanced at the rear view mirror and couldn't see the lights of their machine. Stopping, he went back down the road and found the wreckage.

Authorities said crow bars had to be used to pry open doors of the truck in which the two men met violent deaths. Both machines were badly damaged.

Probe Continues

Sgt. Schnell said the crash was not caused by weather conditions. He added that the road was steep, but dry and straight. Investigation is continuing.

Shortly before the mishap, Robert Hollingsworth stated, another truck traveling east passed him.

Shanholtz was a son of Jacob R. Shanholtz, Pleasant Dale near Augusta, and the late Nannie V. (Day) Shanholtz.

City Hall Furnace Back In Operation

The City Hall heating system was back in operation yesterday after an emergency repair job on the return line to the furnace.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said a new return line was installed Wednesday night after a break developed in the old line.

She said it was cheaper to renew the line since the broken pipe, installed about 40 years ago, was covered with concrete.

where anyone goes, he is always under guard. When the American children go to school they are taken in Army school buses. A guard meets each child at the door and makes certain each child goes in the house when the return is made. Personal identification must always be at hand and becomes something of a nuisance, said Mrs. Rinker.

The Army has everything it needs, she claimed. There is plenty of food, clothing, fuel, and medical care. Housing is the best, and at first the Army even paid for civilian domestic servants, but recently discontinued this practice. Most officers kept their help and pay the wages themselves now, she said.

Mrs. Rinker said the most fun she had while she was in Germany was due to a mistake she made one day.

Starting out to the Army Post Exchange to do the family shopping, she inadvertently boarded a wrong bus. "I rode for seven hours and saw sections of the city I never knew existed before we got back to where we started. You can imagine the clamor and anxiety I caused when the family found I had not reached the Post Exchange.

"When I did get off the bus, a guard took me in tow right away. My, you never saw so much fuss! But, really, I enjoyed every minute of it."

Critical Of Servants, Shops

She is a little critical of German housekeeping. Their floors are clean, but they don't know how to keep food clean and fresh. The servants have to be taught. She is also critical of the attitude of shop keepers. Most of these shops are mere stands built around, in or adjacent to ruins caused by air raids. "They won't clean up a bit, and in many of them, even the grass and weeds grow up right inside."

Mrs. Rinker believes there are many fine German people, but she also believes that they should be encouraged to do much more for themselves.

In the six years abroad she said she did not see a single Russian, but heard much talk about them. The Germans are always in fear of Communist spies, she stated.

She liked Paris, France, where they spent a couple of weeks. Everything is old, but in pretty good shape. "The French people treated us very nice, but you can tell there is anxiety there and of course there is still a mark of the war in some places." She believes most French people still distrust the Germans.

Saying a word of sincere praise for the American Army, Mrs. Rinker said, "the Army provides well for its people. It does a good job, especially for the officers. The enlisted men have it pretty good too, but it seems to most of us that they do not have anything to do with their spare time. I don't think it would be much fun being an enlisted man in occupation forces over there," she indicated.

After a visit here in her hometown, Mrs. Rinker said she plans to visit her other daughter, Mrs. Jane Potenza, Milford, Conn. and then go to Bloomington to rejoin Capt. and Mrs. Link and the two youngsters.

Also four brothers, Herman Coper, member of the New York State University faculty in Albany; Harry Cooper, Minneapolis, Minn.; Richard Cooper, Peoria, Ill.; Edwin Cooper, superintendent of schools in Robbins Vale, Minneapolis; a sister, Mrs. David Stoddard.

After receiving instruction at the Salvation Army Training School in Chicago, Mrs. Stimler was appointed for service in Honolulu, Hawaii. There she spent several years in the missionary field among the local people, of Japanese, Chinese, Puerto Ricans and Hawaiian extraction.

Service In Hawaii

While there, she said, she met a woman from Piedmont, W. Va. Mrs. Stimler added she doesn't remember her name now, but she met the area woman at the last train station to one of the large volcanoes. "It's a small world," she said.

When she returned from overseas, Mrs. Stimler was married in San Francisco. Her husband is now deceased, but besides her daughter, she has a son, Robert Stimler, who is a mechanic at Aberdeen Proving Ground.

Another son, Walter Stimler, was lost about four years ago while flying an Air Force plane near Japan. Her daughter-in-law, Walter's widow, assists her often at the wrapping booth.

But the joy of the booth, Mrs. Stimler declared, is in meeting people. "Most people, she said, "are good people, friendly and kind. In the 15 years I have been here, I can count on my hand those who were a little unkind."

Elmer J. Hite Elected Head Of Engineers

Engineers Club of Cumberland officers for 1954 were announced at the club's annual "Ladies Night" dinner Wednesday at Ali Ghan Country Club.

Elmer J. Hite, district engineer of the C&P Telephone Company, is the new president, succeeding Charles L. Herath, chief engineer of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Other 1954 officers are H. Nelson Sellers, vice president; S. J. Maschue, secretary, and Walter L. Schack, treasurer.

New Executive Group

The new executive committee, in addition to the officers, includes I. H. Vandegrift, Paul R. Morgan, John W. Kreidler, E. F. Brewer, John A. Cupler, James A. Duff, H. Nelson Sellers and Vernon E. Wade. Retiring members include Herath, W. D. Bartlett, John L. Baggett, J. C. Cochenour, William E. Toms and A. H. Wilson.

Herath, after welcoming the lady guests, traced the progress of the club during 1953, pointing out an increase in membership from 103 to 118.

Appreciation Expressed

Mrs. Herath, responding for the ladies, expressed their appreciation for being included in one of the year's 12 meetings with a humorous discourse.

The dinner invocation was given by Douglas Smith. All of the ladies were presented with Christmas corsages and all of the approximately 160 persons at the dinner received pens as gifts of the Kelly-Springfield Company. Mr. and Mrs. Kreidler directed the group singing of Christmas carols.

George Bailey, New York City, proved a one-man show in handling the entertainment portion of the program. The memory portion included the repeating the name of each guest. This was followed with feats of magic and he concluded his program by playing musical selections on glasses, jugs and bells.

Bowling Green Firemen To Buy New Truck

The Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Department contracted to purchase from the Howe Fire Apparatus Company, Anderson, Ind., a fully equipped piece of fire apparatus.

When received it will be in addition to the 1928 American-LaFrance fire truck the department has been using for five years. It will give the residents of the area served by the Bowling Green Volunteer Department the benefit of one of the most modern pieces of fire apparatus in Allegany County.

The new truck will be equipped with a high-pressure pump, capable of delivering water at 800 to 1,000-pound pressure, will carry a 500-gallon water tank, and will be mounted on a GMC chassis.

Yule Service Planned By Masonic Unit

Plans for the annual Christmas service of Antioch Commandery 6, Knights Templar, were completed Tuesday night in the Masonic Temple. The service will be conducted at the temple at 11 a. m. Christmas Day.

Roy V. Ringler, eminent commander, said the service will be open to the public. The committee in charge is composed of Henry M. Earl, Grant A. Wiebel and James C. Watkins, all past commanders of Antioch Commandery.

It was announced that two films will be shown at a meeting Tuesday night, February 2, at the temple. The films, "Grand Encampment Parade" and "Carnival Ball," are in color and were taken during the recent grand encampment of Knights Templar in New Orleans, Ringler said.

B & O Income Shows Drop In November

BALTIMORE, Dec. 17 (AP) — The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad announced today its net income for November was "slightly more than" 2 million dollars, a drop of about $1,300,000 from November, 1952.

The decrease was attributed principally to a reduction of more than 5 million dollars in railway operating revenues because of a falling off in traffic.

Net for the first 11 months of 1953 was given as about $1,500,000 more than for the same period last year.

Marriage Licenses

Edward Guy Ours and Ethel Dodson Stout, both Moorefield, W. Va.

Leroy Walter Stevens, 172 North Centre Street, and Janet Kathryn Hitchins, Midlothian.

Wayne Eugene Keplinger, Maysville, W. Va., and Dorothy Louise Lewis, Petersburg, W. Va.

Local Moose Lodge To Distribute Food

Cumberland Lodge 271, Loyal Order of Moose, is collecting food for the Christmas basket program for needy members and others.

Robert Snyder, chairman of the program, said more than 2,000 articles of food, mostly canned goods have been donated by the Moose members up until yesterday. The lodge will distribute about 30 food baskets on Christmas Eve.

The baskets will include a selection of canned goods, vegetables and a ham. Snyder said the lodge will check with the Associated Charities so that no duplication in food basket distribution will result.

The lodge has also arranged for a Christmas party for children of members on December 24 from 2 to 4 p. m. A Christmas tree and Santa will be on hand and a treat will be given each child. Movies will also be shown.

The American Red Cross was organized in Washington in 1881.

Lions Start Christmas Tree Sale Today

The Lions Club sale of Christmas trees will be conducted today and tomorrow on Salem Streeet next to the State Armory. The sale today will be from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. and on Saturday 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

The city police have made arrangements to close the short street to vehicular travel.

Proceeds from the sale provide eye examinations and glasses for underprivileged children and eye operations for children and adults who would otherwise be unable to have them.

The Lions' tree sale was started in 1944. For the first seven years it was conducted downtown and the last three at Fort Hill stadium.

Fort Ashby Man Hurt In Mishap

A 28-year-old driver sustained serious head and face injuries early yesterday when an automobile careened from Bedford Road, eight-tenths of a mile north of here, and crashed against a culvert.

Lee Harrison Judy, Fort Ashby, was admitted to Memorial Hospital in a serious condition although he was reported somewhat improved last night.

State Police said Judy's car, headed south on Route 220, left the right side of the highway and traveled 350 feet before hitting the culvert. The accident occurred at 3 a. m.

Judy was riding alone. Trooper Joseph Stakem investigated.

Elmer J. Hite Elected Head Of Engineers

Engineers Club of Cumberland officers for 1954 were announced at the club's annual "Ladies Night" dinner Wednesday at Ali Ghan Country Club.

Elmer J. Hite, district engineer of the C&P Telephone Company, is the new president, succeeding Charles L. Herath, chief engineer of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Other 1954 officers are H. Nelson Sellers, vice president; S. J. Maschue, secretary, and Walter L. Schack, treasurer.

New Executive Group

The new executive committee, in addition to the officers, includes I. H. Vandegrift, Paul R. Morgan, John W. Kreidler, E. F. Brewer, John A. Cupler, James A. Duff, H. Nelson Sellers and Vernon E. Wade. Retiring members include Herath, W. D. Bartlett, John L. Baggett, J. C. Cochenour, William E. Toms and A. H. Wilson.

Herath, after welcoming the lady guests, traced the progress of the club during 1953, pointing out an increase in membership from 103 to 118.

Appreciation Expressed

Mrs. Herath, responding for the ladies, expressed their appreciation for being included in one of the year's 12 meetings with a humorous discourse.

The dinner invocation was given by Douglas Smith. All of the ladies were presented with Christmas corsages and all of the approximately 160 persons at the dinner received pens as gifts of the Kelly-Springfield Company. Mr. and Mrs. Kreidler directed the group singing of Christmas carols.

George Bailey, New York City, proved a one-man show in handling the entertainment portion of the program. The memory portion included the repeating the name of each guest. This was followed with feats of magic and he concluded his program by playing musical selections on glasses, jugs and bells.

Bowling Green Firemen To Buy New Truck

The Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Department contracted to purchase from the Howe Fire Apparatus Company, Anderson, Ind., a fully equipped piece of fire apparatus.

When received it will be in addition to the 1928 American-LaFrance fire truck the department has been using for five years. It will give the residents of the area served by the Bowling Green Volunteer Department the benefit of one of the most modern pieces of fire apparatus in Allegany County.

The new truck will be equipped with a high-pressure pump, capable of delivering water at 800 to 1,000-pound pressure, will carry a 500-gallon water tank, and will be mounted on a GMC chassis.

Cranberry Salads For Your Christmas Table

Take the family's pet Cranberry Salad recipe and dress it up for the big Christmas dinner. See what a full party dress does for these holiday favorites.

A Christmas Package Salad! Here's a salad that's fun to make and guests are sure to love. Spoon a cranberry gelatine mixture into a square baking dish to jel. At serving time cut 2 by 4 inch servings. "Tie on" cream cheese ribbons with your pastry tube and arrange on the table before dinner is announced. (A Christmas Tree centerpiece would make a perfect setting for these Christmas Package Salads.)

Cranberry Christmas Package Salads

1 orange
1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce (crushed with a fork)
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¾ cup cold water

Put orange, rind and all, through food chopper. Add crushed cranberry sauce. Place gelatine in a custard cup, add cold water, and let stand for 2 minutes. Place custard cup in pan of boiling water and heat until dissolved. Add to cranberry-orange mixture and mix thoroughly. Spoon cranberry-gelatine mixture into loaf pan or rectangular dish and chill until firm. Cut into rectangular pieces to serve (2 by 3 or 2 by 4 inches). Place on lettuce.

Soften cream cheese with a spoonful of milk or mayonnaise. Fill pastry tube with cheese (or make a small funnel-shaped tube with heavy paper). Apply cheese to salad molds to represent ribbons on a package. White cheese ribbons on a cranberry red package salad! Serves 6.

PACKAGE SALADS — Make some cranberry Christmas Package Salads for your Christmas dinner. Tie each salad with ribbons of softened cream cheese or whipped cream just before serving.

Here's another Cranberry Salad idea for your Christmas table. Sturdy cranberry Christmas trees can be molded in cone-shaped paper cups for the festive meal. At serving time peel the paper cups from the salads. Trim with chains of pale green cream cheese or tinted whipped cream from a pastry tube.

Cranberry Christmas Tree Salads

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce crushed with fork
1 cup finely shredded cabbage
¼ cup diced celery
½ cup chopped walnuts

Place gelatine in pyrex cup. Add cold water. Let stand 2 minutes. Place cup with gelatine in pan of boiling water and heat until gelatine is dissolved. Add to crushed cranberry sauce. Fold in cabbage, celery, and nuts. When mixture begins to thicken, pour into cone-shaped paper cups. Support filled cups in small glasses. Chill until firm. Place on lettuce and peel off paper cups. Trim with beads of softened cream cheese.

Or try this for a Christmas Salad Mold.

Minted Cranberry Salad

16 marshmallows
2 tablespoons orange or pineapple juice
½ teaspoon peppermint extract
1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce, cubed
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup cream, whipped

Put marshmallows and fruit juice over low heat, folding until marshmallows are melted. Remove from heat. Add flavoring.* Fold in cranberry cubes, mayonnaise, and whipped cream. Pour into individual molds and chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold . . . garnish with sprigs of mint. Makes 4 large individual molds or 6 small molds.

* Few drops pink or green food coloring may be added here.

Among domesticated animals, the horse lives the longest. It lives from 20 to 35 years while cows rarely live beyond 25 and dogs live five to 15 years, occasionally 20.

Tangerines Are Popular

AFTER heavy holiday meals, what could look more appetizing and be more sensible than tangerines and cheese for dessert? The sweet juicy little kid-glove fruit from Florida is perfect for such use, and here's a suggestion for an attractive way of serving them. Instructions elsewhere on this page.

Among all the citrus fruits, tangerines are the sweetest and for that reason they're a favorite for eating as is — and so good that way that it's not necessary to try to improve them by cooking. Children love them because they're so easy to peel, and you'll love them for the same reason — lets you fix all sorts of attractive arrangements, such as these handy little stands.

Tangerines belong in every lunchbox during the winter months, their brief harvest season, for they're an excellent source of vitamin C, so important in the daily diet in order to keep resistance to colds at a high level. They're just as apropos for finishing off heavy holiday meals, served with raisins and cheeses.

Dessert Tangerines

Make a cut around center of tangerine. Make vertical cuts from blossom end down to center cut; remove peel. Loosen remaining peel with finger to about ½-inch from bottom. Carefully invert peel to make a base as illustrated in photograph. Remove white membrane and pull sections apart slightly. Fill center with raisins.

Dressing, Food Poisoning

Play it safe on Christmas day by making the dressing for your turkey at the last minute and stuffing that bird just before you pop it into your preheated oven. Otherwise, you may actually be taking a chance on food poisoning, specialists of the Agricultural Extension Service, West Virginia University, pointed out here today.

The broth, chopped giblets, and egg so often used in dressing are all good media for bacterial growth, the specialists explained. And here's just what can happen if you stuff the bird ahead of time and refrigerate it overnight or for three or four hours. While the dressing is cooling off in the refrigerator and then while it's warming up again in the oven, there's lots of extra time allowed for the growth of organisms and the production of toxins if any food poisoning bacteria just happen to be present. And the coldness of the dressing when it goes into the oven may mean it never does reach the high temperatures needed to destroy bacteria. If those bacteria are present and have already formed toxins, even high temperatures won't destroy the toxin.

Another good practice, according to the Extension specialists, is to let the roast turkey "rest" for about 20 minutes after it comes out of the oven. The temperature of the dressing actually goes up as much as 5 or 10 degrees in this time. What's more, the turkey itself will be improved. Many of the juices are reabsorbed by the meat in this time, making carving easier and the flavor better.

CHRISTMAS TREES — Fresh Cut $1.00 up

Cranberry Salads For Your Christmas Table

Take the family's pet Cranberry Salad recipe and dress it up for the big Christmas dinner. See what a full party dress does for these holiday favorites.

(A Christmas Package Salad). Here's a salad that's fun to make and guests are sure to love. Spoon a cranberry gelatine mixture into a square baking dish to jell. At serving time cut 2 by 4 inch servings. "Tie on" cream cheese ribbons with your pastry tube and arrange on the table before dinner is announced. (A Christmas Tree centerpiece would make a perfect setting for these Christmas Package Salads.)

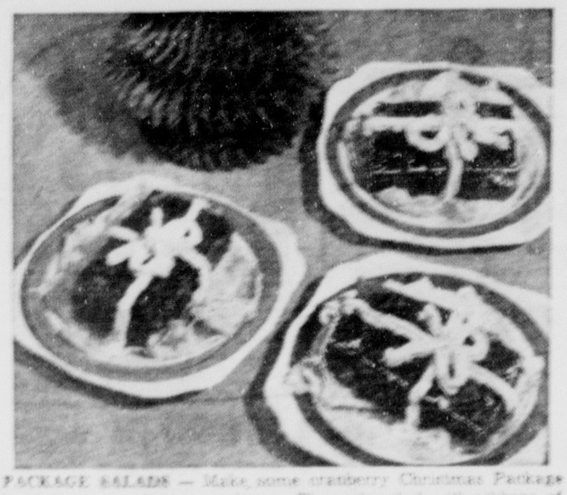
Cranberry Christmas Package Salads

1 orange
2 pound can jellied cranberry sauce (crushed with a fork)
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water

Put orange, rind and all, through food chopper. Add crushed cranberry sauce. Place gelatine in a custard cup, add cold water, and let stand for 2 minutes. Place custard cup in pan of boiling water and heat until dissolved. Add to cranberry-orange mixture and mix thoroughly. Spoon cranberry-gelatine mixture into loaf pan or rectangular dish and chill until firm. Cut into rectangular pieces to serve (2 by 3 or 2 by 4 inches). Place on lettuce.

Soften cream cheese with a spoonful of milk or mayonnaise. Fill pastry tube with cheese (or make a small funnel-shaped tube with heavy paper). Apply cheese to salad molds to represent ribbons on a package. White cheese ribbons cold water. Let stand 2 minutes on a cranberry red package salad. Place cup with gelatine in pan of Serves 6. boiling water and heat until gela-



PACKAGE SALADS — Make some cranberry Christmas Package Salads for your Christmas dinner. Tie each salad with ribbons of softened cream cheese or whipped cream just before serving.

Here's another Cranberry Salad idea for your Christmas table. Sturdy cranberry Christmas trees can be molded in cone-shaped paper cups for the festive meal. At serving time peel the paper cups from the salads. Trim with chains of pale green cream cheese or tinted whipped cream from a pastry tube.

Cranberry Christmas Tree Salads

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce crushed with fork
1 cup finely shredded cabbage
½ cup diced celery
½ cup chopped walnuts

Place gelatine in pyrex cup. Add cold water. Let stand 2 minutes. Place cup with gelatine in pan of boiling water and heat until gelatine is dissolved. Add to crushed cranberry sauce. Fold in cabbage, celery and nuts. When mixture begins to thicken, pour into cone-shaped paper cups. Support filled cups in small glasses. Chill until firm. Place on lettuce and peel off paper cups. Trim with bands of softened cream cheese.

Or try this for a Christmas Salad Mold.

Minted Cranberry Salad

16 marshmallows
2 tablespoons orange or pineapple juice
¼ teaspoon peppermint extract
1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce, cubed
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup cream, whipped

Put marshmallows and fruit juice over low heat, folding until marshmallows are melted. Remove from heat. Add flavoring.* Fold in cranberry cubes, mayonnaise, and whipped cream. Pour into individual molds and chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold . . . garnish with sprigs of mint. Makes 6 large individual molds or 6 small molds.

* Few drops pink or green food coloring may be added here.

Among domesticated animals the horse lives the longest. It lives from 20 to 25 years while cows rarely live beyond 25 and dogs live five to 15 years, occasionally 20.

Tangerines Are Popular

AFTER heavy holiday meals, what could look more appetizing and be more sensible than tangerines and cheese for dessert? The sweet juicy little mid-winter fruit from Florida is perfect for such use, and here's a suggestion for an attractive way of serving them. Instructions elsewhere on this page.

Among all the citrus fruits, tangerines are the sweetest and for that reason they're a favorite for eating as is — and so good that way that it's not necessary to try to improve them by cooking. Children love them because they're so easy to peel, and you'll love them for the same reason — lets you fix all sorts of attractive arrangements, such as these handy little stands.

Tangerines belong in every lunchbox during the winter months, their brief harvest season, for they're an excellent source of vitamin C, so important in the daily diet.

Dessert Tangerines

Make a cut around center of tangerine. Make vertical cuts from blossom end down to center cut; remove peel. Loosen remaining peel with finger to about ½-inch from bottom. Carefully invert peel, to make a base as illustrated in photograph. Remove white membrane and pull sections apart slightly. Fill center with raisins.

Dressing, Food Poisoning

Play it safe on Christmas day by making the dressing for your turkey separately and baking it in a casserole. Then you may actually be taking a chance on food poisoning, specialists of the Agricultural Extension Service, West Virginia University, pointed out here today.

The broth, chopped giblets, and egg so often used in dressing are all good media for bacterial growth, the specialists explained. And here's just what can happen if you stuff the bird ahead of time and refrigerate it overnight or for three or four hours. While the dressing is cooling off in the refrigerator and then while it's warming up again in the oven, there's lots of extra time allowed for the growth of organisms and the production of toxins if any food poisoning bacteria just happen to be present. And the coldness of the dressing when it goes into the oven may mean it never does reach the high temperatures needed to destroy bacteria. If those bacteria are present and have already formed toxins, even high temperatures won't destroy the toxin.

Another good practice, according to the Extension specialists, is to let the roast turkey "rest" for about 20 minutes after it comes out of the oven. The temperature of the dressing actually goes up as much as 5 or 10 degrees in this time. What's more, the turkey itself will be improved. Many of the juices are reabsorbed by the meat in this time, making carving easier and the flavor better.

If you're roasting a mammoth bird, it's a good idea to bake the dressing separately. The dressing may not get thoroughly cooked otherwise.

Cranberry Ice Cream Pie

1½ cups gingersnap crumbs
¾ cup sugar
⅓ cup melted butter
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1 cup whole cranberry sauce

Combine gingersnap crumbs, sugar and melted butter in bowl. Mix until thoroughly blended. Cover bottom and sides of a buttered 8-inch pie pan with crumb mixture. Pack down firmly with bottom of glass or metal measuring cup. (Reserve small portion of crumbs to sprinkle over top of pie.) Chill in refrigerator.

When crust is thoroughly chilled, fill with vanilla ice cream. Top with whole cranberry sauce and sprinkle remaining crumbs mixture over top. Place in freezing unit and freeze until serving time. (May be made day before serving.) Makes 6 servings.

GRIN AND BEAR IT By Lichty

Potato Specialties

If reasons are needed, there are several excellent ones for making generous use of potatoes right now. They're plentiful, reasonable in price and of top quality. But by far the best argument for potatoes is their all-around goodness. They can appear on the table all seven days of the week without wearing out their welcome, and apparently do. Americans eat an astonishing quantity of potatoes — 100 pounds apiece in the course of a year, which comes to a tidy daily serving.

The really interesting thing about potatoes, though, isn't how often they're served, but how many ways there are of serving them. Here, for example, are three smart suggestions, any of which will add much to the stature of the spud, and the cook thereof.

Potato Pancakes

- 3½ cups coarsely grated raw potatoes
- ⅓ cup grated onions
- 2 eggs
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1½ cups corn flakes

Combine all ingredients in mixing bowl; mix well. Let stand about 5 minutes. Pan fry tablespoonfuls of mixture in heated shortening or drippings until brown and crisp on both sides, turning only once.

Yield: 10-12 pancakes, about 3 inches in diameter.

Baked Potatoes With Sour Cream

- ⅔ cup chopped onions
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup ready-to-eat bran
- ¼ cup grated cheese
- 1 cup sour cream
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 4 cups sliced cooked potatoes
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cook onions in butter until a golden color. Crush bran into fine crumbs; mix with grated cheese. Combine sour cream and eggs. Put half of the potatoes in a greased 10x6x2-inch baking dish. Spread half of the onions over potatoes, sprinkle with half of the bran mixture and pour on half of the sour cream and egg mixture. Repeat using remaining potatoes, onions, bran mixture and sour cream mixture; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 25 minutes.

Yield: 6-8 servings.

Eggs In A Boat

- 3 very large baking potatoes
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 6 eggs
- 1 cup corn flakes
- ¼ cup grated American cheese
- 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

Scrub potatoes thoroughly; rub with butter or bacon fat. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 45 minutes, or until tender.

Cut potatoes in half lengthwise. Remove pulp; mash well. Whip with butter, milk and salt. Fill potato shells with this mixture, making a depression in center. Break an egg into each depression. Crush corn flakes into fine crumbs; mix with cheese and melted butter. Sprinkle over potatoes. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 25 minutes, or until eggs are set.

Yield: 6 servings.

Potato Specialties

If reasons are needed, there are several excellent ones for making generous use of potatoes right now. They're plentiful, reasonable in price and of top quality. But by far the best argument for potatoes is their all-around goodness. They can appear on the table all seven days of the week without wearing out their welcome, and apparently do. Americans eat an astonishing quantity of potatoes — 100 pounds apiece in the course of a year, which comes to a tidy daily serving.

The really interesting thing about potatoes, though, isn't how often they're served, but how many ways there are of serving them. Here, for example, are three smart suggestions, any of which will add much to the stature of the spud, and the cook thereof.

Potato Pancakes

3½ cups coarsely grated raw potatoes
⅓ cup grated onions
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ cups corn flakes

Combine all ingredients in mixing bowl; mix well. Let stand about 5 minutes. Pan fry tablespoonfuls of mixture in heated shortening or drippings until brown and crisp on both sides, turning only once.

Yield: 10-12 pancakes, about 3 inches in diameter.

Baked Potatoes With Sour Cream

⅔ cup chopped onions
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup ready-to-eat bran
¼ cup grated cheese
1 cup sour cream
2 eggs, slightly beaten
4 cups sliced cooked potatoes
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cook onions in butter until a golden color. Crush bran into fine crumbs; mix with grated cheese. Combine sour cream and eggs. Put half of the potatoes in a greased 10x6x2-inch baking dish. Spread half of the onions over potatoes, sprinkle with half of the bran mixture and pour on half of the sour cream and egg mixture. Repeat using remaining potatoes, onions, bran mixture and sour cream mixture; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 25 minutes.

Yield: 6-8 servings.

Eggs In A Boat

3 very large baking potatoes
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon salt
6 eggs
1 cup corn flakes
¼ cup grated American cheese
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

Scrub potatoes thoroughly; rub with butter or bacon fat. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 45 minutes, or until tender.

Cut potatoes in half lengthwise. Remove pulp; mash well. Whip with butter, milk and salt. Fill potato shells with this mixture, making a depression in center. Break an egg into each depression. Crush corn flakes into fine crumbs; mix with cheese and melted butter. Sprinkle over potatoes. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 25 minutes, or until eggs are set.

Yield: 6 servings.

New Fashioned Christmas Pudding

The climax of Christmas dinner is that moment when lights are lowered and all eyes expectantly watch the Christmas pudding brought with proud ceremony to the table. It's a tradition that warms all hearts.

This year, as the Christmas pudding is placed on the table, it will look just as tradition tells us it should look—dark, and rich, and fruity. But at the very first taste you'll know it has acquired a modern touch . . . for here is a pudding that looks rich, tastes rich yet is light, delicate. This is a new fashioned Christmas Fruit Pudding—it has apple sauce in it. It's the apple sauce that gives it lightness, that enhances the flavor of the candied fruits, raisins, dates and other ingredients.

To make the pudding a sure-for-certain triumph, use ready-prepared apple sauce, obtained at any grocery store in cans or jars. Canned apple sauce has the special flavor, the just-right consistency needed. This smooth consistency and zestful flavor are achieved by manufacturers through careful selection of apples picked at the peak of ripeness, and by controlled cooking and canning.

So, for this Merry Christmas, serve the traditional Fruit Pudding made from a recipe-designed to please young moderns—and grandma and grandpa, too.

Christmas Fruit Pudding

1 egg
¾ cup molasses
1 cup canned apple sauce
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 cups seedless raisins
1 cup mixed candied fruits
1 cup chopped dates
2 tablespoons melted shortening

Beat egg; add molasses and apple sauce. Sift together flour, salt and baking soda; add to first mixture. Mix smooth. Add raisins, candied fruits and dates; mix thoroughly. Add shortening. Pour into 1½ quart greased pudding mold; cover tightly. Steam 3 hours. Unmold; serve with your favorite pudding sauce. Yields 10-12 servings.

Rice Pudding, as it may be called, is an old fashioned dish that has kept its popularity through the years. The Scandinavian folks always include a rice pudding in their famous, tantalizing Smorgasbord. In this, it serves as a part of the main course, not a dessert. Most American homemakers like it for dessert, either on the family menu, or when guests share the meal.

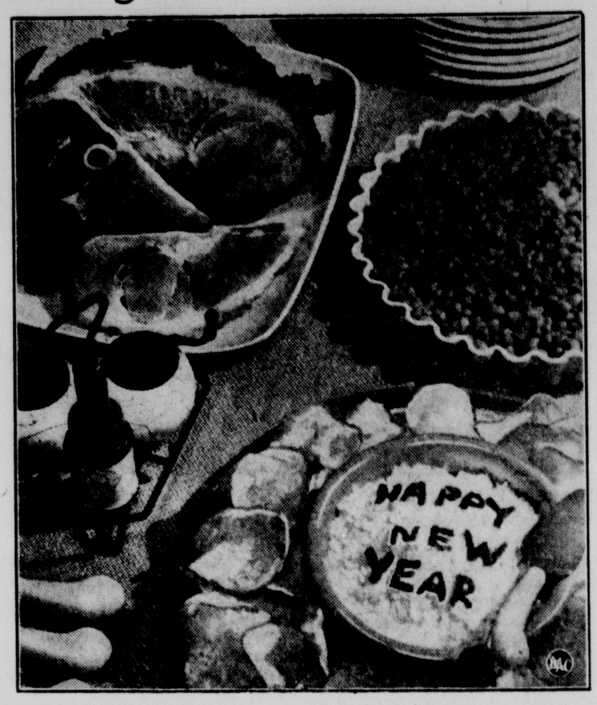
The high acceptance of the custard-type rice pudding shows it is appreciated for the high nutritional quality of its ingredients. Milk, always necessary in rounding out the family food requirement for the day, is included as one of the basic ingredients. Old Fashioned Rice Custard, served to the family, is an excellent way to increase the milk intake for the day.

OLD FASHIONED RICE CUSTARD

1 cup rice, cooked until fluffy
4 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter, melted
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
3 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup raisins
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Mix cooked rice with remaining ingredients. Pour into a buttered deep round casserole and set in pan of hot water. Sprinkle with nutmeg. (Cinnamon may be used also, if desired.) Bake in a moderate oven, 350°F., 1¼ to 1½ hours, or until a clean knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serves 6 to 8. Good, hot or cold. For the family, Old Fashioned Rice Custard may be served with cream. Other toppings that may be used are: spiced whipped cream, lemon sauce or other fruit sauces, and caramel sauce, with a bit of coffee flavor added.

Cottage Cheese and Tobasco



NEW YEAR'S EVE get-togethers should be planned around old favorites, to be sure, and they're easy to prepare when you add new touches and come up with these Tabasco-seasoned goodies — cottage cheese spread, baked beans and ham. Recipes elsewhere on this page.

Just as hot sauce adds its subtle zest to seafood, tomato juice, and gravies, so does it perk up one of our favorite foods, cottage cheese. The addition of just a bit of this liquid pepper seasoning takes cottage cheese out of the bland class and makes it a real he-man food.

This cottage cheese spread is one of the quickest and easiest to prepare for buffets, and it goes well with potato chips, toast rounds or crackers. Mix a big bowl, and decorate the top with cut-out pimiento for the festive night.

Let the rest of your menu be one which you can prepare well in advance, and which you know will ring a bell with your guests—such as this tried and true baked bean and ham supper. Both dishes are better for the addition of hot sauce to the seasoning. Hot sauce, aged just just like fine wine, enhances other food flavors. Here are recipes for the complete supper menu, enough to serve from 8 to 12 of your best friends.

Quick Cheese Spread

1 cup (8-ounce package) cottage cheese
¼ teaspoon hot sauce
Pimiento

Mix together cottage cheese and hot sauce; turn into serving dish. Cut Happy New Year letters from pimiento; place on top of cheese. Serve as a spread with potato chips or crackers.

Yield: 1 cup.

Quick Party Baked Beans

½ teaspoon hot sauce
4 tablespoons unsulphured molasses
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon salt
4 1-pound cans baked beans

Add hot sauce to unsulphured molasses, mustard and salt; mix well. Stir into baked beans in skillet or casserole. Bake in a moderate oven, (350° F.) 45 minutes, or cook on to pof range 15 minutes.

Yield: 8 to 12 servings.

Glazed Ham

¼ cup unsulphured molasses
¼ cup prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon hot sauce
¼ teaspoon ginger

Bake ham as directed. Forty five minutes before ham is done, take from oven. Score the fat surface; stud with cloves. Mix together unsulphured molasses, mustard, Tabasco and ginger. Brush ham heavily with the glaze; return to oven and complete baking. Brush with remaining glaze last 15 minutes baking time.

Apple juice is a wonderfully good bet to have on hand during the holiday season. You can serve it cold and refreshing, or hot and comforting. It's delicious either way . . . and young folks, old folks, all folks enjoy it.

Approximately one-half of all working Americans are manufacturing and selling items today that were generally unknown 50 years ago.

California ranks first in national forests with more than 25 million acres. Idaho, Alaska, Montana and Oregon follow in that order.

Potatoes Featured In Merchandising

"Potatoes are plentiful for the weeks ahead at a real bargain," state the agricultural economists of the University of Maryland. "The expected crop of 374 million bushels of potatoes in the United States this year assures a big supply. This crop is 7 per cent larger than last year with a sizeable increase in the so-called late states which supply our winter needs."

The economists explain that the U. S. Department of Agriculture is cooperating with the trade on a merchandising program during the period of December 3-12. This program was recommended by the National Potato Council to aid the movement of potatoes. During this period retailers will feature potatoes in abundant stocks. Prices will be favorable for buying large quantities for those who have a place to store them.

Some facts on the food value and suggestions for preparation are also given by the economists: "At current prices, a serving of potatoes costs only about a penny. For those who are weight conscious, there is no need for alarm as one medium-sized potato has only about 100 calories. It does, however, contain a number of nutrients such as Vitamin C, iron and thiamine.

"For best quality choose potatoes which are firm, clean, bright, shallow-eyed, free from cuts and bruises and evenly shaped. Wilted, leathery, discolored or mis-shapen potatoes should be avoided. Do not buy potatoes that have turned green as the green part tastes bitter and is harmful. Medium-sized potatoes are usually the most desirable for general use, but selection on the basis of size should be governed by the use for which they are intended. Potatoes with a mealy texture are suitable for baking and mashing. The waxy, firm types are best suited for boiling and for use in salads."

The marketing specialists say that good quality, mature potatoes will store well for a month or more if properly handled. They suggest a cool, though not cold, storage place. The storage space should be dark. Light makes potatoes turn green.

For a breakfast dish that's delicious and quick on Christmas morning, try canned apple slices, dotted through with raisins, and served with brown sugar and cream.

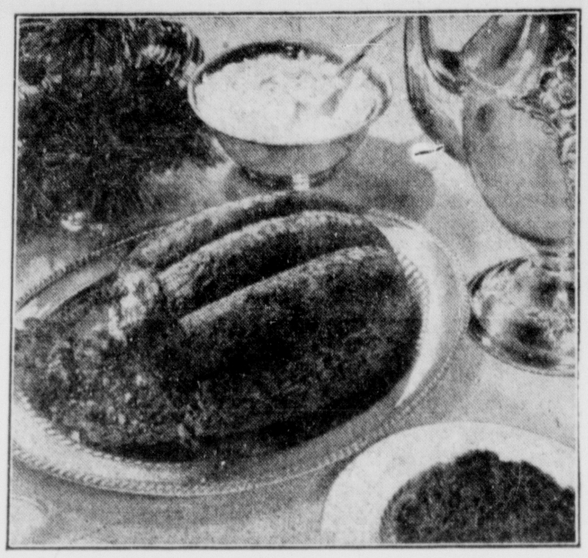
New Fashioned Christmas Pudding



The climax of Christmas dinner is that moment when lights are lowered and all eyes expectantly watch the Christmas pudding brought with proud ceremony to the table. It's a tradition that warms all hearts.

This year, as the Christmas pudding is placed on the table, it will look just as tradition tells us it should look—dark, and rich, and fruity. But at the very first taste you'll know it has acquired a modern touch . . . for here is a pudding that looks rich, tastes rich yet is light, delicate. This is a new fashioned Christmas Fruit Pudding —it has apple sauce in it. It's the apple sauce that gives it lightness, that enhances the flavor of the candied fruits, raisins, dates and other ingredients.

To make the pudding a sure-for-certain triumph, use ready-prepared apple sauce, obtained at any grocery store in cans or jars. Canned apple sauce has the special flavor, the just-right consistency needed. This smooth consistency and zestful flavor are achieved by manufacturers through careful selection of apples picked at the peak of ripeness, and by controlled cooking and canning.

So, for this Merry Christmas, serve the traditional Fruit Pudding made from a recipe-designed to please young moderns—and grandma and grandpa, too.

Christmas Fruit Pudding

1 egg
¾ cup molasses
1 cup canned apple sauce
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 cups seedless raisins
1 cup mixed candied fruits
1 cup chopped dates
2 tablespoons melted shortening

Beat egg; add molasses and apple sauce. Sift together flour, salt and baking soda; add to first mixture. Mix smooth. Add raisins, candied fruits and dates; mix thoroughly. Add shortening. Pour into 1½ quart greased pudding mold; cover tightly. Steam 3 hours. Unmold; serve with your favorite pudding sauce. Yields 10-12 servings.

Rice Pudding, as it may be called, is an old fashioned dish that has kept its popularity through the years. The Scandinavian folks always include a rice pudding in their famous, tantalizing Smorgasbord. In this, it serves as a part of the main course, not a dessert. Most American homemakers like it for dessert, either on the family menu, or when guests share the meal.

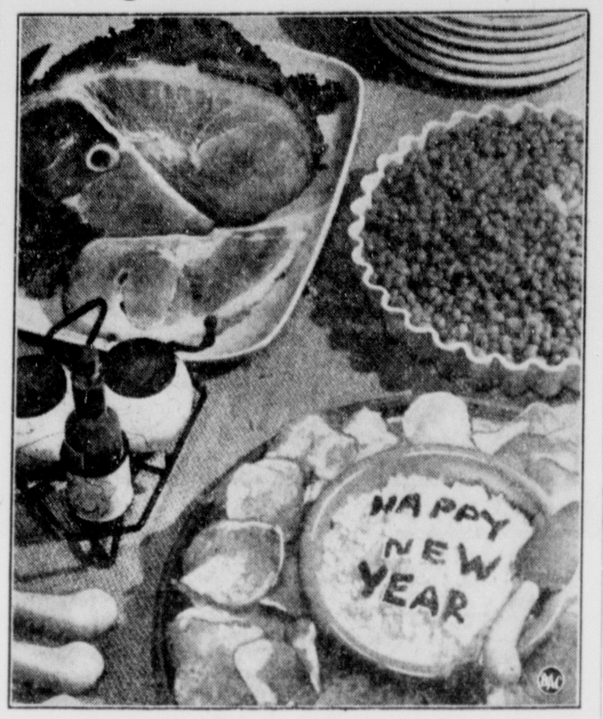
The high acceptance of the custard-type rice pudding shows it is appreciated for the high nutritional quality of its ingredients. Milk, always necessary in rounding out the family food requirement for the day, is included as one of the basic ingredients. Old Fashioned Rice Custard, served to the family, is an excellent way to increase the milk intake for the day.

OLD FASHIONED RICE CUSTARD

1 cup rice, cooked until fluffy
4 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter, melted
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
3 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup raisins
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Mix cooked rice with remaining ingredients. Pour into a buttered deep round casserole and set in pan of hot water. Sprinkle with nutmeg. (Cinnamon may be used also, if desired.) Bake in a moderate oven, 350°F., 1¼ to 1½ hours, or until a clean knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serves 6 to 8. Good, hot or cold. For the family, Old Fashioned Rice Custard may be served with cream. Other toppings that may be used are: spiced whipped cream, lemon sauce or other fruit sauces, and caramel sauce, with a bit of coffee flavor added.

Cottage Cheese and Tobasco



NEW YEAR'S EVE get-togethers should be planned around old favorites, to be sure, and they're easy to prepare when you add new touches and come up with these Tabasco-seasoned goodies — cottage cheese spread, baked beans and ham. Recipes elsewhere on this page.

Just as hot sauce adds its subtle zest to seafood, tomato juice, and gravies, so does it perk up one of our favorite foods, cottage cheese. The addition of just a bit of this liquid pepper seasoning takes cottage cheese out of the bland class and makes it a real he-man food.

This cottage cheese spread is one of the quickest and easiest to prepare for buffets, and it goes well with potato chips, toast rounds or crackers. Mix a big bowl, and decorate the top with cut-out pimiento for the festive night.

Let the rest of your menu be one which you can prepare well in advance, and which you know will ring a bell with your guests—such as this tried and true baked bean and ham supper. Both dishes are better for the addition of hot sauce to the seasoning. Hot sauce, aged just just like fine wine, enhances other food flavors. Here are recipes for the complete supper menu, enough to serve from 8 to 12 of your best friends.

Quick Cheese Spread

1 cup (8-ounce package) cottage cheese
¼ teaspoon hot sauce
Pimiento

Mix together cottage cheese and hot sauce; turn into serving dish. Cut Happy New Year letters from pimiento; place on top of cheese. Serve as a spread with potato chips or crackers.

Yield: 1 cup.

Quick Party Baked Beans

½ teaspoon hot sauce
4 tablespoons unsulphured molasses
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon salt
4 1-pound cans baked beans

Add hot sauce to unsulphured molasses, mustard and salt; mix well. Stir into baked beans in skillet or casserole. Bake in a moderate oven, (350° F.) 45 minutes, or cook on to pof range 15 minutes.

Yield: 8 to 12 servings.

Glazed Ham

¼ cup unsulphured molasses
¼ cup prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon hot sauce
¼ teaspoon ginger

Bake ham as directed. Forty five minutes before ham is done, take from oven. Score the fat surface; stud with cloves. Mix together unsulphured molasses, mustard, Tabasco and ginger. Brush ham heavily with the glaze; return to oven and complete baking. Brush with remaining glaze last 15 minutes baking time.

Apple juice is a wonderfully good bet to have on hand during the holiday season. You can serve it cold and refreshing, or hot and comforting. It's delicious either way . . . and young folks, old folks, all folks enjoy it.

Approximately one-half of all working Americans are manufacturing and selling items today that were generally unknown 50 years ago.

California ranks first in national forests with more than 25 million acres, Idaho, Alaska, Montana and Oregon follow in that order.

Potatoes Featured In Merchandising

"Potatoes are plentiful for the weeks ahead at a real bargain," state the agricultural economists of the University of Maryland. "The expected crop of 374 million bushels of potatoes in the United States this year assures a big supply. This crop is 7 per cent larger than last year with a sizeable increase in the so-called late states which supply our winter needs."

The economists explain that the U. S. Department of Agriculture is cooperating with the trade on a merchandising program during the period of December 3-12. This program was recommended by the National Potato Council to aid the movement of potatoes. During this period retailers will feature potatoes in abundant stocks. Prices will be favorable for buying large quantities for those who have a place to store them.

Some facts on the food value and suggestions for preparation are also given by the economists: "At current prices, a serving of potatoes costs only about a penny. For those who are weight conscious, there is no need for alarm as one medium-sized potato has only about 100 calories. It does, however, contain a number of nutrients such as Vitamin C, iron and thiamine.

"For best quality choose potatoes which are firm, clean, bright, shallow-eyed, free from cuts and bruises and evenly shaped. Wilted, leathery, discolored or mis-shapen potatoes should be avoided. Do not buy potatoes that have turned green as the green part tastes bitter and is harmful. Medium-sized potatoes are usually the most desirable for general use, but selection on the basis of size should be governed by the use for which they are intended. Potatoes with a mealy texture are suitable for baking and mashing. The waxy, firm types are best suited for boiling and for use in salads."

The marketing specialists say that good quality, mature potatoes will store well for a month or more if properly handled. They suggest a cool, though not cold, storage place. The storage space should be dark. Light makes potatoes turn green.

For a breakfast dish that's delicious and quick on Christmas morning, try canned apple slices, dotted through with raisins, and served with brown sugar and cream.

Plenty Of Time For Last-Minute Fruit Cake

Are you beginning to wonder whether you'll ever find the time to make that home-made fruit cake you promised the family for the holidays? Or are you hoping to give this traditional Christmas delicacy as a personalized gift to some one, but, with so much to do, just can't seem to get around to it?

Well, don't give up. Here's good news in these crowded days, a recipe for a light, moist fruit cake that takes just less than three hours to prepare and bake. More important still, this "Last-Minute Fruit Cake" can be eaten the minute it is popped out of the oven, or it can be put aside to mellow in the stainless steel handy-pans you bake it in.

The recipe we suggest produces two 2-lb. loaves of fruit cake, and is baked in one of the three sizes of these new handy-pans, the 1-quart size. It can be baked in the 2-quart and 1-pint sizes, too, with the proper dividing. If you really want to make a hit, give the cake away in a bright, shiny handy-pan tied with a bit of red ribbon. It makes an ideal gift, you know, because it can be used for so many things. For serving, for molding and for refrigerator use, for instance, as well as baking. And they clean and store so easily, too.

HERE'S good news in these crowded days, a recipe for a light, moist fruit cake that takes just less than three hours to prepare and bake. More important still, this "Last-Minute Fruit Cake" can be eaten the minute it is popped out of the oven, or it can be put aside to mellow in the stainless steel handy-pans you bake it in. Recipe given elsewhere on this page.

Time was, remember, when there was ample time for Christmas baking. It was a family affair with one day for preparing the ingredients and another for the baking. The kitchen was replete with exciting smells from far-off lands, for the molasses came from the West Indies, the fruit from Spain and Italy, the raisins and currants from the Mediterranean and the spices from Java. Today we can have home-made fruit cake without two days work in the kitchen.

Last-Minute Fruit Cake

- 1 package white cake mix
- 3 tablespoons shortening
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ cup boiling water
- 2 eggs
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- 1½ lbs. prepared mixed candied fruit
- ½ lb. white raisins
- ½ lb. cut-up nuts (about two cups)

Empty white cake mix into a 4-quart mixing bowl. Add shortening and cinnamon and stir. Add boiling water and stir until ingredients are moistened. Let stand about 30 minutes. Line two 1-quart handy-pans with wax paper. Prepare nuts. Beat cake batter vigorously with spoon for 2 minutes by clock. Add 2 eggs and 2 tablespoons cold water, then beat 2 more minutes. Stir in prepared mixed candied fruit, white raisins and cut-up nuts. Spoon batter into prepared pans. Bake two hours in slow oven (300 degrees F) until wooden pick thrust in center comes out clean. Turn out on cake rack. Remove paper. Cake may be eaten at once or stored 2 to 4 weeks to mellow. Makes two 2-lb. loaves.

Want to know how to braise those lean cuts of beef so they'll have good flavor and be tender? Brown the meat thoroughly in a small amount of fat, then add a small amount of liquid and cook very slowly, covering the utensil tightly. Add seasonings to taste — a bay leaf, peppercorns, a whole clove or two, a stalk of celery, sliced onion, carrot strips. When the meat is really tender, strain the gravy in the pan, reheat and serve with the beef.

Xmas Eve Casserole, Hot Tea

THIS appetizing Shrimp and Oyster Casserole can be prepared early in the morning for last-minute heating Christmas Eve. Served with plenty of piping hot tea, it will provide a welcome pick-up for weary shoppers and tree-trimmers.

If you've been busy up to the last minute shopping for gifts, Christmas tree decorations, Christmas trees, and stockings to hang by the fireplace, you probably haven't had time to think about that midnight snack for the many Santa Clauses who are going to help trim the tree Christmas Eve.

A recipe for a simple casserole that can be prepared early in the morning, or even the night before, is a good idea to have handy. Shrimp and Oyster Casserole is just such a dish. Serve it piping hot — right out of the oven — with piping hot tea to help relax the folks who have been working with you far into the night.

Tea, when properly made, acts as a pick-up and relieves fatigue. This fact has been recognized by poets, philosophers, sports figures, mountain climbers and explorers, busy homemakers and commuter-weary husbands. Good tea is as easy to make as it is inexpensive to serve. By following a few basic principles, no one can go wrong with tea preparation. Start with freshly drawn cold water. Bring it to a full rolling boil. Preheat teapot and use 1 teaspoonful tea or 1 tea bag for each cup of tea desired — plus one for the pot. Brew from three to five minutes. Many people are inclined to judge the strength of tea by its color. It might be well to point out here that deep color does not necessarily mean strong tea, nor a light color weak tea. Some teas even though quite strong are light in color, and vice versa. The caffeine is removed from the leaves in the first minute or two after the boiling water is added; the aroma and flavor are not fully brought out in less than three minutes. That's why it's important to brew tea by the clock — not by the color.

Plenty Of Time For Last-Minute Fruit Cake

Are you beginning to wonder whether you'll ever find the time to make that home-made fruit cake you promised the family for the holidays? Or are you hoping to give this traditional Christmas delicacy as a personalized gift to some one, but, with so much to do, just can't seem to get around to it?

Well, don't give up. Here's good news in these crowded days, a recipe for a light, moist fruit cake that takes just less than three hours to prepare and bake. More important still, this "Last-Minute Fruit Cake" can be eaten the minute it is popped out of the oven, or it can be put aside to mellow in the stainless steel handy-pans you bake it in.

The recipe we suggest produces two 2-lb. loaves of fruit cake, and is baked in one of the three sizes of these new handy-pans, the 1-quart size. It can be baked in the 2-quart and 1-pint sizes, too, with the proper dividing. If you really want to make a hit, give the cake away in a bright, shiny handy-pan tied with a bit of red ribbon. It makes an ideal gift, you know, because it can be used for so many things. For serving, for molding and for refrigerator use, for instance, as well as baking. And they clean and store so easily, too.

HERE'S good news in these crowded days, a recipe for a light, moist fruit cake that takes just less than three hours to prepare and bake. More important still, this "Last-Minute Fruit Cake" can be eaten the minute it is popped out of the oven, or it can be put aside to mellow in the stainless steel handy-pans you bake it in. Recipe given elsewhere on this page.

Time was, remember, when there was ample time for Christmas baking. It was a family affair with one day for preparing the ingredients and another for the baking. The kitchen was replete with exciting smells from far-off lands, for the molasses came from the West Indies, the fruit from Spain and Italy, the raisins and currants from the Mediterranean and the spices from Java. Today we can have home-made fruit cake without two days work in the kitchen.

Last-Minute Fruit Cake

- 1 package white cake mix
- 3 tablespoons shortening
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ cup boiling water
- 2 eggs
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- 1½ lbs. prepared mixed candied fruit
- ½ lb. white raisins
- ½ lb. cut-up nuts (about two cups)

Empty white cake mix into a 4-quart mixing bowl. Add shortening and cinnamon and stir. Add boiling water and stir until ingredients are moistened. Let stand about 30 minutes. Line two 1-quart handy-pans with wax paper. Prepare nuts. Beat cake batter vigorously with spoon for 2 minutes by clock. Add 2 eggs and 2 tablespoons cold water, then beat 2 more minutes. Stir in prepared mixed candied fruit, white raisins and cut-up nuts. Spoon batter into prepared pans. Bake two hours in slow oven (300 degrees F) until wooden pick thrust in center comes out clean. Turn out on cake rack. Remove paper. Cake may be eaten at once or stored 2 to 4 weeks to mellow. Makes two 2-lb. loaves.

Want to know how to braise those lean cuts of beef so they'll have good flavor and be tender? Brown the meat thoroughly in a small amount of fat, then add a small amount of liquid and cook very slowly, covering the utensil tightly. Add seasonings to taste — a bay leaf, peppercorns, a whole clove or two, a stalk of celery, sliced onion, carrot strips. When the meat is really tender, strain the gravy in the pan, reheat and serve with the beef.

Xmas Eve Casserole, Hot Tea

THIS appetizing Shrimp and Oyster Casserole can be prepared early in the morning for last-minute heating Christmas Eve. Served with plenty of piping hot tea, it will provide a welcome pick-up for weary shoppers and tree-trimmers.

If you've been busy up to the last minute shopping for gifts, Christmas tree decorations, Christmas trees, and stockings to hang by the fireplace, you probably haven't had time to think about that midnight snack for the many Santa Clauses who are going to help trim the tree Christmas Eve.

A recipe for a simple casserole that can be prepared early in the morning, or even the night before, is a good idea to have handy. Shrimp and Oyster Casserole is just such a dish. Serve it piping hot — right out of the oven — with piping hot tea to help relax the folks who have been working with you far into the night.

Tea, when properly made, acts as a pick-up and relieves fatigue. This fact has been recognized by poets, philosophers, sports figures, mountain climbers and explorers, busy homemakers and commuter-weary husbands. Good tea is as easy to make as it is inexpensive to serve. By following a few basic principles, no one can go wrong with tea preparation. Start with freshly drawn cold water. Bring it to a full rolling boil. Preheat teapot and use 1 teaspoonful tea or 1 tea bag for each cup of tea desired — plus one for the pot. Brew from three to five minutes. Many people are inclined to judge the strength of tea by its color. It might be well to point out here that deep color does not necessarily mean strong tea, nor a light color weak tea. Some teas even though quite strong are light in color, and vice versa. The caffeine is removed from the leaves in the first minute or two after the boiling water is added; the aroma and flavor are not fully brought out in less than three minutes. That's why it's important to brew tea by the clock — not by the color.

Shrimp And Oyster Casserole

(Makes about 6 servings)

- 2 slices bacon, diced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 1 cup diced celery and leaves
- 1 cup slivered green pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon chili seasoning
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 No. 2 can tomatoes
- 1½ cups water
- ¾ cup rice
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ cup cooked green peas
- ½ pound cooked shrimp
- 12 oysters

Saute bacon in 3-quart pot. Add garlic, onion, celery, pepper, and bay leaf. Saute until tender. Add chili, pepper, tomato, water, rice, vinegar, and sugar. Bring to a boil. Pour into 2-quart casserole. Cover. Bake in moderate oven 375 degrees F. 45 minutes. Add peas, shrimp, and oysters. Mix lightly. Return to oven. Bake uncovered 10 minutes longer or until the edges of the oysters begin to curl. Serve immediately.

Big Leak Reported In Town Reservoir At Westernport

Collections Set Christmas Tree

The mayor stated there has been a crack in the reservoir for some time and it now has become serious. Some major repairs will soon be needed.

It was ordered that the city clerk's office close on Christmas eve at noon and will not reopen until Monday, December 28. It will also be closed on Friday and Saturday, January 1 and 2.

During the holiday weeks garbage will be collected on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 22 and 23 and December 29 and 30.

Christmas trees will be collected Monday, January 4.

It was agreed a parking space on the municipal parking lot should be rented the post office certain hours each day on a two year basis for $75 per year.

This request came from Postmaster Thomas V. McGuire and James A. Welsh the owner of the post office building. A door will be cut in the rear of the building so the mail truck can back up to it making it easier to take mail in and out of the building.

Use of the area will be marked for U. S. mail during certain daylight hours, but other hours of the day the space may be used by the public for the regular parking fee.

Robert Miller asked that a street light be place near his home on Wood Street extended. It will be investigated.

Westernport Mine Urged To Adopt Safety Measures

FAIRMONT, W. Va. — Failure to rock-rust dry mine surfaces and 38 other violations of the Federal Mine Safety Code are cited in a coal-mine inspection report released by the Bureau of Mines for the W. and W. Coal Company's No. 3 mine near Westernport, Md. The 9-man mine averaged 80 tons of coal daily when inspected recently by T. J. Ward.

The Federal inspector recommended preshift and weekly examinations for explosive gas, removal of excessive accumulations of loose coal along one haulageway, and adequate fire-fighting equipment for the mine.

He also proposed safer surface explosive-storage facilities, several haulage and electrical betterments, and the wearing of protective footwear by all workmen.

Big Leak Reported In Town Reservoir At Westernport

Collections Set Christmas Tree

The mayor stated there has been a crack in the reservoir for some time and it now has become serious. Some major repairs will soon be needed.

It was ordered that the city clerk's office close on Christmas eve at noon and will not reopen until Monday, December 28. It will also be closed on Friday and Saturday, January 1 and 2.

During the holiday weeks garbage will be collected on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 22 and 23 and December 29 and 30.

Christmas trees will be collected Monday, January 4.

It was agreed a parking space on the municipal parking lot should be rented the post office certain hours each day on a two year basis for $75 per year.

This request came from Postmaster Thomas V. McGuire and James A. Welsh the owner of the post office building. A door will be cut in the rear of the building so the mail truck can back up to it making it easier to take mail in and out of the building.

Use of the area will be marked for U. S. mail during certain daylight hours, but other hours of the day the space may be used by the public for the regular parking fee.

Robert Miller asked that a street light be place near his home on Wood Street extended. It will be investigated.

Westernport Mine Urged To Adopt Safety Measures

FAIRMONT, W. Va. — Failure to rock-rust dry mine surfaces and 38 other violations of the Federal Mine Safety Code are cited in a coal-mine inspection report released by the Bureau of Mines for the W. and W. The Federal inspector recommended preshift and weekly examinations for explosive gas, removal of excessive accumulations of loose coal along one haulageway, and adequate fire-fighting equipment for the mine.

He also proposed safer surface explosive-storage facilities, several haulage and electrical betterments, and the wearing of protective footwear by all workmen.

Open Dispute Grows Over W. Va. Coal Mine Inspector

Governor, Bierer Differ On Resignation

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 17 (AP)—The resignation of State Mines Department chief Joseph Bierer has broken into open dispute between Bierer and Gov. Marland, with the two parties citing different reason for their disagreement.

Bierer submitted his resignation Monday and Gov. Marland accepted it, noting, however, that Bierers' term as department head would expire Dec. 31 with or without the resignation.

Said Marland:

"At one time I gave Mr. Bierer the names of six inspectors who were or had been engaged in mining operations and told him to get rid of them. That he did not do."

State law prohibits the Mines Department Chief and inspectors from engaging in private mining enterprises.

Bierer countered the governor's statement with the remark that Marland gave him the names of only three inspectors, and that he did not understand they were to be fired.

"Only one was in the coal business and he quit," Bierer said. "Another had had a lease which he had given up. The third had a son with the same name as his own and the son was in the coal business, not the father."

Marland brushed off Bierer's statement that he didn't understand the governor wanted the men fired as "poppycock" and "just not true."

Bierer was asked if he thought the governor's not reappointing him was for political reasons.

"Everything up there is political, isn't it?" Bierer replied.

Another disagreement concerned some land which Bierer owns in Grant County and on which Bierer has admitted he had done some "prospective mining."

"I wasn't mining coal," Bierer said. "the way it was, I told them about the Grant County mine when they appointed me acting director, and that I would let it go.

"They quit mining up there in January," Bierer continued, "when I was appointed chief and I told him (Marland) about it."

Bierer said that at the time of his earlier appointment as acting chief, he told the then Gov. Okey L. Patteson about the mine and Patteson and the attorney general agreed that, as acting chief, Bierer was not violating the law.

Bierer, who has been with the Mines Department for 20 years, owns a 95-acre farm in Grant County.

The Governor said yesterday he had "received complaints that Mr. Bierer was devoting too much time to outside activities which in the main involved coal mine operation which is prohibited by law."

Open Dispute Grows Over W. Va. Coal Mine Inspector

Governor, Bierer Differ On Resignation

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 17 (AP)—The resignation of State Mines Department chief Joseph Bierer has broken into open dispute between Bierer and Gov. Marland, with the two parties citing different reason for their disagreement.

Bierer submitted his resignation Monday and Gov. Marland accepted it, noting, however, that Bierers' term as department head would expire Dec. 31 with or without the resignation.

Said Marland:

"At one time I gave Mr. Bierer the names of six inspectors who were or had been engaged in mining operations and told him to get rid of them. That he did not do."

State law prohibits the Mines Department Chief and inspectors from engaging in private mining enterprises.

Bierer countered the governor's statement with the remark that Marland gave him the names of only three inspectors, and that he did not understand they were to be fired.

"Only one was in the coal business and he quit," Bierer said. "Another had had a lease which he had given up. The third had a son with the same name as his own and the son was in the coal business, not the father."

Marland brushed off Bierer's statement that he didn't understand the governor wanted the men fired as "poppycock" and "just not true."

Bierer was asked if he thought the governor's not reappointing him was for political reasons.

"Everything up there is political, isn't it?" Bierer replied.

Another disagreement concerned some land which Bierer owns in Grant County and on which Bierer has admitted he had done some "prospective mining."

"I wasn't mining coal," Bierer said. "the way it was, I told them about the Grant County mine when they appointed me acting director, and that I would let it go.

"They quit mining up there in January," Bierer continued, "when I was appointed chief and I told him (Marland) about it."

Bierer said that at the time of his earlier appointment as acting chief, he told the then Gov. Okey L. Patteson about the mine and Patteson and the attorney general agreed that, as acting chief, Bierer was not violating the law.

Bierer, who has been with the Mines Department for 20 years, owns a 95-acre farm in Grant County.

The Governor said yesterday he had "received complaints that Mr. Bierer was devoting too much time to outside activities which in the main involved coal mine operation which is prohibited by law."

Yankees Dispose Of Stadium In Six Million Dollar Deal

Knights Of Columbus Purchase Land, Adjacent Parking Areas

New Yorkers To Rent Stadium; Blues Park Is Involved In Deal

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—Ownership of Yankee Stadium—the "House That Ruth Built"—passed out of the hands of the New York Yankees today in a 6½ million dollar deal.

But co-owners Del E. Webb and Dan R. Topping of the Yankees said there will be no change in the operation of the baseball club. It was strictly a real estate deal, they explained, and will enable them to concentrate more on baseball.

In a three-cornered transaction, Webb and Topping sold Yankee Stadium and Blues Stadium in Kansas City, to the Arnold Johnson Corp., headed by Arnold Johnson, a Chicagoan who specializes in big real estate purchases.

K Of C Purchases Land

Johnson in turn sold the land under Yankee Stadium and the adjacent parking areas to the Knights of Columbus for 2½ million dollars.

Then, by means of long term leases, Johnson rented the land from the K. of C., and rented the entire property back to the Yankees.

The effect of the entire deal was that the Yankee Baseball Club now becomes the renter instead of the owner of both ball parks. Webb and Topping received a fat profit on the property they bought, along with Larry MacPhail, for $2,800,000 in 1945 and still own the two ball clubs.

The Kansas City park was not involved in Johnson's transaction wth the Knights of Columbus and Johnson, Webb and Topping all explained that one condition of their deal was that the city of Kansas City would be "protected" in the event it had the opportunity to get a major league club.

Considers Deal Good

Although none of the parties would say what the Yankees will have to pay in annual rental for the stadium, Johnson said he felt he was getting "a very good return on my money and is a fair deal to Del and Dan."

Johnson also said the rental basis was such that his investment would be paid off in a certain number of years and he still would own the properties. Meanwhile the Yankees will pay the real estate taxes on the property and for the upkeep of the stadium.

Johnson's lease with the Knights of Columbus, who own many other valuable pieces of real estate, is similar. The original lease is for 28 years, at an annual rental or "amortization payment" of $182,500. Johnson has options of renewal which could extend the lease to as long as 70 years. He also has the option of repurchasing the land for 3 million dollars at the end of 15 years. The Yankees have no re-purchase clause in their lease with Johnson.

Luke E. Hart, supreme knight of the K. of C. and chairman of the order's investment committee, said these payments will refund the entire purchase price within the period of the lease. When Johnson's lease on the stadium land is terminated, the stadium also will become the property of the K. of C.

ONE-POINT BLUES

In an 11-game schedule, Wofford lost three games by one point. Each was a 7-6 game.

Ivan Irwin of the New York Rangers is the only U.S.-born player in the National Hockey League. He was born in Chicago.

Yankees Dispose Of Stadium In Six Million Dollar Deal

Knights Of Columbus Purchase Land, Adjacent Parking Areas

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—Ownership of Yankee Stadium—the "House That Ruth Built"—passed out of the hands of the New York Yankees today in a 6½ million dollar deal.

But co-owners Del E. Webb and Dan R. Topping of the Yankees said there will be no change in the operation of the baseball club. It was strictly a real estate deal, they explained, and will enable them to concentrate more on baseball.

In a three-cornered transaction, Webb and Topping sold Yankee Stadium and Blues Stadium in Kansas City, to the Arnold Johnson Corp., headed by Arnold Johnson, a Chicagoan who specializes in big real estate purchases.

K Of C Purchases Land

Then, by means of long term leases, Johnson rented the land from the K. of C., and rented the entire property back to the Yankees.

The effect of the entire deal was that the Yankee Baseball Club now becomes the renter instead of the owner of both ball parks. Webb and Topping received a fat profit on the property they bought, along with Larry MacPhail, for $2,800,000 in 1945 and still own the two ball clubs.

The Kansas City park was not involved in Johnson's transaction wth the Knights of Columbus and Johnson, Webb and Topping all explained that one condition of their deal was that the city of Kansas City would be "protected" in the event it had the opportunity to get a major league club.

Considers Deal Good

Although none of the parties would say what the Yankees will have to pay in annual rental for the stadium, Johnson said he felt he was getting "a very good return on my money and is a fair deal to Del and Dan."

Johnson also said the rental basis was such that his investment would be paid off in a certain number of years and he still would own the properties. Meanwhile the Yankees will pay the real estate taxes on the property and for the upkeep of the stadium.

Johnson's lease with the Knights of Columbus, who own many other valuable pieces of real estate, is similar. The original lease is for 28 years, at an annual rental or "amortization payment" of $182,500. Johnson has options of renewal which could extend the lease to as long as 70 years. He also has the option of repurchasing the land for 3 million dollars at the end of 15 years. The Yankees have no re-purchase clause in their lease with Johnson.

Luke E. Hart, supreme knight of the K. of C. and chairman of the order's investment committee, said these payments will refund the entire purchase price within the period of the lease. When Johnson's lease on the stadium land is terminated, the stadium also will become the property of the K. of C.

Combs, now 54, was inactive in baseball last season after coaching for the Boston Red Sox from 1948 through 1952. A resident of Richmond, Ky., he was a tutor for the Yanks for nine years ending in 1944.

The Phils also announced the signing of a left-handed pitcher, Buck Leslie, 21, from Amelia, Ohio, who played three years with the air force in Wichita Falls, Tex. He will probably report to the Terre Haute club.

Richmond Gets Int Franchise

Havana May Become Loop's 8th Member

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The International League late today tentatively awarded a franchise to Richmond, Va.

The award was contingent on the ability of franchise owner Harry C. Seibold to secure a ball park which meets International League specifications.

Frank Shaughnessy, International League president, said that if Seibold comes up with his park, Havana, Cuba, will be admitted as the eighth member of the league. He said he had assured the Havana people of this in the event Richmond was admitted.

The decision was made after eight hours of conference at the Statler Hotel. The big hitch was to get Edwin Mooers, who owned the Richmond franchise in the Piedmont League, to surrender his franchise to Seibold.

Graham, Young Clash At Garden

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—Welterweight contender Billy Graham will spot Paddy Young ten pounds and six years in a bid for middleweight recognition tomorrow night.

The odds are 7-5 that Graham, a 31-year-old veteran of 120 pro fights, won't be able to make up those handicaps in the ten rounder between the two New York Irishmen in Madison Square Garden.

It's an interesting catchweight affair, matching two New York lads with good followings. A crowd of about 7,000 will pay around $25,000, good on both counts in these television days. Starting at 10 p.m., (EST), the scrap will be broadcast (ABC) and telecast (NBC) coast to coast.

Athletics Land Cain Of Orioles In Player Swap

Baltimore Obtains Coleman, Fanovich

Birds Want Zernial

Prior to announcing today's straight swap of pitchers, Ehlers said he was willing to offer $35,000 and a player for outfielder Gus Zernial of the Athletics. Yesterday, the Athletics and New York Yankees exchanged 11 players.

Cain, 29-year-old southpaw from Longford, Kan., has had seasoning five times in the major leagues with the Chicago White Sox, Detroit and the Browns for whom he had a 4-10 record the past season.

Coleman was pitching great guns for the Athletics until 1950 when his arm went bad and he won only one game in that season and the next. In 1948, he was on the American League All-Star team with a 14-13 record.

Coleman Owns 3-4 Record

Coleman spent the 1952 season with Savannah in the Sally League and returned to the Athletics this year for a 3-4 record.

Fanovich, also up from Savannah and Ottawa, joined the Athletics at the end of the 1952 season and was used to relieve during the past campaign in which he worked in 26 games for a 0-3 record.

9th "Handsome Dan" Now Reigns At Yale

Yale University has a new mascot, a Bulldog named "Handsome Dan the Ninth," thanks to the efforts of the Gaines Dog Research Center, it has been revealed.

For as long as anyone can remember Yale has had a canine mascot—always an English Bulldog and always named "Handsome Dan." Handsome Dan No. 8 died recently, and the freshman class sought the honor of presenting Yale with his successor. The task of finding the successor fell on the shoulders of Philip E. Lottinville, Kankakee, Illinois, who recently started his studies at Yale. Young Lottinville turned to the Center for help.

It took considerable searching to find the exact type of dog wanted, since "Handsome Dan" traditionally must have certain color markings. The dog, or rather puppy, was finally located at Allendale, New Jersey. The puppy is ten weeks old and weighs 20 pounds. Its father is a near-champion of Dallas, Texas. The entire freshman class contributed toward the purchase price.

WILDCATS' WHIZ OF COURT

BACK IN ACTION after a one year's suspension by the Southeastern Conference, the University of Kentucky Wildcats started off in hot style with an 86-59 triumph over Temple, led by Cliff Hagen, (above) All-American center. Hagen popped in 51 points to set several records. (International)

Terps Beat VPI, Shue Scores 25

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Dec. 17 (AP) — Maryland's All-America basketball candidate, Gene Shue, sank 10 of 17 shots from the floor and added a perfect 5-for-5 from the foul line tonight in sparking the Terrapins to a 60-52 victory over Virginia Tech.

The clever Baltimorean's total effort shaded VPI's Bill (Moose) Matthews, who led the losers with 24 points, one less than Shue racked up before leaving the game with about four minutes to go.

Bud Millikan's well-coached outfit took a 12-6 lead into the second quarter and never let it shrink as the Terps hauled in their fourth triumph against two losses.

VPI, trying valiantly for its second victory in five starts, rallied briefly in the final period but ran out of steam.

Youngster Bags Deer First Try

HAINESVILLE, N. J. Dec. 16 (AP)—Twelve-year-old Billy Schweyer went deer hunting for the first time in his life yesterday and showed 18 men of his hunting party how to shoot.

Ehlers Resents "Athletic" Jibe

BALTIMORE, Dec. 16 (AP)—Art Ehlers, general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, took exception today to a crack that the new American League team might be getting "too many Athletics and not enough athletes" and said he'd like to obtain a couple of players from the Philadelphia club.

The crack about "too many Athletics" was caused by the fact that Ehlers, Manager Jimmy Dykes, coaches Tom Oliver and Frankie Skaff, and publicist Dick Armstrong came from the Philadelphia organization.

Heap, Guglielmi Are Suspended By Notre Dame

Grid Stars Are Ousted For Rules Infractions

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 17 (AP) — Two Notre Dame football stars, quarterback Ralph Guglielmi and halfback Joe Heap, have been suspended from school for rules infractions, it was learned reliably tonight.

"It is a strict policy at Notre Dame not to announce suspensions or ineligibilities because of academic or other reasons," he said. "I only can say that Joe Heap and Ralph Guglielmi are no longer on the campus."

It was assumed that Heap and Guglielmi, who make up half of Coach Frank Leahy's potential starting backfield for 1954, had returned to their homes. Heap lives in Abita Springs, La., and Guglielmi in Columbus, Ohio. Both are juniors this year.

It was learned that the two players will have to apply for readmission to Notre Dame at the start of the second semester in February. They will miss all final examinations for the current semester, but will have the opportunity of making them up if readmitted.

Heap was Notre Dame's leading pass catcher for 1953 and fourth best rusher. He and Guglielmi, rated Notre Dame's most improved player of the season, scored 42 and 41 points, respectively.

Disciplinary action was believed to have been prompted when the two players returned late to campus one night last week.

Richmond Gets Int Franchise

Havana May Become Loop's 8th Member

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (AP)—The International League late today tentatively awarded a franchise to Richmond, Va.

The award was contingent on the ability of franchise owner Harry C. Seibold to secure a ball park which meets International League specifications.

Seibold told reporters he expects to have no difficulty in meeting that requirement.

Frank Shaughnessy, International League president, said that if Seibold comes up with his park, Havana, Cuba, will be admitted as the eighth member of the league. He said he had assured the Havana people of this in the event Richmond was admitted.

The decision was made after eight hours of conference at the Statler Hotel. The big hitch was to get Edwin Mooers, who owned the Richmond franchise in the Piedmont League, to surrender his franchise to Seibold.

In the end, Mooers sold his franchise to Seibold for a figure said to be $25,000. Mooers, however, retained possession of the ball park in which the Piedmont League club played.

Graham, Young Clash At Garden

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP)—Welterweight contender Billy Graham will spot Paddy Young ten pounds and six years in a bid for middleweight recognition tomorrow night.

The odds are 7-5 that Graham, a 31-year-old veteran of 120 pro fights, won't be able to make up those handicaps in the ten rounder between the two New York Irishmen in Madison Square Garden.

It's an interesting catchweight affair, matching two New York lads with good followings. A crowd of about 7,000 will pay around $25,000, good on both counts in these television days. Starting at 10 p.m., (EST), the scrap will be broadcast (ABC) and telecast (NBC) coast to coast.

Athletics Land Cain Of Orioles In Player Swap

Baltimore Obtains Coleman, Fanovich

The Orioles, making their first big league deal since taking over from the St. Louis Browns, exchanged Bob Cain for Joe Coleman and Frank Fanovich.

Birds Want Zernial

Prior to announcing today's straight swap of pitchers, Ehlers said he was willing to offer $35,000 and a player for outfielder Gus Zernial of the Athletics. Yesterday, the Athletics and New York Yankees exchanged 11 players.

Cain, 29-year-old southpaw from Longford, Kan., has had seasoning five times in the major leagues with the Chicago White Sox, Detroit and the Browns for whom he had a 4-10 record the past season.

Coleman was pitching great guns for the Athletics until 1950 when his arm went bad and he won only one game in that season and the next. In 1948, he was on the American League All-Star team with a 14-13 record.

Coleman Owns 3-4 Record

Coleman spent the 1952 season with Savannah in the Sally League and returned to the Athletics this year for a 3-4 record.

Fanovich, also up from Savannah and Ottawa, joined the Athletics at the end of the 1952 season and was used to relieve during the past campaign in which he worked in 26 games for a 0-3 record.

9th "Handsome Dan" Now Reigns At Yale

Yale University has a new mascot, a Bulldog named "Handsome Dan the Ninth," thanks to the efforts of the Gaines Dog Research Center, it has been revealed.

For as long as anyone can remember Yale has had a canine mascot—always an English Bulldog and always named "Handsome Dan." Handsome Dan No. 8 died recently, and the freshman class sought the honor of presenting Yale with his successor. The task of finding the successor fell on the shoulders of Philip E. Lottinville, Kankakee, Illinois, who recently started his studies at Yale. Young Lottinville turned to the Center for help.

It took considerable searching to find the exact type of dog wanted, since "Handsome Dan" traditionally must have certain color markings. The dog, or rather puppy, was finally located at Allendale, New Jersey. The puppy is ten weeks old and weighs 20 pounds. Its father is a near-champion of Dallas, Texas. The entire freshman class contributed toward the purchase price.

Chandler To Manage

Lou McEvoy Dies

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 17 (AP)—Louis A. McEvoy, 50, former righthanded pitcher of the Washington Senators and New York Yankees, died here today of cancer.

McEvoy pitched professionally from 1926 to 1937.

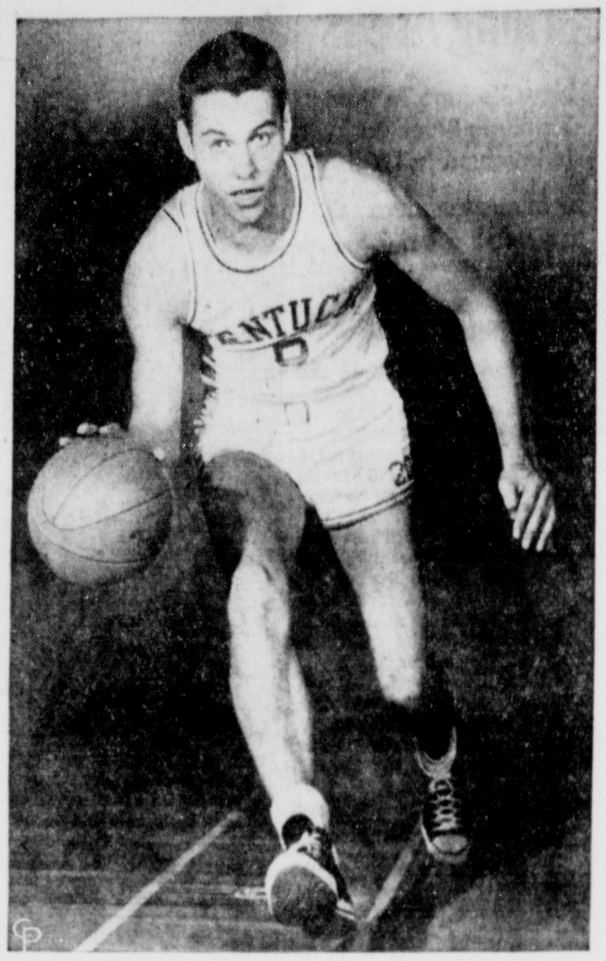
WILDCATS' WHIZ OF COURT



BACK IN ACTION after a one year's suspension by the Southeastern Conference, the University of Kentucky Wildcats started off in hot style with an 86-59 triumph over Temple, led by Cliff Hagen, (above) All-American center. Hagen popped in 51 points to set several records. (International)

Terps Beat VPI, Shue Scores 25

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Dec. 17 (AP) — Maryland's All-America basketball candidate, Gene Shue, sank 10 of 17 shots from the floor and added a perfect 5-for-5 from the foul line tonight in sparking the Terrapins to a 60-52 victory over Virginia Tech.

The clever Baltimorean's total effort shaded VPI's Bill (Moose) Matthews, who led the losers with 24 points, one less than Shue racked up before leaving the game with about four minutes to go.

Bud Millikan's well-coached outfit took a 12-6 lead into the second quarter and never let it shrink as the Terps hauled in their fourth triumph against two losses.

VPI, trying valiantly for its second victory in five starts, rallied briefly in the final period but ran out of steam.

Youngster Bags Deer First Try

HAINESVILLE, N. J. Dec. 16 (AP)—Twelve-year-old Billy Schweyer went deer hunting for the first time in his life yesterday and showed 18 men of his hunting party how to shoot.

Ehlers Resents "Athletic" Jibe

BALTIMORE, Dec. 16 (AP)—Art Ehlers, general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, took exception today to a crack that the new American League team might be getting "too many Athletics and not enough athletes" and said he'd like to obtain a couple of players from the Philadelphia club.

The crack about "too many Athletics" was caused by the fact that Ehlers, Manager Jimmy Dykes, coaches Tom Oliver and Frankie Skaff, and publicist Dick Armstrong came from the Philadelphia organization.

Heap, Guglielmi Are Suspended By Notre Dame

Grid Stars Are Ousted For Rules Infractions

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 17 (AP) — Two Notre Dame football stars, quarterback Ralph Guglielmi and halfback Joe Heap, have been suspended from school for rules infractions, it was learned reliably tonight.

"It is a strict policy at Notre Dame not to announce suspensions or ineligibilities because of academic or other reasons," he said. "I only can say that Joe Heap and Ralph Guglielmi are no longer on the campus."

It was assumed that Heap and Guglielmi, who make up half of Coach Frank Leahy's potential starting backfield for 1954, had returned to their homes. Heap lives in Abita Springs, La., and Guglielmi in Columbus, Ohio. Both are juniors this year.

It was learned that the two players will have to apply for readmission to Notre Dame at the start of the second semester in February. They will miss all final examinations for the current semester, but will have the opportunity of making them up if readmitted.

Heap was Notre Dame's leading pass catcher for 1953 and fourth best rusher. He and Guglielmi, rated Notre Dame's most improved player of the season, scored 42 and 41 points, respectively.

Disciplinary action was believed to have been prompted when the two players returned late to campus one night last week.

Lions Elect Opdyke

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (AP) — Neil Opdyke, a guard, was elected captain of Columbia's 1954 football team at the annual banquet last night. A junior, his hometown is in Frenchtown, N. J.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 17 (INS)—Greer Garson remains in Dallas just long enough to unwrap all the Christmas gifts Buddy Fogelson has wrapped up for her and toast the New Year with him. Then, she's off to London to make "The Case of the Journeying Boy" for MGM in England and Ireland.

The Michael Innes novel is a suspense thriller about a governess who escorts the son of an atomic scientist abroad and encounters a sensational attempt to kidnap the boy.

Greer is just back from London where she made lecture appearances plugging "Julius Caesar." As much as she hates leaving Buddy she's getting a kick out of working for the first time in her native Ireland.

My quick hop to Las Vegas caused me to miss Dolores and Bob Hope's wonderful party for General William Dean but I had my spies spotted around.

When the charming and so dignified general met Marilyn Monroe (with Joe DiMaggio) he thrilled M. M. by saying, "Meeting you almost makes up for my not seeing a woman in 36 months."

Notre Dame Coach Frank Leahy came to pay his respect to the general and Jack Dempsey and General Bill greeted each other as old pals.

The autobiography of Tallulah Bankhead.

Abel Green and Joe Laurie Jr's "Show Biz."

A bound copy of the Ladies Home Journal containing a story by Marlene Dietrich yet to be published.

One of Bing Crosby's pipes.

The story of Jimmy McHugh and the recording of his son "Let's Crusade for Freedom" sung for the first time at the Sands.

Lana Turner and Lex are due in Monday morning.

My warmest congratulations and best wishes to Jean Mathias Jr. and Marlene Baum who are being married Saturday at Fairfax Temple. The bridegroom-to-be is the son of Rose Mathias, invaluable office assistant to Harriet Parsons. Jean was four and a half years in the service in the South Pacific before taking up his teaching post at Miller Elementary School in Los Angeles.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Today's mature woman wears fashions and styles as ageless as those of the young married set!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Time was when after a woman's figure matured, no matter how young she felt and how interested in all the activities that go with keeping youthful, she simply had to go into "older" women's styles. There was little else that she could do because fashions were either styled for the immature figure or for the mature one—and those of the latter type were all of the lavendar and old lace variety. They were hardly suited for the busy round of club, social and charity activities, careers, parties and sports that characterize the life of the woman in her forties and fifties of today!

Fortunately, the designers recognized the high toll they were taking of women in the prime of life by forcing them to look old beyond their years; today a woman can easily find clothes that suit both her activities and her figure.

Contouring Plus Comfort

Whole collections of coats, suits, high fashion ensembles, after five dresses, distinctively-designed day dress, sports clothes and sun fashions are all readily available for the mature figure. And they are just as ageless in styling as those worn by the young married set.

The mature figure, of course, needs expert foundations to mold and hold the figure lines under control. There's sheer wizardry in the current girdles, corselets and brassieres that accomplish this goal without rigidity or constriction.

Even figures that were once difficult to fit achieve new loveliness of line this year in the one-piece foundations that raise and round the bosom, firm the midriff and smooth contours without heavy elastics and rigid brocades.

The new lines are achieved by paring boning down to a minimum and using lighter materials that have even more controlling power than those of the past that restricted but also gave discomfort.

For Bare-top Styles

For wearing under bare-top fashions, there are the new strapless coraselets and long-line bras. Strapless bras with stitched, wired undercups and anchoring elastic midriff bands of four-and-five-inch widths are now being made in sizes up to 46D. Many who have not been able to wear strapless fashions before find these new supports the answer to their problem.

Another aid to the mature figure is the new halter-top bra with a halter taking the place of over-the-shoulder straps. They are designed for wear with swim suits, sun suits and evening fashions with revealing decolletage similarly styled.

No longer need a woman's maturity dictate her style! She can dress and look as young as she thinks and feels!

The U. S. Steel Hour

The United States Steel Hour on ABC-TV (alternate Tuesdays 9:30 p. m. EST) started out its existence with a tremendously exciting and disturbing adult drama called "POW." It has not since maintained quite that pace and could hardly be expected to. Still, every one of its productions I have seen have been marked by a seriousness of purpose that indicates this hour-long drama will have to be counted as one of the more respectable of television's enterprises.

John Crosby

"POW" was a sensitive study of the effects of prolonged imprisonment, hardship and mental torture on a group of American prisoners of war who are recovering from it all in an American hospital. They are torn by their own consciences at momentary weakening under torture, as well as by terrible hostilities toward each other built up by months of enforced and not very pleasant companionship.

It wasn't a very pretty drama but it was an exceedingly honest one and, let's face it, it revolved around one of the most important and recurrent themes of our time—much as I wish it didn't. War prisoners and war prisons have produced all manner of plays, movies and books for quite a few years now. It's distressing to note that the tone of them which, in some of the British "escape" books was almost jocular, has become increasingly grim. The standards of imprisonment have degenerated to a state that could hardly have been much worse under Attila the Hun.

"POW" attempted to show what happens to civilized man when he first encounters uncivilized man, what happens to his spirit, his mind, his emotions. A lot of things, not all of them edifying, happen and they are likely to happen to the strong as well as to the weak. Heroism and villainy become comparative matters, depending on how much you have to endure.

The main struggle in this play was an internal one in the mind of one of the POW's, vividly played by Richard Kiley, to square his conscience with what he did—or thought he did—under duress. Inner turmoil of this nature is among the most difficult things to

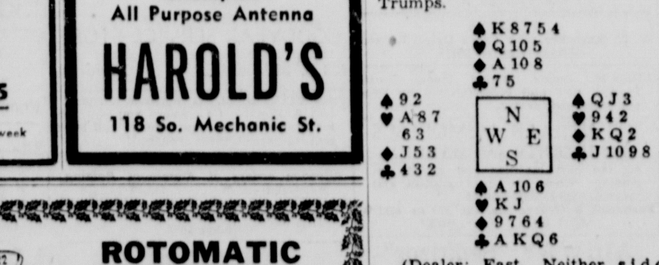
TWO REASONS TO DO IT

ONE reason for keeping your opponents in the dark regarding the location of your main power is that they may be induced to lead the suit you most desire. A second one does not manifest itself until farther along in the play, when they may discard from that suit while retaining cards of some other suit which is not as important. Out-and-out psychic bidding is not essential to use of this factor. Merely bidding a suit that lacks tops may accomplish the purpose, especially if you later wind up in No Trumps.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Being in a match-point duplicate tournament, this deal produced quite a number of variations in the bidding. Some opened the South hand with 1-Club and some with 1-No Trump. All North-South pairs got to game, in either spades or No Trumps, but a clear top came as a sequel to the bidding shown above.

South's primary purpose of forestalling a diamond lead and causing a club opening did not eventuate, as West made his normal choice of the heart 5 at all tables where No Trump contracts were tried. But the bid paid off later.

The heart K took the first trick, the third spade was relinquished to East's Q, the heart return to the A brought the heart 3 lead to the Q and then South ran dummy's established spade 8 and 7. On the first of these East was obliged to discard, before he could see South's discard. Unwilling to relinquish anything in the suit of the original bid, diamonds, he chose the club 8. That enabled South then to get four tricks in clubs. These, added to four in spades, two in hearts and one in diamonds, gave the declarer eleven all told.

This South therefore worsted by one trick, those who bid the clubs at the start, since East clung to his clubs and shed diamonds instead, hence limiting South to three club tricks. Maybe 4-Spades would have been the soundest rubber contract, but the pairs which reached that got bottom score, as against No Trump declarers who took the same number of tricks, ten.

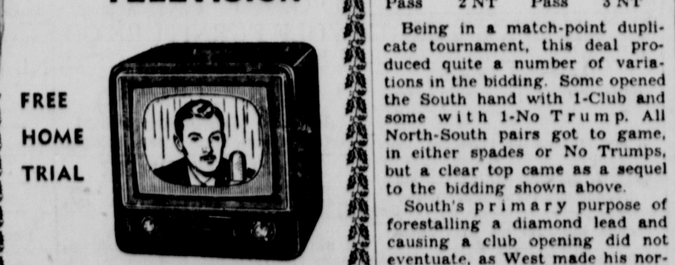
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

TWO REASONS TO DO IT

ONE reason for keeping your opponents in the dark regarding the location of your main power is that they may be induced to lead the suit you most desire. A second one does not manifest itself until farther along in the play, when they may discard from that suit while retaining cards of some other suit which is not as important. Out-and-out psychic bidding is not essential to use of this factor. Merely bidding a suit that lacks tops may accomplish the purpose, especially if you later wind up in No Trumps.

	♠ K 8 7 5 4 ♥ Q 10 5 ♦ A 10 8 ♣ 7 5
♠ 9 2 ♥ A 8 7 6 3 ♦ J 5 3 ♣ 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ Q J 3 ♥ 9 4 2 ♦ K Q 2 ♣ J 10 9 8
	♠ A 10 6 ♥ K J ♦ 9 7 6 4 ♣ A K Q 6

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Being in a match-point duplicate tournament, this deal produced quite a number of variations in the bidding. Some opened the South hand with 1-Club and some with 1-No Trump. All North-South pairs got to game, in either spades or No Trumps, but a clear top came as a sequel to the bidding shown above.

South's primary purpose of forestalling a diamond lead and causing a club opening did not eventuate, as West made his normal choice of the heart 5 at all tables where No Trump contracts were tried. But the bid paid off later.

The heart K took the first trick, the third spade was relinquished to East's Q, the heart return to the A brought the heart 3 lead to the Q and then South ran dummy's established spade 8 and 7. On the first of these East was obliged to discard, before he could see South's discard. Unwilling to relinquish anything in the suit of the original bid, diamonds, he chose the club 8. That enabled South then to get four tricks in clubs. These, added to four in spades, two in hearts and one in diamonds, gave the declarer eleven all told.

This South therefore worsted by one trick, those who bid the clubs at the start, since East clung to his clubs and shed diamonds instead, hence limiting South to three club tricks. Maybe 4-Spades would have been the soundest rubber contract, but the pairs which reached that got bottom score, as against No Trump declarers who took the same number of tricks, ten.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A 9 7 5 3 ♥ 9 8 7 2 ♦ 9 5 ♣ 8 6
♠ 8 2 ♥ Q 6 5 ♦ Q 10 7 6 3 ♣ 7 4 3	N W E S	♠ K 10 ♥ A K J 10 ♦ A 8 4 ♣ J 9 5 2
	♠ Q J 6 4 ♥ 4 3 ♦ K J 2 ♣ A K Q 10

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Lowest Reading Of Season Felt By Cumberland

Expect End Of Cold Siege By Saturday

Cumberland got its coldest reading of the season yesterday as thermometers plunged to 17 degrees. Even colder temperatures are expected today and tomorrow, according to the Weather Bureau.

Some sections of the Tri-State area yesterday felt readings of as low as four degrees, and the Weather Bureau said last night temperatures this morning in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties will drop to near zero.

Cold To End Saturday

Today is to be partly cloudy and cold while tomorrow is to be less cold. A Weather Bureau forecaster said the current air mass from eastern or central Canada generally results in a "prolonged siege of cold weather."

The air isn't expected to warm up until tomorrow when afternoon temperatures might climb into the 40's. High temperature today will be in the low 30's, forecasters said.

The most frigid section yesterday was at Big Savage Mountain where the State Roads Commission reported four degrees. Another four-degree reading was reported at Thomas, W. Va., where 12 inches of snow covered the ground and frigid winds swept the area.

Other lows yesterday were Oakland, eight degrees; Thomas, six; Deal, Pa., eight; Elkins, 10; Accident, nine; Frostburg, 11, and Town Hill, 16.

The district office of the State Roads Commission yesterday reported all roads west of Clarysville were snow-packed, and last night Maryland State Police at LaVale said roads west of Grantsville were icy and snow-covered, and recommended that chains be used.

Roads in that section have been cindered, SRC officials said, but chains were advised anyway.

Some Roads Icy

West Virginia State Police at Romney said highways in that section were icy in spots, but these have been well cindered. State Police at Bedford, Pa. reported roads in that area were generally clear, but warned motorists to be careful on bridges where ice has formed due to cold air under the structures.

Other sections of the district, mostly west of Cumberland, were still getting light snows last night. Altamont was getting more snow last night on top of nine inches of old snow with temperature of 12 degrees; Terra Alta was also being covered with additional snow over 12 inches of old snow with a reading of 12 degrees.

It was also snowing last night in Western Pennsylvania. At Connellsville snow was falling on top of four inches of old snow and temperature was 22; Deal began shoveling more snow last night after having six inches in an eight-degree temperature; Rockwood was getting some more on top of six inches with an 18-degree reading, and Confluence was getting more snow on top of four inches in a 20-degree temperature.

It was also snowing last night in Elkins, W. Va. where nine inches of snow is already on the ground, and in Thomas where 12 inches blanket the area.

Hardman and Blazer, with seven and nine inches of snow respectively, were having 16 and 10-degree temperatures last night and cloudy weather.

Browne To Head Salvation Army Advisory Board

Daniel Y. Browne, 432 Williams Street, was elected chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Salvation Army Citadel.

Browne succeeds Lewis J. Ort, who was named vice chairman. Russell Pancake was elected secretary-treasurer.

Six new members were elected. They are H. Clifford Spiker, Glenn L. Morris, Albert E. Beckman, John Ankeney, William Wendt and William G. Rice.

The election of two more members needed to complete the board will be held at the January meeting.

Also present were Adolph Blunk, Mayor Roy W. Eves, Anthony Saeli, Albert Macy, Robert W. Young, Browne, Ort and Pancake.

White To Head 4-H

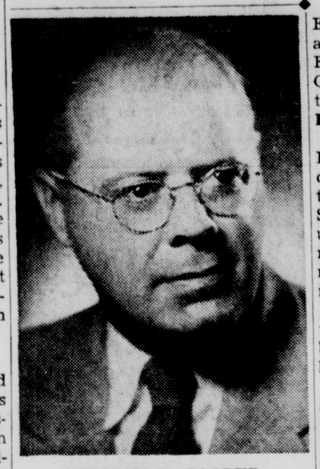
He and other officers elected Wednesday night will be installed Wednesday, January 20. Other officers are William Malone, vice president; Okey Mackerth, secretary, and William Athey, treasurer. The retiring president is Richard Silber.

Evans Named Grand Jury Foreman, Gets Army Call

Benjamin H. Evans Jr. Lonaconing business man, was selected as foreman of the Grand Jury for the January term of Allegany County Circuit Court when the 48-member panel was drawn yesterday morning, but it appeared probable that he will not be around to fill the duties.



WILLIAM P. COOPER

When informed of his selection, Evans said that he has received a call to report for Army duty at Fort Meade the day after the Grand Jury is to begin its deliberations.

Reserve Colonel

A full colonel in the Organized Reserve, Evans has received orders to serve as an instructor at the Commanding General's Staff School starting at Fort Meade January 5 and continuing through the rest of the month. The Lonaconing man normally spends about three months each year on active duty.

The 23 members of the Grand Jury will report for duty at 10 a. m. Monday, January 4. The 25 citizens on the Petit Jury will make their first appearance Monday, January 18. Seven women were called for Grand Jury duty and four others for the Petit Jury.

Associate Judge George Henderson officiated as the 48 names were drawn from among 200 in the box.

Other Jurors

Others called for Grand Jury duty:

Nancy R. Hilton, city; John L. Ort, city; Arthur Bond, Frostburg; Bruce Smith, city; Annie M. Plummer, Frostburg; Mary W. Clark, city; Wilbur D. Sills, city; Joseph H. Bedinger, city; John T. William P. Cooper Dies At Hospital In Pittsburgh

Headed Cafeterias Of County Schools

William P. Cooper, 51, who had served as director of the cafeterias of Allegany County public schools since the program was started back in depression days, died yesterday afternoon at Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa.

He became ill while visiting in that city last Saturday and death was attributed to cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Cooper had been connected with the county school system for 30 years, having started as a history and science teacher at Barton High School. Later he directed the first school cafeteria at Hammond Street School in Westernport and continued as the program expanded to include all schools.

When the program was started, labor to equip the first cafeteria was furnished by the WPA and a large percentage of the menu came from surplus food provided by the United States Department of Agriculture. Gradually expanded, the program has been arranged so that most of the food is prepared in the kitchens of the county's 34 schools. In a few of the smallest schools the food is brought in thermos containers from other nearly school kitchens.

Mr. Cooper was elected first president of the Maryland School Food Service Association which was organized in October in Baltimore. He was a charter member of the American School Food Service Association, organized seven years ago, and was chairman

High temperature, according to Constitution Park weather station, was 24 degrees, and at 7:30 p. m. thermometers had climbed to 19. The Weather Bureau said mercury would plunge to near zero this morning, but warm weather is predicted for Saturday afternoon.

Play Equipment To Be Repaired

Play equipment from city-owned grounds was placed in storage some time ago, but was left on school playgrounds as long as it could be used by children.

The work will be done by Glenwood Reel, the department's maintenance worker, and the city carpenter. All of the equipment will be painted before it is needed in the spring.

There are more than 200 pieces of heavy equipment for the 16 playgrounds which were operated during the summer. In general, each playground is equipped with nine swings, a whirl, sliding board, sand box and basketball goal.

Postal Service Stepped Up For Christmas Rush

Additional Daily Deliveries Slated

Postal officials yesterday said there will be no fewer than two mail deliveries daily during the Christmas holidays, and additional deliveries will be made in some sections of the city when warranted by the number of pieces of mail that arrive here.

Wednesday's cancellations totaled 135,000, which was a sharp hike over the previous day's business of 110,000 pieces of mail. The total also came close to last year's high of about 140,000 cancellations last December 17.

Approximately 70 additional employes have been hired by the local post office to assist during the Christmas rush. These include extra carriers, those for handling inside work, and parcel post helpers.

Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon pointed out that there are many advantages to using three-cent stamps for letters. He said letters bearing two-cents cannot be returned or forwarded in case of a mixup in address. By placing a three-cent stamp on the Christmas greeting letter, he added, persons are assured that the addressee will receive the letter.

Last year's figures show that cancellations hit the 100,000 mark on December 15 and remained above that total for a five-day period. The amount dropped on December 20 to 97,000, and on the following day, a Sunday, it fell to 50,000. On December 22, cancellations jumped to 108,000 and then decreased to a normal pace.

The post office windows will not be opened this Sunday, postal authorities said, but windows will be open until 6 p. m. daily through the week. On Saturday, the post office will be open until 4 p. m., instead of closing at noon as previously.

County Ranks Eighth In Bond Sales

Allegany County now ranks eighth in the sale of E and H Bonds among Maryland counties 1953 as 78.3 per cent of the county quota of $2,900,000 has been reached.

During November, according to Lynn C. Lashley, County Savings Bond chairman, $193,183 in bonds was sold throughout the County. Previously $2,078,347 had been sold, bringing the present total of sales to $2,271,530.

Lashley pointed out that December has generally been a good month in the Savings Bonds program on account of the popularity of Savings Bonds for Christmas.

Nearby Garrett County has reached 55.6 per cent of its quota of $380,000 and ranks 21st in the state. Lashley noted that Harford County went over the top with 100.7 per cent of objective achieved; Washington County is second with 91 per cent; Baltimore City third with 86.6 per cent; Somerset County fourth with 84 per cent and Worcester County fifth with 83 per cent achievement.

Local Woman Recounts Her Experiences During Six-Year Visit In West Germany

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT

"I wouldn't have missed the experience and opportunity, but I wouldn't want to do it again," Mrs. Leona Rinker declared last night as she talked about the past six years which she spent in Germany.

Visiting her son, Addison Rinker at his Baltimore Avenue home, Mrs. Rinker is happy to be back in Cumberland where she was born and spent most of her lifetime. She observed, "this will always be home, because I raised my three children here."

Mrs. Rinker went to Europe with her daughter and son-in-law when he was assigned to Germany with the Army Medical Corps. Her son-in-law, Dr. William C. Link, and Mrs. Rinker's daughter, Caroline Rinker, met some years ago in Baltimore where he was studying and she was employed. They were married soon afterward, and he then entered the Army. Holding the rank of captain, he served a short time in France and several cities in Germany, over a period covering almost six years.

Baby Born In Germany

When Capt. and Mrs. Link, accompanied by Mrs. Rinker, left the United States, they had one daughter, Rebecca, age eight years. When they returned recently, they had a second child with them, Patricia, age two years, who was born in an Army hospital in Germany.

Mrs. Rinker had ample opportunity to visit many interesting places in Germany, France and Switzerland. She studied the German people and frankly said, "I don't think this government should even consider arming them. They really don't like us and don't appreciate what we are doing for them."

Many parts of Nuremberg and Stutgart, where she lived most of the time, must have been beautiful, she observed. "Now, much of the area covered by these cities is still in ruins, because the German people seem slow in rebuilding."

However, she continued that German wages are low, their cost of living is very high and their diet is not as good as it should be.

"The poorer people still live out of the American soldiers' and American civilians' garbage cans," she declared.

Visited Famed Places

Mrs. Rinker visited many places such as famed concentration camps, Hitler's and Goering's former homes and other places which made infamous history. She talked about the horrors of Dachau where thousands were imprisoned, starved and cremated.

"The surprising thing about this place," Mrs. Rinker recalled, "is that German people who lived within a block or two of this terrible place, still say they knew nothing about what was going on there. It is difficult to tell if they are still scared or just stubborn. Some think they are afraid of spies."

The war crime trials were of special interest to Mrs. Rinker and she followed them closely. There was great excitement among the Germans when Goering succeeded in committing suicide, she noted.

Speaking of security for American occupation forces and their families, Mrs. Rinker said the soldiers are ready for any eventuality. The civilian population with the Army is kept ready, too.

Ready For Emergency

One of the rigid requirements of Army families is that each must keep a suit case packed with necessary clothing, food, etc., plus several blankets, ready at all times. The Army insists, and issues a list of what must be kept on hand. It must be ready so there can be no delay if evacuation becomes necessary, she explained.

Guard Always At Hand

This kind of thing is troublesome at first, but after awhile Americans there lose their apprehension and seem to get along more calmly, she said. However, no matter

Fired Worker's Right To Sue Is Argued In Court

Jurisdictional Question Cited

Considerable discussion concerning the $6,000 suit brought against the Celanese Corporation of America by a discharged Amcelle plant worker was heard yesterday afternoon by Associate Judge George Henderson in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The discussion erupted in a hearing called for the contending attorneys in order that some of the legal questions might be disposed of before the case comes to trial.

Discharged In 1950

Hugo Taschenberger, 58 Boone Street, through I. Duke Avnet, Baltimore attorney, brought suit June 30 against Celanese, contending that he was discharged wrongfully and improperly July 10, 1950, after having been employed at Amcelle 21 years.

Celanese, through Attorneys William A. Gunter and William H. Geppert, filed a motion and affidavit November 2 for summary judgment in favor of the defendant. They argue that Circuit Court has no jurisdiction in the case. They say that Taschenberger should have followed the arbitration procedure provided in the contract between Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, and Celanese.

Much of the discussion yesterday centered around Avnet's answer to the defendant's motion for summary judgment. In some portions of the answer Taschenberger through his attorney neither admitted nor denied certain allegations.

Amended Answer Due

Avnet agreed to file an amended answer in the next 20 days. While in the courtroom he argued that his client had the right to bring suit in Circuit Court. He said the Taft-Hartley Act made provision for individual handling of grievances and cited several cases in which courts have upheld the right of discharged workers to bring suit.

In their answer to Taschenberger's original declaration, the Celanese attorneys contended that Taschenberger had been discharged for fighting with a fellow worker while on the job. They also contended that the executive board of the union had heard Taschenberger's case after his discharge and had decided not to pursue arbitration of the matter. They add, that the worker should have appealed the executive board's action rather than to have brought suit in court.

The worker's attorney denies that the Boone Street man was discharged as a result of a fight and asserts that he did protest the union executive board decision even though he did not appeal. Avnet said that his client also applied directly to top personnel in management for consideration of his case.

Salvation Army Yule Gift Wrapper Provides "Service With A Smile"

William E. McProuty has packages wrapped by Mrs. Winona Stimler at the Salvation Army booth.

By LARRY T. GRECO

Every year at Christmas time a familiar wrapping booth appears in the lobby of the local postoffice, and among the cord, wrapping paper, seasonal stickers and address cards appear the skilled hands of an interesting personality.

For the past 16 years the wrapping booth has been operated by the Salvation Army, but its fast and efficient service is due to the ingenuity of Mrs. Winona Stimler who has been with the Army for over 49 years.

Started By Daughter

The idea of the Christmas wrapping booth was first started by Mrs. Stimler's daughter, Miss Catherine Stimler, who is at present working with the Salvation Army in Louisville, Ky. Sixteen years ago, Miss Stimler asked the local postmaster for permission to set up the stand, and it has been continued by her mother ever since.

Miss Stimler first saw the wrapping booth idea being used while she was in North Carolina with the Salvation Army, working with Major and Mrs. Elmer Wall, who recently left here as commanding officers of the local Army.

After the first year, in 1937, Mrs. Stimler took over the project and has kept it going every Christmas season since that time.

The booth is open daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and Mrs. Stimler prepares packages both for mailing and as gifts. The service is done free of charge with donations accepted from "customers."

Lowest Reading Of Season Felt By Cumberland

Expect End Of Cold Siege By Saturday

Cumberland got its coldest reading of the season yesterday as thermometers plunged to 17 degrees. Even colder temperatures are expected today and tomorrow, according to the Weather Bureau.

Some sections of the Tri-State area yesterday felt readings of as low as four degrees, and the Weather Bureau said last night temperatures this morning in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties will drop to near zero.

Cold To End Saturday

Today is to be partly cloudy and cold while tomorrow is to be less cold. A Weather Bureau forecaster said the current air mass from eastern or central Canada generally results in a "prolonged siege of cold weather."

The air isn't expected to warm up until tomorrow when afternoon temperatures might climb into the 40's. High temperature today will be in the low 30's, forecasters said.

The most frigid section yesterday was at Big Savage Mountain where the State Roads Commission reported four degrees. Another four-degree reading was reported at Thomas, W. Va., where 12 inches of snow covered the ground and frigid winds swept the area.

Other lows yesterday were Oakland, eight degrees; Thomas, six; Deal, Pa., eight; Elkins, 10; Accident, nine; Frostburg, 11, and Town Hill, 16.

The district office of the State Roads Commission yesterday reported all roads west of Clarysville were snow-packed, and last night Maryland State Police at LaVale said roads west of Grantsville were icy and snow-covered, and recommended that chains be used.

Roads in that section have been cindered, SRC officials said, but chains were advised anyway.

Some Roads Icy

West Virginia State Police at Romney said highways in that section were icy in spots, but these have been well cindered. State Police at Bedford, Pa. reported roads in that area were generally clear, but warned motorists to be careful on bridges where ice has formed due to cold air under the structures.

Other sections of the district, mostly west of Cumberland, were still getting light snows last night. Altamont was getting more snow last night on top of nine inches of old snow with temperature of 12 degrees; Terra Alta was also being covered with additional snow over 12 inches of old snow with a reading of 12 degrees.

It was also snowing last night in Western Pennsylvania. At Connellsville snow was falling on top of four inches of old snow and temperature was 22; Deal began shoveling more snow last night after having six inches in an eight-degree temperature; Rockwood was getting some more on top of six inches with an 18-degree reading, and Confluence was getting more snow on top of four inches in a 20-degree temperature.

It was also snowing last night in Elkins, W. Va. where nine inches of snow is already on the ground, and in Thomas where 12 inches blanket the area.

Hardman and Blazer, with seven and nine inches of snow respectively, were having 16 and 10-degree temperatures last night and cloudy weather.

Evans Named Grand Jury Foreman, Gets Army Call

Benjamin H. Evans Jr. Lonaconing business man, was selected as foreman of the Grand Jury for the January term of Allegany County Circuit Court when the 48-member panel was drawn yesterday morning, but it appeared probable that he will not be around to fill the duties.

A full colonel in the Organized Reserve, Evans has received orders to serve as an instructor at the Commanding General's Staff School starting at Fort Meade January 5 and continuing through the rest of the month. The Lonaconing man normally spends about three months each year on active duty.

The 23 members of the Grand Jury will report for duty at 10 a. m. Monday, January 4. The 25 citizens on the Petit Jury will make their first appearance Monday, January 18. Seven women were called for Grand Jury duty and four others for the Petit Jury.

William P. Cooper Dies At Hospital In Pittsburgh

Headed Cafeterias Of County Schools

William P. Cooper, 51, who had served as director of the cafeterias of Allegany County public schools since the program was started back in depression days, died yesterday afternoon at Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa.

He became ill while visiting in that city last Saturday and death was attributed to cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Cooper had been connected with the county school system for 30 years, having started as a history and science teacher at Barton High School. Later he directed the first school cafeteria at Hammond Street School in Westernport and continued as the program expanded to include all schools.

When the program was started, labor to equip the first cafeteria was furnished by the WPA and a large percentage of the menu came from surplus food provided by the United States Department of Agriculture. Gradually expanded, the program has been arranged so that most of the food is prepared in the kitchens of the county's 34 schools. In a few of the smallest schools the food is brought in thermos containers from other nearly school kitchens.

Mr. Cooper was elected first president of the Maryland School Food Service Association which was organized in October in Baltimore. He was a charter member of the American School Food Service Association, organized seven years ago, and was chairman

Play Equipment To Be Repaired

All city playground equipment has been taken to the city warehouse for winter storage and repair, according to Robert E. Pence, city recreation director.

Play equipment from city-owned grounds was placed in storage some time ago, but was left on school playgrounds as long as it could be used by children.

The work will be done by Glenwood Reel, the department's maintenance worker, and the city carpenter. All of the equipment will be painted before it is needed in the spring.

There are more than 200 pieces of heavy equipment for the 16 playgrounds which were operated during the summer. In general, each playground is equipped with nine swings, a whirl, sliding board, sand box and basketball goal.

Postal Service Stepped Up For Christmas Rush

Additional Daily Deliveries Slated

With the increase of Christmas mailing, the Cumberland Post Office has stepped up the number of mail deliveries to local homes.

Postal officials yesterday said there will be no fewer than two mail deliveries daily during the Christmas holidays, and additional deliveries will be made in some sections of the city when warranted by the number of pieces of mail that arrive here.

Cancellations at the postoffice are expected to increase steadily until Christmas, officials added, but parcel post is slow and far below last year's business at this time.

Wednesday's cancellations totaled 135,000, which was a sharp hike over the previous day's business of 110,000 pieces of mail. The total also came close to last year's high of about 140,000 cancellations last December 17.

Approximately 70 additional employes have been hired by the local post office to assist during the Christmas rush. These include extra carriers, those for handling inside work, and parcel post helpers.

Officials said thousands of Christmas card letters have been received at the local post office, but many of them carried two-cent stamps.

Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon pointed out that there are many advantages to using three-cent stamps for letters. He said letters bearing two-cents cannot be returned or forwarded in case of a mixup in address. By placing a three-cent stamp on the Christmas greeting letter, he added, persons are assured that the addressee will receive the letter.

Last year's figures show that cancellations hit the 100,000 mark on December 15 and remained above that total for a five-day period. The amount dropped on December 20 to 97,000, and on the following day, a Sunday, it fell to 50,000. On December 22, cancellations jumped to 108,000 and then decreased to a normal pace.

The post office windows will not be opened this Sunday, postal authorities said, but windows will be open until 6 p. m. daily through the week. On Saturday, the post office will be open until 4 p. m., instead of closing at noon as previously.

County Ranks Eighth In Bond Sales

Allegany County now ranks eighth in the sale of E and H Bonds among Maryland counties 1953 as 78.3 per cent of the county quota of $2,900,000 has been reached.

During November, according to Lynn C. Lashley, County Savings Bond chairman, $193,183 in bonds was sold throughout the County. Previously $2,078,347 had been sold, bringing the present total of sales to $2,271,530.

Lashley pointed out that December has generally been a good month in the Savings Bonds program on account of the popularity of Savings Bonds for Christmas.

Nearby Garrett County has reached 55.6 per cent of its quota of $380,000 and ranks 21st in the state. Lashley noted that Harford County went over the top with 100.7 per cent of objective achieved; Washington County is second with 91 per cent; Baltimore City third with 86.6 per cent; Somerset County fourth with 84 per cent and Worcester County fifth with 83 per cent achievement.

Fired Worker's Right To Sue Is Argued In Court

Jurisdictional Question Cited

Considerable discussion concerning the $6,000 suit brought against the Celanese Corporation of America by a discharged Amcelle plant worker was heard yesterday afternoon by Associate Judge George Henderson in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The discussion erupted in a hearing called for the contending attorneys in order that some of the legal questions might be disposed of before the case comes to trial.

Discharged In 1950

Hugo Taschenberger, 58 Boone Street, through I. Duke Avnet, Baltimore attorney, brought suit June 30 against Celanese, contending that he was discharged wrongfully and improperly July 10, 1950, after having been employed at Amcelle 21 years.

Celanese, through Attorneys William A. Gunter and William H. Geppert, filed a motion and affidavit November 2 for summary judgment in favor of the defendant. They argue that Circuit Court has no jurisdiction in the case. They say that Taschenberger should have followed the arbitration procedure provided in the contract between Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, and Celanese.

Much of the discussion yesterday centered around Avnet's answer to the defendant's motion for summary judgment. In some portions of the answer Taschenberger through his attorney neither admitted nor denied certain allegations.

Amended Answer Due

Avnet agreed to file an amended answer in the next 20 days. While in the courtroom he argued that his client had the right to bring suit in Circuit Court. He said the Taft-Hartley Act made provision for individual handling of grievances and cited several cases in which courts have upheld the right of discharged workers to bring suit.

In their answer to Taschenberger's original declaration, the Celanese attorneys contended that Taschenberger had been discharged for fighting with a fellow worker while on the job. They also contended that the executive board of the union had heard Taschenberger's case after his discharge and had decided not to pursue arbitration of the matter. They add, that the worker should have appealed the executive board's action rather than to have brought suit in court.

The worker's attorney denies that the Boone Street man was discharged as a result of a fight and asserts that he did protest the union executive board decision even though he did not appeal. Avnet said that his client also applied directly to top personnel in management for consideration of his case.

Salvation Army Yule Gift Wrapper Provides "Service With A Smile"

William E. McProuty has packages wrapped by Mrs. Winona Stimler at the Salvation Army booth.

By LARRY T. GRECO

Every year at Christmas time a familiar wrapping booth appears in the lobby of the local postoffice, and among the cord, wrapping paper, seasonal stickers and address cards appear the skilled hands of an interesting personality.

For the past 16 years the wrapping booth has been operated by the Salvation Army, but its fast and efficient service is due to the ingenuity of Mrs. Winona Stimler who has been with the Army for over 49 years.

Started By Daughter

The idea of the Christmas wrapping booth was first started by Mrs. Stimler's daughter, Miss Catherine Stimler, who is at present working with the Salvation Army in Louisville, Ky. Sixteen years ago, Miss Stimler asked the local postmaster for permission to set up the stand, and it has been continued by her mother ever since.

Miss Stimler first saw the wrapping booth idea being used while she was in North Carolina with the Salvation Army, working with Major and Mrs. Elmer Wall, who recently left here as commanding officers of the local Army.

After the first year, in 1937, Mrs. Stimler took over the project and has kept it going every Christmas season since that time.

The booth is open daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and Mrs. Stimler prepares packages both for mailing and as gifts. The service is done free of charge with donations accepted from "customers."

A native of Cumberland, Mrs. Stimler has been with the Salva-
